Registered Pension Plans Technical Manual: §3.1 (deductible employer contributions).

(2) Employer contributions — defined benefit provisions — For the purposes of subsection (1), a contribution made by an employer to a registered pension plan in respect of the defined benefit provisions of the plan is an eligible contribution if it is a prescribed contribution or if it complies with prescribed conditions and is made pursuant to a recommendation by an actuary in whose opinion the contribution is required to be made so that the plan will have sufficient assets to pay benefits under the defined benefit provisions of the plan, as registered, in respect of the employees and former employees of the employer, where

(a) the recommendation is based on an actuarial valuation that complies with the following conditions, except the conditions in subparagraphs (iii) and (iv) to the extent that they are inconsistent with any other conditions that apply for the purpose of determining whether the contribution is an eligible contribution:

(i) the effective date of the valuation is not more than 4 years before the day on which the contribution is made,

(ii) actuarial liabilities and current service costs are determined in accordance with an actuarial funding method that produces a reasonable matching of contributions with accruing benefits,

(iii) all assumptions made for the purposes of the valuation are reasonable at the time the valuation is prepared and at the time the contribution is made,

(iv) the valuation is prepared in accordance with generally accepted actuarial principles,

(v) the valuation complies with prescribed conditions, which conditions may include conditions regarding the benefits that may be taken into account for the purposes of the valuation, and

(vi) where more than one employer participates in the plan, assets and actuarial liabilities are apportioned in a reasonable manner among participating employers in respect of their employees and former employees, and

(b) the recommendation is approved by the Minister in writing, and, for the purposes of this subsection and except as otherwise provided by regulation,

(c) the benefits taken into account for the purposes of a recommendation may include anticipated cost-of-living and similar adjustments where the terms of a pension plan do not require that those adjustments be made but it is reasonable to expect that they will be made, and

(d) a recommendation with respect to the contributions required to be made by an employer in respect of the defined benefit provisions of a pension plan may be prepared without regard to such portion of the assets of the plan apportioned to the employer in respect of the employer's employees and former employees as does not exceed the least of

(i) the amount of actuarial surplus in respect of the employer,

(ii) 20% of the amount of actuarial liabilities apportioned to the employer in respect of the employer's employees and former employees, and

(iii) the greater of

(A) 2 times the estimated amount of current service contributions that would, if there were no actuarial surplus, be required to be made by the employer and the employer's employees for the 12 months immediately following the effective date of the actuarial valuation on which the recommendation is based, and

(B) the amount that would be determined under subparagraph (ii) if the reference therein to "20%" were read as a reference to "10%".

Proposed Amendment — Regulatory exception re fixed-cost-shared plan

Letter from Dept. of Finance, August 19, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

This is further to our recent discussion concerning the status of the Department's review of the request by the [xxx] to relax the pension surplus rules in the Income Tax Act for defined benefit pension plans that are governed by a fixed-cost-shared arrangement.

We have completed our review of this matter and wish to confirm the Department's intention to recommend to the Minister of Finance relieving amendments to the Income Tax Regulations, effective for contributions made after 2002. The proposed amendments would permit employer contributions to be made to a fixed-cost-shared plan in accordance with the following table, where such contributions would not otherwise be permitted under subsection 147.2(2) of the Act because the plan's funding ratio exceeds 110%.

Funding ratio	Total employer and employee current service contributions
>110% and ≤115%	75% of current service costs
>115% and ≤120%	50% of current service costs
>120% and ≤125%	25% of current service costs
>125%	nil

The amendments are being recommended in recognition of the fact that, because of the fixed-cost-shared arrangement, both employee and employer contributions to such a plan are linked to the funded status of the plan. As a result, employee contribution rates have the potential to vary significantly. This is in contrast to traditional defined benefit plans under which employee contribution rates remain constant, regardless of the funded status of the plan. By proposing to relax the restrictions on employer contributions to fixed-cost-shared plans in the manner outlined, changes in the funded status of such plans should be less volatile and, thus, employee contribution rates should be more stable.

If the recommendation is acted upon, the proposed amendments will, at the earliest opportunity, be submitted to the Governor in Council for consideration.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

- an annuity acquired by a policyholder in circumstances to which subsection 146(21) applies (i.e., an annuity described in paragraph 60(l) and acquired with funds paid out of the Saskatchewan Pension Plan).

An annuity described in paragraph 148(1)(e) is defined, by paragraph 304(1)(b) of the Income Tax Regulations, to be a "prescribed annuity contract" and, as such, is not subject to the accrual rules set out in section 12.2. This treatment reflects the fact that the policyholder acquiring such an annuity does so with tax-deferred funds, and is generally meant to be taxed only when amounts are paid out of the annuity.

Subsection 148(1) is amended to include, in the annuities described in paragraph (e), an annuity that is a "qualifying trust annuity" with respect to a taxpayer (as defined in new subsection 60.011(2)), the payment for which was deductible by the taxpayer under paragraph 60(l). This reflects the fact that a qualifying trust annuity will typically be held by a trust, rather than by the taxpayer who is entitled to the deduction under paragraph 60(l), and ensures that it is treated, for tax purposes, in the same manner as if it were held by the taxpayer.

(ii) the policyholder acquired the annuity contract in circumstances to which subsection 146(21) applied, the amount, if any, by which the proceeds of the disposition of the policyholder's interest in the policy that the policyholder, beneficiary or assignee, as the case may be, became entitled to receive in the year exceeds the adjusted cost basis to the policyholder of that interest immediately before the disposition.

(d) where at any time a life insurance policy last acquired after December 1, 1982, or a life insurance policy to which subsection 12.2(9) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, applies by virtue of paragraph 12.2(9)(b) of that Act, ceases to be an exempt policy (otherwise than as a consequence of the death of an individual whose life is insured under the policy or at a time when that individual is totally and permanently disabled), the policyholder shall be deemed to have disposed of the policyholder's interest in the policy at that time for proceeds of disposition equal to the accumulating fund with respect to the interest, as determined in prescribed manner, at that time and to have reacquired the interest immediately after that time at a cost equal to those proceeds.

(3) Income inclusion on return of funds — Where at any particular time in a taxation year a particular amount is distributed (otherwise than as payment for the provision of funeral or cemetery services with respect to an individual) to a taxpayer from an arrangement that was, at the time it was established, an eligible funeral arrangement and the particular amount is paid from the balance in respect of the individual under the arrangement, there shall be added in computing the taxpayer's income for the year from property the lesser of the particular amount and the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the balance in respect of the individual under the arrangement immediately before the particular time (determined without regard to the value of property in a cemetery care trust);

B is the total of all payments made from the arrangement before the particular time for the provision of funeral or cemetery services with respect to the individual (other than cemetery services funded by property in a cemetery care trust); and

C is the total of all relevant contributions made before the particular time in respect of the individual under the particular arrangement (other than contributions in respect of the individual that were in a cemetery care trust).

Proposed Amendment — 148.1(3)C

D is the total of all relevant contributions made before the particular time in respect of the individual under the arrangement (other than contributions in respect of the individual that were in a cemetery care trust), and

E is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, if any, by which

(a) an amount relating to the balance in respect of the individual under the arrangement that is deemed by subsection (4) to have been distributed before the particular time from the arrangement

exceeds

(b) the portion of the amount referred to in paragraph (a) that is added, because of this subsection, in computing a taxpayer's income.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 146(2), will amend the description of C in subsec. 148.1(3) to read as above, applicable to amounts that are transferred, credited or added after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Section 148.1 is amended to provide specific rules relating to transfers from one EFA account to another. In general terms, the changes are as follows: . . .

- The provision that requires EFA distributions to be included in income (subsection 148.1(3)) is amended to ensure that the determination of the amount that can subsequently be distributed from the transferor EFA account on a tax-free basis is reduced by the portion of the transferred amount that was not included in income (i.e., that portion of the transferred amount that represents a return of contributions).

These changes are described in more detail below.

Subsection 148.1(3) provides for an income inclusion by a taxpayer in the event that there is a distribution of funds from an individual's EFA account to the taxpayer (otherwise than as a payment for the provision of funeral or cemetery services with respect to the individual). The amount of the income inclusion is the lesser of the distributed amount and a second amount. In general terms, this second amount is determined by the formula:

$$A + B - C$$

where

A is the balance in the EFA account immediately before the distribution,

B is the total of all payments made from the EFA account before the distribution for the provision of funeral or cemetery services, and

C is the total of all "relevant contributions" in respect of the EFA account that were made before the distribution.

For the purpose of the description of C, an amount is defined in subsection 148.1(1) to be a "relevant contribution" in respect of a particular EFA account if

- the amount was contributed to the particular EFA account otherwise than by way of transfer from another EFA account, or
- the amount was contributed to another EFA account (otherwise than by way of transfer) and subsequently transferred (either from the original or a subsequent EFA account) to the particular EFA account.

The effect of subsection 148.1(3) is to include in the income of the taxpayer the lesser of the amount received and an amount which generally represents the income accumulated in the EFA account. If the amount received by the taxpayer is greater than the amount included in the taxpayer's income, the excess generally represents a non-taxable refund of relevant contributions (represented by the variable C in the formula).

The description of C is amended so that its value is reduced, in effect, by any relevant contributions previously transferred from the EFA account to another EFA account. This ensures that the amount of the transferred relevant contribution (which, by virtue of subsection 148.1(3), can be distributed from the recipient EFA account tax-free) cannot also be used to support a subsequent tax-free withdrawal from the transferor EFA account.

The description of C is amended to provide that its value is determined by the formula

For this purpose, the value of D is the amount determined under the existing description of C. The value of E is the total of all amounts each of which is

- an amount which was previously transferred from the EFA account and deemed, by new subsection 148.1(4), to be a distribution minus

- the portion of the deemed distribution that was required, by subsection 148.1(3), to be included in computing a taxpayer's income.

Related Provisions: 12(1)(z.4) — Inclusion into income from property; 212(1)(v) — Withholding tax on payment to non-resident; 257 — Formula amounts cannot calculate to less than zero.

History [148.1(3)]: Subsec. 148.1(3) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 177(6), applicable to 1993 et seq. Subsec. 148.1(3) formerly read:

> (3) Where at any particular time in a taxation year a particular amount is distributed (otherwise than as payment for the provision of funeral services with respect to an individual) to a taxpayer from an arrangement that was, at the time it was established, an eligible funeral arrangement and the particular amount is paid from the balance in respect of the individual under the arrangement, there shall be added in computing the taxpayer's income for the year from property the lesser of the particular amount and the amount determined by the formula

Regulations: 201(1)(f) (information return).

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-531: Eligible funeral arrangements.

Proposed Addition — 148.1(4), (5)

(4) Deemed distribution on transfer — If at a particular time an amount relating to the balance in respect of an individual (referred to in this subsection and in subsection (5) as the "transferor") under an eligible funeral arrangement (referred to in this subsection and in subsection (5) as the "transferor arrangement") is transferred, credited or added to the balance in respect of the same or another individual (referred to in this subsection and in subsection (5) as the "recipient") under the same or another eligible funeral arrangement (referred to in this subsection and in subsection (5) as the "recipient arrangement"),

(a) the amount is deemed to be distributed to the transferor (or, if the transferor is deceased at the particular time, to the recipient) at the particular time from the transferor arrangement and to be paid from the balance in respect of the transferor under the transferor arrangement; and

(b) the amount is deemed to be a contribution made (other than by way of a transfer from an eligible funeral arrangement) at the particular time under the recipient arrangement for the purpose of funding funeral or cemetery services with respect to the recipient.

Related Provisions: 148.1(5) — No deemed distribution on transfer to same individual.

(5) Non-application of subsection (4) — Subsection (4) does not apply if

(a) the transferor and the recipient are the same individual;

(b) the amount that is transferred, credited or added to the balance in respect of the individual under the recipient arrangement is equal to the balance in respect of the individual under the transferor arrangement immediately before the particular time; and

(c) the transferor arrangement is terminated immediately after the transfer.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 146(3), will add subsecs. 148.1(4) and (5), applicable to amounts that are transferred, credited or added after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Section 148.1 is amended to provide specific rules relating to transfers from one EFA account to another. In general terms, the changes are as follows:

- A new provision (paragraph 148.1(4)(a)) deems the transferred amount to be distributed to the individual from whose EFA account the amount is transferred. However, if that individual is deceased, the amount is deemed to be distributed to the individual to whose EFA account the amount is transferred. This ensures that the transfer is included in income (to the extent that it does not exceed the income accumulated in the transferor account).
- A new provision (paragraph 148.1(4)(b)) deems the transferred amount to be a contribution made to the recipient EFA account other than by way of transfer. This ensures that the earnings portion of the transferred amount is not taxed again when it is distributed from the recipient EFA account. . . .
- A new provision (subsection 148.1(5)) provides that these new rules do not apply if the transferor and the recipient EFA accounts are in respect of the same person, the entire balance in the transferor account is transferred to the recipient account and the transferor EFA account is terminated immediately after the transfer.

These changes are described in more detail below. . . .

New subsection 148.1(4) contains rules that apply when an amount is transferred from one EFA account to another EFA account of the same or another person.

Paragraph 148.1(4)(a) deems the transfer to be a distribution from the transferor EFA account. If the individual from whose account the amount is transferred is alive at the time of the transfer, that individual is deemed to be the recipient of the distribution. Otherwise, the recipient is deemed to be the individual to whose EFA account the amount is transferred. This deeming provision ensures that subsection 148.1(3) applies to the transfer. Consequently, the transferred amount will be included in computing the income of the deemed recipient, except to the extent that the transferred amount exceeds the income accumulated in the transferor EFA account.

Paragraph 148.1(4)(b) deems the amount transferred to be a contribution made (otherwise than by way of transfer) under the recipient EFA account. This ensures that the income portion of the transferred amount (which is included in income, under subsection 148.1(3), as a distribution from the transferor account) is considered to be a "relevant contribution" in respect of the recipient EFA account (which it would not otherwise be, because of the definition "relevant contribution" in subsection 148.1(1)). This allows it to subsequently be withdrawn from the recipient EFA account on a tax-free basis.

New subsection 148.1(5) provides that new subsection 148.1(4) does not apply when the entire balance of an individual's EFA account is transferred to another EFA account of the same individual and the transferor EFA account is terminated immediately after the transfer. Consequently, there will be no deemed distribution resulting from such a transfer.

Example 1

Paul sets up an EFA account for the pre-funding of his funeral expenses. He contributes $10,000 to his account, and earns $7,000 of interest in the account. Paul transfers $3,000 to an EFA account which he establishes for his daughter, Gaby.

The transferred amount is deemed to be a distribution to Paul under new paragraph 148.1(4)(a). Consequently, Paul includes in his income, under subsection 148.1(3), an amount of $3,000, which is the lesser of

- $3,000, which is the amount distributed, and
- $7,000, which is the amount determined by the formula under subsection 148.1(3):

= $7,000

The transfer is treated, in effect, as a distribution of a portion of the income accumulated in the plan.

Under new paragraph 148.1(4)(b), the transferred amount is also deemed to be a contribution made, other than by way of transfer, to Gaby's EFA account. Thus, the $3,000 is considered to be a relevant contribution in respect of Gaby's EFA account, and can subsequently be withdrawn tax-free.

Example 2

The facts are the same as in Example 1, except that Paul transfers $13,000 to Gaby's EFA.

The transferred amount is deemed to be a distribution to Paul under new paragraph 148.1(4)(a). Consequently, Paul includes in his income, under subsection 148.1(3), an amount of $7,000, which is the lesser of

- $13,000, which is the amount distributed, and
- $7,000, which is the amount determined by the formula under subsection 148.1(3):

The transfer is treated, in effect, as a distribution of all of the income accumulated in the plan ($7,000), which is taxable, plus a return of a portion of the relevant contributions in respect of the EFA ($6,000), which is not taxable.

Under new paragraph 148.1(4)(b), the transferred amount is also deemed to be a contribution made, other than by way of transfer, to Gaby's EFA account. This has no particular significance with respect to the portion of the transfer that represents relevant contributions in respect of Paul's EFA account, since this amount would be considered to be a relevant contribution to Gaby's EFA account under the existing rules. However, it does have significance with respect to the portion of the transfer that represents income in Paul's EFA account, in that it allows that portion to become a relevant contribution in respect of Gaby's EFA account which can then be withdrawn from Gaby's account tax-free.

The facts are the same as in Example 2. After the transfer of $13,000, the balance in Paul's EFA account is $4,000, all of which represents relevant contributions in respect of the account. Over the next few years, the account earns an additional $2,500 of interest. Paul then withdraws the entire balance from the account.

The withdrawal is a distribution under subsection 148.1(3). Consequently, Paul includes $2,500 in his income, which is the lesser of:

- $6,500, which is the amount of the withdrawal, and
- $2,500, which is the amount determined by the formula under subsection 148.1(3):

= $6,500 + 0 – ($10,000 – $6,000)

The value of E ($6,000) is the excess of the amount that was previously transferred and to which subsection 148.1(4) applied ($13,000) over the portion of that amount that was included in income under subsection 148.1(3) ($7,000).

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 -- technical), subsec. 147(1), will amend para. 149(1)(d.5) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after May 8, 2000.

Notwithstanding subsec. 152(4) to (5), any assessment of a taxpayer's tax payable under the Act for any taxation year that began before February 27, 2004 shall be made that is necessary to give effect to the amendment.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 149(1)(d.5) exempts from tax, subject to an income test, the taxable income of any corporation, commission or association at least 90% of the capital of which is owned by one or more municipalities in Canada.

In accordance with the Tax Court of Canada decision in Otineka Development Corporation Limited and 72902 Manitoba Limited v. The Queen, 94 D.T.C. 1234, [1994] 1 C.T.C. 2424, an entity could be considered a municipality for the purpose of this paragraph on the basis of the functions it exercised. More recently, however, the decision in Tawich Development Corporation v. Deputy Minister of Revenue of Quebec, [1997] 2 C.N.L.R. 187 (Que. Civil Chamber); aff'd 2001 D.T.C. 5144 (Que. C.A.), a decision under the Taxation Act (Quebec), held that an entity could not attain the status of a municipality by exercising municipal functions but only by statute, letters patent or order. From a tax policy perspective, it is desired that the entities previously entitled to the exemption on the basis of the Otineka decision continue to have access to the exemption. This amendment resolves the uncertainty resulting from the two conflicting cases. The exemption in paragraph 149(1)(d.5) is therefore extended to include any corporation, commission or association at least 90% of the capital of which was owned by one or more entities each of which is a municipal or public body performing a function of government in Canada, which is consistent with the bodies described in paragraph 149(1)(c).

Letter from Dept. of Finance, September 10, 2002:

[Letter sent to 13 provincial and territorial officials — ed.]

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing to inform you of my intention to recommend to the Minister of Finance that, as a result of the recent decision of the Quebec Court of Appeal in Tawich Development Corporation v. Deputy Minister of Revenue of Quebec ([2000] 3 C.N.L.R. 383), the federal Income Tax Act (ITA) be amended to provide that certain exemptions and deductions currently applicable in respect of municipalities also be applied in respect of municipal or public bodies performing a function of government in Canada. Prior to discussing this matter with my Minister, though, I want to set out the relevant background information for you and solicit your views.

Under paragraph 149(1)(d.5) of the ITA, no tax is payable under Part I on the taxable income of a corporation, commission or association owned by a municipality. Until recently, Indian Act bands were often considered municipalities for income tax purposes on the basis of the functions they exercised and, on this basis, many corporations owned by Indian Act bands were exempted from Part I tax under paragraph 149(1)(d.5). However, as a result of the decision in Tawich, in which the court held that an entity can only attain the status of a municipality through constituting documents of a province, the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency (CCRA) has advised us that it could no longer treat Indian Act bands as municipalities for income tax purposes. Therefore, without legislative changes, corporations owned by Indian Act bands would no longer be exempt from Part I tax under paragraph 149(1)(d.5).

In order to ensure the continued application of an exemption from Part I tax for Indian Act band corporations, I am prepared to recommend expanding the exemption under paragraph 149(1)(d.5) (and related provisions under section 149) to include corporations, commissions and associations owned by a municipal or public body performing a function of government. This will have the effect of ensuring that the taxable income of corporations owned by Indian Act bands continues to be exempt from Part I tax insofar as Indian bands are public bodies performing a function of government in Canada. The current geographic restriction found in paragraph 149(1)(d.5) will also apply to corporations, commissions and associations owned by a municipal or public body performing a function of government. Therefore, the exemption from Part I income tax will only be available to Indian Act band corporations, commissions and associations that earn substantially all of their taxable income on reserve.

In addition, under current subsections 110.1(1) and 118.1(1) of the ITA, corporations may deduct amounts from taxable income that constitute a charitable or ecological gift to, inter alia, a municipality. I am also prepared to recommend expanding the scope of these provisions to also allow deductions for charitable or ecological gifts to a municipal or public body performing a function of government in Canada. It is my understanding that this proposal is consistent with what is currently the administrative practice of the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency (CCRA).

My officials have informed me that these proposed amendments should have little, if any, impact on either federal or provincial revenues insofar as what is proposed is to legislate what has been a long-standing administrative practice. If you would like further information on this proposal, please contact Mr. Paul Rochon ((613) 996-9447), Director of Intergovernmental Tax Policy, Research and Evaluation Division or we can discuss this matter at the meeting of the Federal-Provincial Committee on Taxation on October 4, 2002.

Sincerely,

Stephen R. Richardson

Proposed Amendment — 149(1)(d.5)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 5, 2004:

Dear [xxx]:

I am responding to your letter to me of March 17, 2004 and discussions with Stephanie Smith concerning the tax-exempt status of an amalgamated corporation ("[xxx]"). Once amalgamated, [xxx] will be approximately 59% owned by Municipality A and 41% owned by Municipality B. However, while Municipality A will directly own 59% of [xxx] Municipality B will indirectly own 41% of [xxx] due to the interposition of a [xxx] which is wholly owned by Municipality B.

In general, paragraphs 149(1)(c) through (d.6) of the Act exempt from tax under Part I of the Act municipalities in Canada, Crown corporations and municipal corporations, as well as certain other corporations jointly or indirectly owned by the Crown or municipalities in Canada. With respect to corporations owned by municipalities, the following combinations are provided for in the Act:

- paragraph 149(1)(d.3) — a corporation not less than 90% of the shares of which are owned by one or more municipalities in Canada in combination with one or more persons each of which is Canada, a province, a corporation all of the shares of which are owned by Canada or a province, or a wholly-owned subsidiary of such a corporation;
- paragraph 149(1)(d.5) — subject to an income and control test, a corporation not less than 90% of the capital of which is owned by one or more municipalities in Canada;
- paragraph 149(1)(d.6) — subject to an income and control test, a corporation all of the shares of which are owned by one or more persons each of which is a corporation to which paragraph 149(1)(d.5) or (d.6) itself applies.

[xxx] will not satisfy the requirements of any of the above-noted provisions.

You have asked us to recommend an amendment to the Act such that a corporation all of the shares of which are held by a combination of municipalities and corporations described in paragraph 149(1)(d.5) of the Act, will also qualify as a tax exempt corporation.

We consider the requested amendment to be consistent with the underlying policy objective of the provision; consequently, we are prepared to recommend that the Income Tax Act be amended to provide that a corporation will be exempt from tax under Part I of the Act provided that all of the shares of the corporation are owned by one or more municipalities in Canada in combination with one or more persons each of which is a corporation to which paragraph 149(1)(d.5) or 149(1)(d.6) applies for the period. Furthermore, our recommendation would be that the amendment be effective after April 30, 2004.

While I cannot offer any assurance that our recommendation in this matter will be accepted, I hope our statement of intent in this letter will be helpful in responding to your concern.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislative Division, Tax Policy Branch

Technical Notes: New paragraph 149(1)(z.1)) exempts from tax under Part I a trust created because of a requirement imposed by section 56 of the Environment Quality Act (Quebec) (EQA). That provision requires certain residual materials elimination facilities to provide financial guarantees by way of establishment of a social trust to cover certain costs after the closure of the facility. Letter from Dept. of Finance, July 17, 2003:

Mr. Luc Monty
Assistant Deputy Minister, Tax Policy Branch, Ministère des Finances du Québec

Dear Sir:

This letter follows up on a letter of March 19, 2003 from your colleague, M. Réal Tremblay, and on our discussions with certain municipalities in Quebec with respect to income tax considerations relating to trusts established under the Environment Quality Act (EQA) for the management of funds used to manage waste disposal sites post-closure.

Given the requirement to establish trusts under the EQA, I am prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance a measure that would ensure that the income of a trust established and maintained solely to meet the obligations of the EQA would be exempt from taxation under the federal Income Tax Act (ITA). This exemption would apply only where no persons are beneficially interested in the trust other than Her Majesty in right of Canada, Her Majesty in right of a province and municipalities that are exempt from taxation under subsection 149(1) of the ITA. I am also prepared to recommend to the Minister that this measure have effect from the date a trust is established under the EQA.

If the Minister accepts the recommendation for the legislative change described above, I would expect that this measure would be included in a future package of income tax technical amendments to be proposed to Parliament.

We also recognize that waste disposal sites subject to obligations imposed under the EQA could be owned by some combination of tax-exempt public entities and private sector entities. In such circumstances, the measure outlined above would not apply. We will, however, continue to consider circumstances involving other ownership structures. One approach that we are considering in this regard is a modified qualifying environmental trust (QET) approach in situations where a mix of public and private ownership exists. Assuming that trusts established under the EQA would normally meet the definition of a QET as outlined in the ITA, such an approach would seek to ensure that an entity that is beneficially interested in such a trust and that is exempt under subsection 149(1) of the ITA would not be subject to an economic cost as a result of the payment of tax under the QET rules. As part of the analysis of the modified QET approach, we will continue to examine and discuss with interested parties the type of detailed modifications that this approach would require to the existing QET rules.

I trust you will find this letter helpful. I also plan to send a copy of this letter to our colleagues on the Federal-Provincial Tax Committee.

Yours sincerely,

Stephen R. Richardson

(z.2) [Nuclear Fuel Waste Act trust] — a trust

(i) that was created because of a requirement imposed by subsection 9(1) of the Nuclear Fuel Waste Act, S.C. 2002, c. 23,

(ii) that is resident in Canada, and

(iii) in which the only persons that are beneficially interested are

(A) Her Majesty in right of Canada,

(B) Her Majesty in right of a province,

(C) a nuclear energy corporation (as defined in section 2 of that Act) all of the shares of the capital stock of which are owned by a person, or combination of persons, described in clause (A) or (B), or

(D) Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, being the company incorporated or acquired pursuant to subsection 10(2) of the Atomic Energy Control Act, R.S.C. 1970, c. A-19.

Technical Notes: Similarly, new paragraph 149(1)(z.2) exempts from tax under Part I a trust created because of a requirement imposed by subsection 9(1) of the Nuclear Fuel Waste Act (NFWA). That provision requires specified entities to contribute moneys to a trust fund for the management of nuclear fuel waste. In this case, the exemption only applies where no persons are beneficially interested in the trust other than Her Majesty in right of Canada, Her Majesty in right of a province or a Crown-owned nuclear energy corporation that is exempt from taxation under subsection 149(1) of the ITA.

These provisions ensure that the tax consequences to a municipality or Crown-owned nuclear energy corporation that is required by federal or provincial legislation to set up a trust to fund an environmental obligation are the same as if the municipality or the Crown-owned nuclear energy corporation accumulated the funds internally rather than in a trust.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, November 15, 2002:

Ms. Louise Lemon
Assistant Deputy Minister, New Brunswick Ministry of Finance, Revenue and Taxation Division

Mr. Réal Tremblay
Assistant Deputy Minster, Fiscal Policy, Ministère des Finances du Québec

Mr. Robert Van Adel
President & Chief Executive Officer, Atomic Energy of Canada Limited

Dear Sirs/Madam:

This letter follows up on our discussions, with provinces and nuclear utilities, on the income tax considerations relating to trusts established under the Nuclear Fuel Waste Act (NFWA) for nuclear waste management.

Our overall intent in this regard is to ensure that the legislative obligations under the NFWA do not cause an income tax result that would make a Crown-owned, tax-exempt nuclear energy corporation (NEC) worse off than prior to the implementation of the NFWA obligations. In recognition of the requirement to establish trust funds once the NFWA comes into force, I am prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance a measure that would ensure that the income of a trust established and maintained solely to meet the obligations of the NFWA would be exempt from taxation under the federal Income Tax Act (ITA). This exemption would apply only where no persons are beneficially interested in the trust other than Her Majesty in right of Canada, Her Majesty in right of a province or Crown-owned NECs that are exempt from taxation under subsection 149(1) of the ITA. I am also prepared to recommend to the Minister that this measure have effect from the date of the coming into force of the NFWA.

If the Minister accepts the recommendation for the legislative change described above, I would expect that this measure would be included in a future package of income tax technical amendments to be proposed to Parliament.

We also recognise that, while NECs are currently owned by Crown entities, a variety of ownership structures may exist in the future. That is, certain NECs in Canada may eventually be owned by a private sector entity or by some combination of public and private sector entities. As a result, it will also be important to ensure that a suitable taxation framework exists that is applicable under a variety of ownership structures. In this regard, we will explore changes to the existing qualifying environment trust (QET) rules in the ITA such that a trust required under the NFWA could be treated as a QET. In this circumstance, it would be important to ensure that an entity that is a beneficiary of such a trust and that is exempt under subsection 149(1) of the ITA would not be subject to an economic cost as a result of the payment of tax, under the QET rules, at the trust or beneficiary level.

As part of the analysis of the QET approach, we will continue to examine and discuss with interested parties the type of detailed modifications that this approach would require to the existing QET rules. This would include changes to the QET refundable tax credit provisions as they relate to beneficiaries that are exempt from taxation. We will also examine the treatment of any income tax obligations of the NFWA trust. In addition, we are interested in continuing discussions related to the investment restrictions applicable to a QET established under the NFWA.

I trust you will find this letter helpful in connection with your considerations relating to the establishment of trusts as required by NFWA.

Yours sincerely,

Stephen R. Richardson

Proposed Amendment — Application of 149(1.11) on amalgamation

Letter from Dept. of Finance, December 6, 2004:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your letter of October 4, 2004 to Mr. Denis Normand of the Business Income Tax Division and further to subsequent discussions with Stephanie Smith of the Tax Legislation Division concerning the election in subsection 149(1.11) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). You have asked us to amend the Act such that a new corporate entity formed as a result of an amalgamation, particularly in the case of a vertical amalgamation, is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, a predecessor parent corporation with respect to any election made by that predecessor parent corporation pursuant to subsection 149(1.11) of the Act.

Subsection 149(1.11) was added to the Act following an amendment to paragraph 149(1)(d) and the addition of paragraphs 149(1)(d.2) to (d.4). Those amendments caused some entities that were previously taxable to become exempt. The result was appropriate from a tax policy standpoint, however, it may not have been beneficial for a limited number of entities since it would trigger the application of subsection 149(10). As result, subsection 149(1.11) was added to allow an entity, that became exempt because of any of paragraphs 149(1)(d.2) to (d.4), to elect in writing to retain its taxable status. Two conditions apply for the entity to retain its taxable status: (i) the election had to be made before 2002 and (ii) there can be no change in the direct or indirect control of the entity.

You have brought to our attention the situation of [xxx]. [xxx] holds a [xxx] provincial insurers' licence and is licensed to conduct business in [xxx]. [xxx] was affected by the addition of paragraphs 149(1)(d.2) to (d.4). [xxx] wanted to remain a taxable entity in order to obtain insurance licences in other provinces and therefore made an election in accordance with subsection 149(1.11). We assume that there has been no change in the direct or indirect control of [xxx] since the election was made. [xxx] wholly owns [xxx] which holds an [xxx] provincial insurers' licence. [xxx] is a taxable entity.

[xxx] would like to amalgamate with [xxx] pursuant to subsection 87(1) of the Act, to improve the capitalization of [xxx] for regulatory purposes, to reduce administrative costs and to utilize losses carried forward in the corporate group. Although a windup would achieve the same objectives, and allow the election made by [xxx] under subsection 149(1.11) to remain intact, it is not feasible from a commercial standpoint because of the volume of contracts, licences, leases and other agreements that would have to be assigned.

In general, the Act treats an amalgamated corporation as a new corporation for tax purposes. There are some exceptions to this rule where, for specific purposes, the amalgamated corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation. Section 149 is not one of the exceptions.

[xxx] is of the view that the amalgamated company needs to remain a taxable entity. [xxx] is currently selling insurance in [xxx] and [xxx] and is looking to expand into other provinces. I understand that [xxx] believes that being a tax-exempt entity would likely impair the current operations, and also hamper future expansion. Tax-exempt status may be considered by provincial regulators to be an unfair advantage over existing insurers currently operating in those jurisdictions.

As I trust you can appreciate, an important concern in respect of the application of section 149 is the maintenance of competitive equity in the commercial marketplace. We have carefully considered your situation and have concluded that, by allowing amalgamated [xxx] and [xxx] to remain taxable, our concern for competitive equity does not arise. As such we prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended to provide that where one corporation (the "Parent") vertically amalgamates with a wholly-owned subsidiary under section 87 of the Act, any election made by the Parent under subsection 149(1.11) is deemed to have been made by the amalgamated corporation.

While we cannot offer any assurance that our recommendation in this matter will be accepted, we hope our statement of intent in this letter will be helpful in responding to your concern.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, September 16, 2005:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your letter of December 22, 2004 to Ms. Stephanie Smith of this Division. In that letter you refer to my letter to you dated December 6, 2004 regarding our intention to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Income Tax Act (the "Act") be amended to provide that where one corporation (the "Parent") vertically amalgamates with a wholly-owned subsidiary under section 87 of the Act, any election made by the Parent under subsection 149(1.11) is deemed to have been made by the amalgamated corporation. You have asked for clarification in two respects: (i) the definition of "wholly-owned subsidiary" and (ii) the effective date for the proposed amendment.

The Act contains two definitions of the term "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation". You have requested that the proposed amendment (discussed above) refer to the definition contained in subsection 248(1) of the Act and not the more restrictive definition contained in subsection 87(1.4) of the Act. We understand that if the more restrictive definition in subsection 87(1.4) was used, [xxx] would not benefit from the amendment as [xxx] has issued directors' qualifying shares to meet a regulatory requirement in Ontario. It is our understanding that other than the directors' qualifying shares [xxx] wholly owns [xxx]. Given the additional information that you have provided we will recommend that the amendment either refer to the definition of "subsidiary wholly-owned corporation" in subsection 248(1) or otherwise accommodate the situation where directors' qualifying shares have been issued.

We will further recommend that the amendment have application to amalgamations that occur after October 4, 2004, the date of your first letter to us on this matter. While we cannot offer any assurance that our recommendations in this matter will be accepted, we hope our statement of intent in this letter will be helpful in responding to your concern.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 147(4), will amend the portion of subsec. 149(1.2) before para. (b) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after May 8, 2000.

Notwithstanding subsec. 152(4) to (5), any assessment of a taxpayer's tax payable under the Act for any taxation year that began before February 27, 2004 shall be made that is necessary to give effect to the amendment.

Technical Notes: Subsection 149(1.2) excludes, for the purposes of paragraphs 149(1)(d.5) and (d.6), certain income from the determination of where an entity to which either of those paragraphs applies derives its income. As a consequence of the amendment to paragraph 149(1)(d.5), a written agreement in subsection 149(1.2) is expanded to include reference to a municipal or public body.

In addition, subparagraph 149(1.2)(a)(vi) is added to clarify that the geographical boundary of a municipal or public body performing a function of government in Canada is defined to be the area described in new subsection (11).

Related Provisions: 149(1.3) — Determination of capital ownership; 149(11) — Geographical boundaries of body performing function of government; 256(6), (6.1) — Meaning of "controlled".

History: Subsec. 149(1.2) amended by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 145(7), applicable to taxation years and fiscal periods that begin after 1998. The subsec. formerly read:

(1.2) For the purposes of paragraphs (1)(d.5) and (d.6), income of a corporation, commission or association from activities carried on outside the geographical boundaries of a municipality does not include income from activities carried on under an agreement in writing between

(a) the corporation, commission or association, and

(b) a person who is Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province or a municipality or corporation to which any of paragraphs (1)(d) to (d.6) applies and that is controlled by Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province or by a municipality in Canada within the geographical boundaries of,

(c) where the person is Her Majesty in right of Canada or a corporation controlled by Her Majesty in right of Canada, Canada,

(d) where the person is Her Majesty in right of a province or a corporation controlled by Her Majesty in right of a province, the province, and

(e) where the person is a municipality in Canada or a corporation controlled by a municipality in Canada, the municipality.

Subsec. 149(1.2) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 178(4), applicable to taxation years and fiscal periods that begin after 1998.

(1.3) Capital ownership [by municipality] — For the purposes of paragraph (1)(d.5) and subsection (1.2), 90% of the capital of a corporation that has issued share capital is owned by one or more municipalities only when the municipalities own shares of the capital stock of the corporation that give the municipalities 90% or more of the votes that could be cast under all circumstances at an annual meeting of shareholders of the corporation.

Proposed Amendment — 149(1.3)

(1.3) Votes or de facto control [by municipality or government] — Paragraphs (1)(d) to (d.6) do not

(a) the person is a corporation shares of the capital stock of which are owned by one or more other persons that, in total, give them more than 10% of the votes that could be cast at a meeting of shareholders of the corporation, other than shares that are owned by one or more persons each of which is

(i) Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province,

(ii) a municipality in Canada,

(iii) a municipal or public body performing a function of government in Canada, or

(iv) a corporation, a commission or an association, to which any of paragraphs (1)(d) to (d.6) apply; or

(b) the person is, or would be if the person were a corporation, controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a person, or by a group of persons that includes a person, who is not

(i) Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province,

(ii) a municipality in Canada,

(iii) a municipal or public body performing a function of government in Canada, or

(iv) a corporation, a commission or an association, to which any of paragraphs (1)(d) to (d.6) apply.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 147(5), will amend subsec. 149(1.3) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after May 8, 2000 except that for those taxation years that began before December 21, 2002, it is to be read as follows:

(1.3) For the purposes of paragraph (1)(d.5) and subsection (1.2), 90% of the capital of a corporation that has issued share capital is owned by one or more entities, each of which is a municipality or a municipal or public body, only if the entities own shares of the capital stock of the corporation that give the entities 90% or more of the votes that could be cast under all circumstances at an annual meeting of shareholders of the corporation.

Notwithstanding subsec. 152(4) to (5), any assessment of a taxpayer's tax payable under the Act for any taxation year that began before February 27, 2004 shall be made that is necessary to give effect to the amendment.

Technical Notes: Subsection 149(1.3) provides that, for the purposes of applying paragraph 149(1)(d.5) and subsection 149(1.2) to a corporation, 90% of the capital of the corporation is considered to be owned by one or more municipalities only if the municipalities are entitled to at least 90% of the votes associated with the shares of the corporation.

As a consequence of the amendment to paragraph 149(1)(d.5), subsection 149(1.3) is amended applicable to taxation years that begin after May 8, 2000, to include reference to municipal or public bodies performing a function of government in Canada.

In addition, subsection 149(1.3) is replaced, applicable to taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002, to provide that paragraphs 149(1)(d) to (d.6) do not apply to exempt a person's taxable income for a period in a taxation year in two cases.

First, under new paragraph 149(1.3)(a), a corporation is not exempt from tax on its taxable income for a period in a taxation year if at any time during the period the corporation has issued shares that are owned by one or more persons (other than certain tax-exempts) that, in total, give them more than 10% of the votes that could be cast at a meeting of shareholders. For this purpose, it is necessary to determine whether more than 10% of the votes could be cast at a meeting of the shareholders by a person or persons other than:

- Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province,
- a municipality in Canada,
- a municipal or public body performing a function of government in Canada, or
- a commission, an association or a corporation, to which any of paragraphs 149(1)(d) to (d.6) apply.

Second, under new paragraph 149(1.3)(b), a person is not exempt because of any of paragraphs 149(1)(d) to (d.6) from tax on taxable income for a period in a taxation year if at any time in the period the person is, or would be if the person were a corporation, controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a person (or by a group of persons that includes a person) other than:

- Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province,
- a municipality in Canada,
- a municipal or public body performing a function of government in Canada, or
- a commission, an association or a corporation, to which any of paragraphs 149(1)(d) to (d.6) apply.

For further details about the expression "controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever", reference should be made to subsections 256(5.1) and (6). In general, the expression refers to a controller, who has any direct or indirect influence that, if exercised, would result in control in fact of the person.

Related Provisions: 256(5.1), (6) — Meaning of "controlled, directly or indirectly".

History: Subsec. 149(1.3) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 178(4), applicable to taxation years and fiscal periods that begin after 1998.

(2) Determination of income — For the purposes of paragraphs (1)(e), (i), (j) and (l), in computing the part, if any, of any income that was payable to or otherwise available for the personal benefit of any person or the total of any amounts that is not less than a percentage specified in any of those paragraphs of any income for a period, the amount of such income shall be deemed to be the amount thereof determined on the assumption that the amount of any taxable capital gain or allowable capital loss is nil.

History: Subsec. 149(2) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 88(2), applicable to 1992 et seq. Subsec. (2) formerly read:

(2) Income not to include taxable capital gains — For the purposes of paragraphs (1)(e), (i), (j) and (l), in computing the part, if any, of any income that was payable to or otherwise available for the personal benefit of any person or the total of any amounts that is not less than a percentage specified in any of those paragraphs of any income for a period, the amount of that income shall be deemed to be the amount thereof otherwise determined less the amount of any taxable capital gains included therein.

(b) there shall be included any amount that has been deducted under this subsection for the immediately preceding taxation year.

(10) Exempt corporations [becoming or ceasing to be exempt] — Where, at any time (in this subsection referred to as "that time"), a corporation becomes or ceases to be exempt from tax under this Part on its taxable income otherwise than by reason of paragraph (1)(t), the following rules apply:

(a) the taxation year of the corporation that would otherwise have included that time is deemed to have ended immediately before that time, a new taxation year of the corporation is deemed to have begun at that time and, for the purpose of determining the taxpayer's fiscal period after that time, the taxpayer is deemed not to have established a fiscal period before that time;

(a.1) for the purpose of computing the corporation's income for its first taxation year ending after that time, the corporation shall be deemed to have deducted under sections 20, 138 and 140 in computing its income for its taxation year ending immediately before that time, the greatest amount that could have been claimed or deducted for that year as a reserve under those sections;

(b) the corporation is deemed to have disposed, at the time (in this subsection referred to as the "disposition time") that is immediately before the time that is immediately before that time, of each property that was owned by it immediately before that time for an amount equal to its fair market value at that time and to have reacquired the property at that time at a cost equal to that fair market value;

(c) for the purposes of applying sections 37, 65 to 66.4, 66.7, 111 and 126, subsections 127(5) to (26) and section 127.3 to the corporation, the corporation is deemed to be a new corporation the first taxation year of which began at that time; and

(c) for the purposes of applying sections 3.7, 65 to 66.4, 66.7, 94.1 to 94.4, 111 and 126, subsections 127(5) to (35) and section 127.3 to the corporation, the corporation is deemed to be a new corporation the first taxation year of which began at that time; and

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), s. 33, will amend para. 149(10)(c) to read as above, applicable to each corporation that, after 2002, becomes or ceases to be exempt from tax on its taxable income under Part I of the Act.

Technical Notes: Subsection 149(10) applies where, at a particular time, a corporation becomes or ceases to be exempt from tax under Part I on its taxable income (otherwise than by reason of the exemption for certain insurers in paragraph 149(1)(t)). A new taxation year is considered to start at the particular time and the corporation's properties are deemed to have been disposed of at fair market value and reacquired at the particular time for the same amount.

Paragraph 149(10)(c) provides that the corporation is, for specified purposes in the Act, treated as a new corporation. One of the specified purposes is with regard to the investment tax credit regime set out in subsections 127(5) to (26).

Paragraph 149(10)(c) is amended so that it is also relevant in applying

- additional rules for the investment tax credit that are set out in subsections 127(27) to (35) (this amendment is consequential on the earlier enactment of those subsections), and
- sections 94.1 to 94.4. (For example, a corporation's "deferral amount" (as defined in subsection 94.2(1)) in respect of any interest it holds in a foreign investment entity is determined without reference to taxation years that occurred before the corporation's change of status. This will typically result in a nil deferral amount for the corporation.)

(d) where, immediately before the disposition time, the corporation's cumulative eligible capital in respect of a business exceeds the total of

(i) 3/4 of the fair market value of the eligible capital property in respect of the business, and

(ii) the amount otherwise deducted under paragraph 20(1)(b) in computing the corporation's income from the business for the taxation year that ended immediately before that time, the excess shall be deducted under paragraph 20(1)(b) in computing the corporation's income from the business for the taxation year that ended immediately before that time.

Related Provisions: 16(2), (3) — Obligation issued at discount; 54"superficial loss"(c), (g) — Superficial loss rule does not apply; 87(2.1)(b) — Losses of predecessor corporation; 89(1.2) — Capital dividend account of corporation ceasing to be tax-exempt; 100 — Disposition of an interest in a partnership; 124(3) — Crown agents; 149(6) — Apportionment rule; 212(14) — Certificate of exemption; 216(1) — Alternative re rents and timber royalties; 219(2) — Exempt corporations; 227(14) — Application of Parts III, IV and VI to certain public corporations.

History: Paras. 149(10)(a), (b) to (d) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsecs. 178(5), (6), applicable to a corporation that becomes or ceases to be exempt from tax on its taxable income under Part I of the Act after April 26, 1995. Those paras. formerly read:

(a) the taxation year of the corporation that would otherwise have included that time shall be deemed to have ended immediately before that time and a new taxation year of the corporation shall be deemed to have commenced at that time;

(b) the corporation shall be deemed to have disposed, immediately before the time that is immediately before that time, of each property (other than, where, at that time, the corporation ceases to be exempt from tax under this Part on its taxable income, a Canadian resource property or a foreign resource property) that was owned by it immediately before that time for an amount equal to its fair market value at that time and to have reacquired the property at that time at a cost equal to that fair market value;

(c) where paragraph (b) applies in respect of depreciable property of the corporation and the capital cost thereof to the corporation immediately before the disposition exceeds the fair market value thereof at that time, for the purposes of sections 13 and 20 and any regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a),

(i) the capital cost of the property to the corporation at that time shall be deemed to be the amount that was its capital cost thereof immediately before the disposition, and

(ii) the excess shall be deemed to have been allowed to the corporation in respect of the property under regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) in computing its income for taxation years ending before that time; and

(d) notwithstanding section 111, no amount is deductible in computing the corporation's taxable income for a taxation year ending after that time in respect of a non-capital loss, net capital loss, restricted farm loss, farm loss or limited partnership loss for a taxation year ending before that time to the extent that the loss could have been applied to reduce the corporation's taxable income for taxation years ending before that time.

(11) [Repealed]

History: Subsec. 149(11) repealed by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 178(7), in force on June 18, 1998. Subsec. 149(11) formerly read:

(11) Exception — Subsection (10) does not apply to a corporation that ceases to be exempt from tax under this Part after November 12, 1981 by reason of control of the corporation being acquired by a person or persons pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into on or before that date.

Proposed Addition — 149(11)

(11) Geographical boundaries — body performing government functions — For the purpose of this section, the geographical boundaries of a municipal or public body performing a function of government are

(a) the geographical boundaries that encompass the area in respect of which an Act of Parliament or an agreement given effect by an Act of Parliament recognizes or grants to the body a power to impose taxes; or

(b) if paragraph (a) does not apply, the geographical boundaries within which that body has been authorized by the laws of Canada or of a province to exercise that function.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 147(6), will add subsec. 149(11), applicable to taxation years that begin after May 8, 2000.

Notwithstanding subsec. 152(4) to (5), any assessment of a taxpayer's tax payable under the Act for any taxation year that began before February 27, 2004 shall be made that is necessary to give effect to the amendment.

Technical Notes: Subsection 149(11) is added to define, for the purposes of section 149, the geographical boundaries of a municipal or public body performing a function of government in Canada. Those boundaries are defined as encompassing the area in respect of which an Act of Parliament or an agreement given effect by an Act of Parliament recognizes or grants to the body a power to impose taxes; or if there has been no such recognition or grant, the area within which the body has been authorized by the laws of Canada or of a province to exercise that function.

For example, if a particular self-governing First Nation meets the definition of "a public body performing a function of government in Canada," it is intended that the relevant geographic boundary would delineate the area where the self-government agreement, or the statute enacting self-government powers, provides the First Nation authority to impose direct taxes. As a second example, if a particular Indian Band meets the definition of "a public body performing a function of government in Canada," it is intended that the geographic boundary of the Indian Band be the band's reserves as defined in the Indian Act. Similarly, if a particular school board meets the definition of "a municipal or public body performing a function of government in Canada" it is intended that the geographic boundary of the school board be the area of jurisdiction of the board as defined by provincial legislation or regulation.

(12) Information returns — Every person who, because of paragraph (1)(e) or (l), is exempt from tax under this Part on all or part of the person's taxable income shall, within 6 months after the end of each fiscal period of the person and without notice or demand therefor, file with the Minister an information return for the period in prescribed form and containing prescribed information, if

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is a taxable dividend or an amount received or receivable by the person as, on account of, in lieu of or in satisfaction of, interest, rentals or royalties in the period exceeds $10,000;

(b) at the end of the person's preceding fiscal period the total assets of the person (determined in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles) exceeded $200,000; or

(c) an information return was required to be filed under this subsection by the person for a preceding fiscal period.

Related Provisions: 149.1(14) — Charity information return; 162(7)(a) — Penalty for failure to file; 233 — Demand for information return.

Proposed Amendment — 149.1(1)"charitable organization" opening words

"charitable organization", at any particular time, means an organization, whether or not incorporated,

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 148(2), will amend the opening words of the definition "charitable organization" in subsec. 149.1(1) to read as above, applicable after 1999.

Technical Notes: See under 149.1(1)"charitable organization"(c), (d) below.

(a) all the resources of which are devoted to charitable activities carried on by the organization itself,

(b) no part of the income of which is payable to, or is otherwise available for, the personal benefit of any proprietor, member, shareholder, trustee or settlor thereof,

Proposed Amendment — 149.1(1)"charitable organization"(c), (d)

(c) more than 50% of the directors, trustees, officers or like officials of which deal at arm's length with each other and with

(i) each of the other directors, trustees, officers and like officials of the organization,

(ii) each person described by subparagraph (d)(i) or (ii), and

(iii) each member of a group of persons (other than Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province, a municipality, another registered charity that is not a private foundation, and any club, society or association described in paragraph 149(1)(l)) who do not deal with each other at arm's length, if the group would, if it were a person, be a person described by subparagraph (d)(i), and

(d) that is not, at the particular time, and would not at the particular time be, if the organization were a corporation, controlled directly or indirectly in any manner whatever

(i) by a person (other than Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province, a municipality, another registered charity that is not a private foundation, and any club, society or association described in paragraph 149(1)(l)),

(A) who immediately after the particular time, has contributed to the organization amounts that are, in total, greater than 50% of the capital of the organization immediately after the particular time, and

(B) who immediately after the person's last contribution at or before the particular time, had contributed to the organization amounts that were, in total, greater than 50% of the capital of the organization immediately after the making of that last contribution, or

(ii) by a person, or by a group of persons that do not deal at arm's length with each other, if the person or any member of the group does not deal

at arm's length with a person described in subparagraph (i);

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 148(3), will amend paras. (c) and (d) of the definition "charitable organization" in subsec. 149.1(1) to read as above, applicable after 1999 except that, in respect of a charitable organization that was not designated before 2000 as a private foundation or a public foundation under subsec. 149.1(6.3) or under subsec. 110(8.1) or (8.2), as enacted by R.S.C. 1952, c. 148 [repealed; see Pre-RSC History to 110(8.1), (8.2) on TaxPartner or taxnet.pro], and has not applied after February 15, 1984 for registration under para. 110(8)(c) of that Act [repealed; see Pre-RSC History to 110(8)] or under the definition "registered charity" in subsec. 248(1), subparas. (c)(ii) and (iii) of the definition "charitable organization", as amended, are applicable after the earlier of the day, if any, on which the organization is designated after 1999 as a private foundation or a public foundation under subsec. 149.1(6.3) and December 31, 2004.

Technical Notes: The definition "charitable organization" provides that more than 50% of the directors, trustees, officers or similar officials of a charitable organization must deal with each other and with each of the other directors, trustees, officers or similar officials at arm's length.

For a charity that has applied for registration after February 15, 1984 and which has been designated as a private or public foundation, the definition "charitable organization" also requires that not more than 50% of the charity's capital be contributed by a person or group of persons not dealing with each other at arm's length. This definition is amended to replace the "contribution" test with a "control" test. As a result, a charity will not be disqualified from being treated as a charitable organization solely because a person, or a group of persons not dealing with each other at arm's length, has contributed more than 50% of the charity's capital. However, such a person or group is not permitted to control the charity in any way, nor may the person or the members of the group represent more than 50% of the directors, trustees, officers and similar officials of the charity.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, September 11, 2001:

Dear [xxx]:

I am responding to your recent inquiry concerning the capital restriction in the definition of charitable organization of not more than 50% of the capital contributed to the organization by one person or a group of persons not dealing at arm's length.

This matter has been brought to our attention recently in the context that it could have unintentional implications prohibiting large one-time donations.

From a tax policy perspective, we agree that the income tax provisions should not have the effect of prohibiting or limiting charitable giving. Under the current definition of "charitable organization", the capital restriction of not more than 50% could unintentionally have that effect.

Consequently, and in light of the other restrictions in the income tax provisions including disbursements requirements, we are recommending to the Minister of Finance that the definition "charitable organization" in subsection 149.1(1) of the Act be amended to ensure that in certain circumstances large donations are not prohibited. In particular, we are recommending the replacement of the current contribution test with a post-donation test. This test will require that, at all times after the donation, any person (or group of persons not dealing at arm's length) contributing more than 50% of the capital of the organization must deal at arm's length with more than half of the directors, trustees and officers of the organization, and must not have any direct or indirect influence over the organization such that, if exercised, it would be reasonable to conclude that the person (or group) controls the organization or one or more activities of the organization.

We are recommending that such an amendment apply for the purpose of determining an organization's status after 1999. If the recommendation is acted upon, we anticipate that the amendment would be included in a future income tax technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division

Technical Notes: The "disbursement quota" for a taxation year of a charitable foundation or organization is defined in subsection 149.1(1) for the purpose of determining the amount that the charity is required to spend on charitable activities or gifts to other charities. One factor in calculating the disbursement quota is a specified proportion of donations for which tax receipts are issued.

The definition "disbursement quota" is amended consequential to the addition of new subsection 248(31), in respect of gifts made after December 20, 2002, to provide that the amount of a gift for which a tax receipt is issued refers to the "eligible amount" of the gift. (a) where the foundation has been registered after February 15, 1984 or designated as a charitable organization or private foundation pursuant to subsection (6.3) or to subsection 110(8.1) or (8.2) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952,

(ii) not more than 75% of the capital contributed or otherwise paid in to the foundation has been so contributed or otherwise paid in by one person or by a group of persons who do not deal with each other at arm's length and, for the purpose of subparagraph (a)(ii), a reference to any person or to members of a group does not include a reference to Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province, a municipality, another registered charity that is not a private foundation, or any club, society or association described in paragraph 149(1)(l);

Proposed Amendment — 149.1(1)"public foundation"

"public foundation", at a particular time, means a charitable foundation

(a) more than 50% of the directors, trustees, officers or like officials of which deal at arm's length with each other and with

(i) each of the other directors, trustees, officers and like officials of the foundation,

(ii) each person described by subparagraph (b)(i) or (ii), and

(iii) each member of a group of persons (other than Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province, a municipality, another registered charity that is not a private foundation, and any club, society or association described in paragraph 149(1)(l)) who do not deal with each other at arm's length, if the group would, if it were a person, be a person described by subparagraph (b)(i), and

(b) that is not, at the particular time, and would not at the particular time be, if the foundation were a corporation, controlled directly or indirectly in any manner whatever

(i) by a person (other than Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province, a municipality, another registered charity that is not a private foundation, and any club, society or association described in paragraph 149(1)(l)),

(A) who immediately after the particular time, has contributed to the foundation amounts that are, in total, greater than 50% of the capital of the foundation immediately after the particular time, and

(B) who immediately after the person's last contribution at or before the particular time, had contributed to the foundation amounts that were, in total, greater than 50% of the capital of the foundation immediately after the making of that last contribution, or

(ii) by a person, or by a group of persons that do not deal at arm's length with each other, if the person or any member of the group does not deal at arm's length with a person described in subparagraph (i);

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 148(1), will amend the definition "public foundation" in subsec. 149.1(1) to read as above, applicable after 1999 except that, in respect of a foundation that has not been designated before 2000 as a private foundation or a charitable organization under subsec. 149.1(6.3) or under subsec. 110(8.1) or (8.2), as enacted by R.S.C. 1952, c. 148 [repealed; see Pre-RSC History to 110(8.1), (8.2) on TaxPartner or taxnet.pro], and has not applied after February 15, 1984 for registration under para. 110(8)(c) of that Act [repealed; see Pre-RSC History to 110(8)] or under the definition "registered charity" in subsec. 248(1), subpara. (a)(iii) and para. (b) of the definition "public foundation", as amended, are in their application before the earlier of the day, if any, on which the foundation is designated after 1999 as a private foundation or a charitable organization under subsec. 149.1(6.3) and January 1, 2005 to be read

(a) without reference to "(other than Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province, a municipality, another registered charity that is not a private foundation, and any club, society or association described in paragraph 149(1)(l))"; and

(b) as if the reference to "50%" in para. (b) of the definition were read as "75%".

Technical Notes: The definition "public foundation" provides that more than 50% of the directors, trustees, officers or similar officials of a public foundation must deal with each other and with each of the other directors, trustees, officers or similar officials at arm's length.

This definition requires that not more than 50% (75% in some cases) of the foundation's capital can be contributed by a person or group of persons not dealing with each together at arm's length. The "contribution" test in the definition is replaced by a "control" test. As a result, a foundation will not be disqualified from being treated as a public foundation solely because a person, or a group of persons not dealing with each other at arm's length, has contributed more than 50% of the foundation's capital. However, such a person or group is not permitted to control the foundation in any way, nor may the person or the members of the group represent more than 50% of the directors, trustees, officers and similar officials of the foundation.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, December 13, 2002:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your letter dated November 14, 2002, in which you requested that the definition of a "public foundation" in the Income Tax Act be amended in a manner similar to the change that has been proposed in respect of charitable organizations.

In particular, we have agreed to recommend an amendment that will replace the current contribution test for charitable organizations with a test applying after a donation is made. Under this test, any person (or group of persons not dealing at arm's length) contributing more than 50% of the capital of the organization must deal at arm's length with more than half of the directors, trustees and officers of the organization, and must not have any direct or indirect influence over the organization such that, if exercised, it would be reasonable to conclude that the person (or group) controls the organization or one or more activities of the organization.

As the policy objectives for rules regarding the control of charitable organizations are similar to those for public foundations, we agree that it would be appropriate to recommend that the definitions of each remain similar in this respect. We will also recommend that such an amendment apply for the purpose of determining a foundation's status after 1999. If the recommendation is acted upon, we anticipate that the amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(1.2) Authority of Minister — For the purposes of the determination of D in the definition "disbursement quota" in subsection (1), the Minister may

(a) authorize a change in the number of periods chosen by a charitable foundation in determining the prescribed amount; and

(b) accept any method for the determination of the fair market value of property or a portion thereof that may be required in determining the prescribed amount.

(2) Revocation of registration of charitable organization — The Minister may, in the manner described in section 168, revoke the registration of a charitable organization for any reason described in subsection 168(1) or where the organization

(b) [effective 2009 for most charitable organizations; see History below — ed.] fails to expend in any taxation year, on charitable activities carried on by it and by way of gifts made by it to qualified donees, amounts the total of which is at least equal to the organization's disbursement quota for that year.

Proposed Addition — 149.1(2)(c)

(9) Idem [— if property not used for indicated purpose] — Property accumulated by a registered charity as provided in subsection (8), including any income earned in respect of that property, that is not used for the particular purpose for which it was accumulated either

(a) before the expiration of any period of time specified by the Minister in the Minister's approval of the accumulation, or

(b) at an earlier time at which the registered charity decides not to use the property for that purpose shall, notwithstanding subsection (8), be deemed to be income of the charity for, and the amount of a gift for which it issued a receipt described in subsection 110.1(2) or 118.1(2) in, its taxation year in which the period referred to in paragraph (a) expires or the time referred to in paragraph (b) occurs, as the case may be.

Proposed Amendment — 149.1(9) closing words

is, notwithstanding subsection (8), deemed to be income of the charity for, and the eligible amount of a gift for which it issued a receipt described in subsection 110.1(2) or 118.1(2) in, its taxation year in which the period referred to in paragraph (a) expires or the time referred to in paragraph (b) occurs, as the case may be.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 148(10), will amend the closing words of subsec. 149.1(9) to read as above, applicable after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 149.1(8) permits a registered charity, with the approval of the Minister of National Revenue, to accumulate property over a specified period for a particular purpose. The amount of such property accumulated is deemed to have been expended in the taxation year of the charity in which it was accumulated. If in fact the charity defaults on this responsibility by not using the property for the approved purpose within the specified period, subsection 149.1(9) treats that property as income of the charity and the amount of a gift for which it issued a receipt. This affects the calculation of the disbursement quota of the charity, with the result that the amount of the property must be actually disbursed in the year following default.

Subsection 149.1(9) is amended consequential to the addition of new subsection 248(31), in respect of gifts made after December 20, 2002, to provide that the amount of a gift for which a tax receipt is issued refers to the "eligible amount" of a gift. For additional information, see the commentary to new subsection 248(31).

Related Provisions: 248(30)–(33) — Determination of eligible amount of gift.

History: That portion of subsec. 149.1(9) following para. (b) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 123(5), applicable to 1988 et seq. That portion formerly read:

shall, notwithstanding subsection (8), be deemed to be income of the charity and the amount of a gift for which it issued a receipt described in paragraph 110.1(1)(a) or subsection 118.1(2) in its taxation year in which the period referred to in paragraph (a) expires if that paragraph is applicable or in which the earlier time referred to in paragraph (b) occurs if that paragraph is applicable.

Registered Charities Newsletters: 22 (permission to accumulate property).

(10) Deemed charitable activity — An amount paid by a charitable organization to a qualified donee that is not paid out of the income of the charitable organization shall be deemed to be a devotion of a resource of the charitable organization to a charitable activity carried on by it.

but, for the purpose of paragraph (3)(c) or (4)(c), as the case may be, a charitable foundation shall be deemed not to have acquired control of a corporation if it has not purchased or otherwise acquired for consideration more than 5% of the issued shares of any class of the capital stock of that corporation;

(b) there shall be included in computing the income of a charity for a taxation year all gifts received by it in the year including gifts from any other charity but not including

(i) a specified gift or a gift referred to in paragraph (a) or (b) of the description of A in the definition "disbursement quota" in subsection (1),

(ii) any gift or portion of a gift in respect of which it is established that the donor is not a charity and

(A) has not been allowed a deduction under paragraph 110.1(1)(a) in computing the donor's taxable income or under subsection 118.1(3) in computing the donor's tax payable under this Part, or

(B) was not taxable under section 2 for the taxation year in which the gift was made, or

(iii) any gift or portion of a gift in respect of which it is established that the donor is a charity and that the gift was not made out of the income of the donor; and

(c) subsections 104(6) and (12) are not applicable in computing the income of a charitable foundation that is a trust.

(15) Information may be communicated — Notwithstanding section 241,

(a) the information contained in a public information return referred to in subsection (14) shall be communicated or otherwise made available to the public by the Minister in such manner as the Minister deems appropriate; and

(b) the Minister may make available to the public in such manner as the Minister deems appropriate an annual listing of all registered or previously registered charities indicating for each the name, location, registration number, date of registration and, in the case of a charity the registration of which has been revoked, annulled or terminated, the effective date of the revocation, annulment or termination.

Proposed Amendment — 149.1(15)(b)

(b) the Minister may make available to the public in any manner that the Minister considers appropriate a listing of all registered, or previously registered, charities and Canadian amateur athletic associations that indicates for each of them

(i) its name and address,

(ii) its registration number and date of registration, and

(iii) the effective date of any revocation, annulment or termination of its registration.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 148(11), will amend para. 149.1(15)(b) to read as above, in force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: Section 241 prohibits the use or communication by an official of information obtained under the Act unless specifically authorized by one of the exceptions found in that section. Paragraph 149.1(15)(b), which deals with charities, provides that, notwithstanding section 241, the Minister of National Revenue may publish a listing of all registered or previously registered charities indicating the name, location, registration number and, where the charity is no longer registered, the effective date of the revocation, annulment or termination of the charity's registration. This provision does not currently allow for the release of similar information in respect of registered Canadian amateur athletic associations. Since taxpayers who make donations to such associations obtain the same tax relief that is available in respect of donations to registered charities and, since subsection 149.1(15) is intended to provide transparency for the benefit of potential donors, paragraph 149.1(15)(b) is amended, effective after Royal Assent to this measure, to allow for the release of such information in respect of Canadian amateur athletic associations.

Related Provisions: 241(3.2) — Additional disclosure permitted of charity information.

(16)–(19) [Repealed under former Act]

(20) Rule regarding disbursement excess — Where a registered charity has expended a disbursement excess for a taxation year, the charity may, for the purpose of determining whether it complies with the requirements of paragraph (2)(b), (3)(b) or (4)(b), as the case may be, for the immediately preceding taxation year of the charity and 5 or less of its immediately subsequent taxation years, include in the computation of the amounts expended on charitable activities carried on by it and by way of gifts made by it to qualified donees, such portion of that disbursement excess as was not so included under this subsection for any preceding taxation year.

Related Provisions: 149.1(21) — "Disbursement excess" defined.

Charities Policies: CPS-009: Holding of property for charities.

Forms: RC4108: Registered charities and the Income Tax Act [guide].

(21) Definition of "disbursement excess" — [effective 2009 for most charitable organizations; see History below — ed.] For the purpose of subsection (20), "disbursement excess", for a taxation year of a charity, means the amount, if any, by which the total of amounts expended in the year by the charity on charitable activities carried on by it and by way of gifts made by it to qualified donees exceeds its disbursement quota for the year.

Related Provisions: 149.1(1.1) — Exclusions; 149.1(20) — Carrying disbursement excess back or forward to another year.

History: Subsec. 149.1(21) amended by 2005, c. 19, subsec. 35(6), applicable to taxation years that begin after March 22, 2004, except that, in its application to a taxation year that begins before 2009 of a charitable organization registered by the Minister of National Revenue before March 23, 2004, the subsec. is to be read as follows:

> (21) For the purpose of subsection (20), "disbursement excess" for a taxation year of a charity means the amount, if any, by which
> (a) the total of amounts expended in the year by the charity on charitable activities carried on by it or by way of gifts made by it to qualified donees

> (c) in the case of a charitable organization, the total of the amounts determined for A, A.1 and B in the definition "disbursement quota" in subsection (1) for the year in respect of the charity.

Proposed Administrative Change — 2D Bar Coding on Paper Returns

CRA Fact Sheet, November 26, 2004: CRA & 2D Bar Coding

For the 2005 tax filing season, the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) will introduce the use of two-dimensional (2D) bar codes for the purpose of processing computer generated paper returns filed by some Canadians.

2D bar codes

Advances in bar code technology in recent years have enabled greater amounts of data storage and retrieval to the point where it is now possible to capture a personal income tax return in a single 2D bar code.

Using 2D bar codes at the CRA

Tax preparers who use certified tax preparation software to generate returns for individuals, but decide to print out the return on paper and mail it to the CRA instead of sending it electronically over the Internet will be the primary users of the 2D bar code system. For the following year, the 2D bar code option will be made available to individual tax filers.

When tax preparers decide to print a copy of the tax return for submission to the CRA, certified tax preparation software will generate a 2D bar code to be printed on the first page of the T1 Individual Income Tax and Benefit Return. This bar code will contain all of the individual identification and financial data necessary for the assessment of the return.

Once the return is received by the CRA, an operator will scan the 2D bar code using a laser beam scanner. The data will then be validated and processed by the same system used to process returns today. In the rare case where the scanning process is unsuccessful, the return will be re-sorted for traditional processing.

Improved efficiencies

The CRA will gain efficiencies from the process of entering tax information from a return into the system being much faster than the traditional keying method, while at the same time eliminating keying errors. Additional efficiencies will be gained from the returns having been prepared by certified commercial software packages.

Paper returns traditionally have a fall-out rate of 45% for additional processing requirements as opposed to the lower rate of between 3% and 5% experienced for electronically filed returns. It is projected that 2D read returns will benefit from this lower rate.

(i) the corporation's capital gains refund (within the meaning assigned by section 131) for the year, and

(ii) the amount that, because of subsection 131(5) or, where the corporation is a prescribed labour-sponsored venture capital corporation, because of subsection 131(11), is the corporation's dividend refund (within the meaning assigned by section 129) for the year,

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), s. 150, will amend para. 157(3)(c) to read as above, applicable to 1999 et seq.

Technical Notes: Section 157 requires a corporation to pay monthly instalments of its total tax payable under Parts I, I.3, VI, VI.1 and XIII.1 of the Act. Subsection 157(3) allows corporations to reduce each monthly instalment by 1/12 of the amount of certain tax refunds, including the "dividend refund" under section 129. For most mutual fund corporations, the dividend refund amount is computed according to rules set out in subsection 131(5). Paragraph 157(3)(c), which allows a mutual fund corporation to apply its dividend refund to reduce its instalments, therefore refers to subsection 131(5). However, prescribed labour-sponsored venture capital corporations (LSVCCs), which are by definition mutual fund corporations, do not use subsection 131(5) to compute their dividend refunds — instead, they use special rules in subsection 131(11). To ensure that subsection 157(3) applies appropriately to LSVCCs, this amendment adds to paragraph 157(3)(c) a reference to subsection 131(11).

(d) where the corporation is a non-resident-owned investment corporation, 1/12 of the corporation's allowable refund (within the meaning assigned by section 133) for the year, and

(e) 1/12 of the total of the amounts each of which is deemed by subsection 125.4(3), 125.5(3), 127.1(1) or 127.41(3) to have been paid on account of the corporation's tax payable under this Part for the year.

Related Provisions: 131(5) — Dividend refund to mutual fund corporation; 136 — Cooperative not private corporation — exception.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 3 — bijuralism), s. 252, will amend subsecs. 160.1(2.1) and (2.2) by substituting "jointly and severally, or solidarily," for "jointly and severally", to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

(3) Assessment — The Minister may at any time assess a taxpayer in respect of any amount payable by the taxpayer because of subsection (1) or (1.1) or for which the taxpayer is liable because of subsection (2.1) or (2.2), and this Division applies, with such modifications as the circumstance require, in respect of an assessment made under this section as though it were made under section 152.

Proposed Amendment — 160.1(3)

(3) Assessment — The Minister may at any time assess a taxpayer in respect of any amount payable by the taxpayer because of subsection (1) or (1.1) or for which the taxpayer is liable because of subsection (2.1) or (2.2), and the provisions of this Division (including, for greater certainty, the provisions in respect of interest payable) apply, with any modifications that the circumstances require, in respect of an assessment made under this section, as though it were made under section 152 in respect of taxes payable under this Part, except that no interest is payable on an amount assessed in respect of an excess referred to in subsection (1) that can reasonably be considered to arise as a consequence of the operation of section 122.5 or 122.61.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), s. 153, will amend subsec. 160.1(3) to read as above, applicable to assessments made after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 160.1(3) allows the Minister of National Revenue to assess a taxpayer in respect of excess refunds and overpayments for which the taxpayer is jointly and severally liable under subsection 160.1(1), (1.1), (2.1) or (2.2). Subsection 160.1(3) is amended, in respect of such assessments made after December 20, 2002, to clarify that such an assessment is subject to interest, except that no interest is payable to the extent that the excess refund is attributable to the overpayment of a GST tax credit or a child tax benefit. [This overrules Algoa Trust, [1998] 4 C.T.C. 2001 (TCC), decided under 160(1) — ed.]

Selected Cases [subsec. 160.1(3)]: Matte v. R., [2004] 1 C.T.C. 2823 (TCC) (Interest applicable to excess refunds, even if such refunds applied against other tax debts).

(4) Where amount applied to liability — Where an amount is applied to a liability of a taxpayer to Her Majesty in right of Canada in excess of the amount to which the taxpayer is entitled as a refund under this Act, this section applies as though that amount had been refunded to the taxpayer on the day on which it was so applied.

History [s. 160.1]: Subsec. 160.1(1.1) amended and subsec. (1.2) added by 2002, c. 9, s. 43, applicable to amounts deemed to be paid during months specified for 2001 et seq. Subsec. (1.1) formerly read:

Subsec. 160.1(4) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 132(2), applicable to 1990 et seq.

Definitions [s. 160.1]: "amount", "assessment" — 248(1); "child" — 252(1); "cohabiting spouse or common-law partner" — 122.6; "common-law partner", "common-law partnership" — 248(1); "Her Majesty" — Interpretation Act 35(1); "individual", "Minister" — 248(1); "months specified" — 122.5(4); "person" — 248(1); "prescribed rate" — Reg. 4301; "qualified relation" — 122.5(1); "taxation year" — 249; "taxpayer" — 248(1).

160.2 (1) Joint and several liability in respect of amounts received out of or under RRSP — Where

(a) an amount is received out of or under a registered retirement savings plan by a taxpayer other than an annuitant (within the meaning assigned by subsection 146(1)) under the plan, and

(b) that amount or part thereof would, but for paragraph (a) of the definition "benefit" in subsection 146(1), be received by the taxpayer as a benefit (within the meaning assigned by that definition), the taxpayer and the last annuitant under the plan are jointly and severally liable to pay a part of the annuitant's tax under this Part for the year of the annuitant's death equal to that proportion of the amount by which the annuitant's tax for the year is greater than it would have been if it were not for the operation of subsection 146(8.8) that the total of all amounts each of which is an amount determined under paragraph (b) in respect of the taxpayer is of the amount included in computing the annuitant's income by virtue of that subsection, but nothing in this subsection shall be deemed to limit the liability of the annuitant under any other provision of this Act.

Proposed Amendment — 160.2(1) closing words

the taxpayer and the last annuitant under the plan are jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable to pay a part of the annuitant's tax under this Part for the year of the annuitant's death equal to that proportion of the amount by which the annuitant's tax for the year is greater than it would have been if it were not for the operation of subsection 146(8.8) that the total of all amounts each of which is an amount determined under paragraph (b) in respect of the taxpayer is of the amount included in computing the annuitant's income because of that subsection, but nothing in this subsection limits the liability of the annuitant under any other provision of this Act or of the taxpayer for the interest that the taxpayer is liable to pay under this Act on an assessment in respect of the amount that the taxpayer is liable to pay because of this subsection.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 154(1), will amend the closing words of subsec. 160.2(1) to read as above, applicable to assessments made after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 160.2(1) provides that a taxpayer who receives benefits out of another person's registered retirement savings plan is jointly and severally liable for the portion of that other person's tax that is attributable to those benefits. Subsection 160.2(2) provides a similar result with respect to benefits received out of another person's registered retirement income fund. The Minister may assess the taxpayer for such a liability under subsection 160.2(3).

Subsections 160.2(1), (2) and (3) are amended, in respect of assessments made after December 20, 2002, to clarify that the assessment is subject to interest, without any limit on the amount of interest for which the taxpayer may be liable. [This overrules Algoa Trust, [1998] 4 C.T.C. 2001 (TCC), decided under 160(1) — ed.]

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-500R: RRSPs — death of an annuitant.

(2) Joint and several liability in respect of amounts received out of or under RRIF — Where

(a) an amount is received out of or under a registered retirement income fund by a taxpayer other than an annuitant (within the meaning assigned by subsection 146.3(1)) under the fund, and

(b) that amount or part thereof would, but for paragraph 146.3(5)(a), be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year of receipt pursuant to subsection 146.3(5), the taxpayer and the annuitant are jointly and severally liable to pay a part of the annuitant's tax under this Part for the year of the annuitant's death equal to that proportion of the amount by which the annuitant's tax for the year is greater than it would have been if it were not for the operation of subsection 146.3(6) that the amount determined under paragraph (b) is of the amount included in computing the annuitant's income by virtue of that subsection, but nothing in this subsection shall be deemed to limit the liability of the annuitant under any other provision of this Act.

Proposed Amendment — 160.2(2) closing words

the taxpayer and the annuitant are jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable to pay a part of the annuitant's tax under this Part for the year of the annuitant's death equal to that proportion of the amount by which the annuitant's tax for the year is greater than it would have been if it were not for the operation of subsection 146.3(6) that the amount determined under paragraph (b) is of the amount included in computing the annuitant's income because of that subsection, but nothing in this subsection limits the liability of the annuitant under any other provision of this Act or of the taxpayer for the interest that the taxpayer is liable to pay under this Act on an assessment in respect of the amount that the taxpayer is liable to pay because of this subsection.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 154(2), will amend the closing words of subsec. 160.2(2) to read as above, applicable to assessments made after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: See under 160.2(1) closing words.

Proposed Addition — 160.2(2.1), (2.2)

(2.1) Joint and several liability in respect of a qualifying trust annuity — Where a taxpayer is deemed by section 75.2 to have received at any time an amount out of or under an annuity that is a qualifying trust annuity with respect to the taxpayer, the taxpayer, the annuitant under the annuity and the policyholder are jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable to pay the part of the taxpayer's tax under this Part for the taxation year of the taxpayer that includes that time that is equal to the amount, if any, determined by the formula

where

A is the amount of the taxpayer's tax under this Part for that taxation year, and

B is the amount that would be the taxpayer's tax under this Part for that taxation year if no amount were deemed by section 75.2 to have been received by the taxpayer out of or under the annuity in that taxation year.

Related Provisions: 160.2(2.2) — No limitation on liability; 160.2(5) — Rules applicable when (2.1) applies.

(2.2) No limitation on liability — Subsection (2.1) limits neither

(a) the liability of the taxpayer referred to in subsection (2.1) under any other provision of this Act; nor

(b) the liability of an annuitant or policyholder referred to in subsection (2.1) for the interest that the annuitant or policyholder is liable to pay under this Act on an assessment in respect of the amount that the annuitant or policyholder is liable to pay because of that subsection.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 154(3), will add subsecs. 160.2(2.1) and (2.2), applicable to assessments made after 2005.

Technical Notes: New subsection 160.2(2.1) applies to annuities that are "qualifying trust annuities" with respect to a taxpayer (as defined in new subsection 60.011(2)).

A distinguishing feature of a qualifying trust annuity with respect to a taxpayer is that the annuitant thereunder is a trust under which the taxpayer is a beneficiary. Such an annuity will typically be acquired and held either by the trust that is the annuitant under the annuity, or by the estate of a deceased spouse, common-law partner, parent or grandparent of the taxpayer which acquired the annuity with proceeds received from a registered retirement savings plan or registered retirement income fund of the deceased individual or from a registered pension plan in which the deceased individual participated.

Where the cost of a qualifying trust annuity with respect to a taxpayer is deductible by the taxpayer under paragraph 60(l) and the taxpayer has not died before 2006, new section 75.2 deems amounts payable out of or under the annuity after 2005 and before the taxpayer's death to have been received by the taxpayer. Section 75.2 also deems the taxpayer to have received, immediately before death, an amount out of or under the annuity equal to the fair market value of the annuity. By virtue of paragraph 56(1)(d.2), the taxpayer is required to include these amounts in computing income under Part I.

New subsection 160.2(2.1) provides that, where a taxpayer is deemed by section 75.2 to have received an amount from a qualifying trust annuity, the annuitant and the policyholder (which may be one and the same) are jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable for the portion of the taxpayer's tax that is attributable to the amounts that the taxpayer is deemed to have received from the annuity. The Minister of National Revenue may reassess the annuitant and the policyholder for such a liability under subsection 160.2(3).

New subsection 160.2(2.2) provides that the provisions of new subsection 160.2(2.1), which make the annuitant and policyholder of a "qualifying trust annuity" with respect to a taxpayer (as defined in new subsection 60.011(2)) jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable for a portion of the taxpayer's tax, do not limit the liability of the taxpayer under any provision of the Act. It also provides that there is no limitation on the liability of the annuitant or policyholder for the interest for which the annuitant or policyholder is liable under the Act on an assessment in respect of an amount that the annuitant or policyholder is liable to pay because of subsection 160.2(2.1).

(3) Minister may assess recipient — The Minister may at any time assess a taxpayer in respect of any amount payable by virtue of this section and the provisions of this Division are applicable, with such modifications as the circumstances require, in respect of an assessment made under this section as though it had been made under section 152.

(3) Assessment — The Minister may at any time assess a taxpayer in respect of any amount payable because of this section, and the provisions of this Division (including, for greater certainty, the provisions in respect of interest payable) apply, with any modifications that the circumstances require, in respect of an assessment made under this section as though it had been made under section 152 in respect of taxes payable under this Part.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 154(4), will amend subsec. 160.2(3) to read as above, applicable to assessments made after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: See under 160.2(1) closing words.

(4) Rules applicable — Where a taxpayer and an annuitant have, by virtue of subsection (1) or (2), become jointly and severally liable in respect of part or all of a liability of the annuitant under this Act, the following rules apply:

Proposed Amendment — 160.2(4) opening words

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 3 — bijuralism), subsec. 253(1), will amend the opening words of subsec. 160.2(4) by substituting "jointly and severally, or solidarily," for "jointly and severally", to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

(a) a payment by the taxpayer on account of the taxpayer's liability shall to the extent thereof discharge the joint liability; but

Proposed Amendment — 160.2(4)(a)

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 3 — bijuralism), subsec. 253(2), will amend para. 160.2(4)(a) by substituting "their liability" for "the joint liability", to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

(b) a payment by the annuitant on account of the annuitant's liability only discharges the taxpayer's liability to the extent that the payment operates to reduce the annuitant's liability to an amount less than the amount in respect of which the taxpayer was, by subsection (1) or (2), as the case may be, made jointly and severally liable.

Proposed Amendment — 160.2(4)(b)

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 3 — bijuralism), subsec. 253(3), will amend para. 160.2(4)(a) substituting "jointly and severally, or solidarily," for "jointly and severally", to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

Proposed Addition — 160.2(5)

(5) Rules applicable — qualifying trust annuity — Where an annuitant or policyholder has, because of subsection (2.1), become jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable with a taxpayer in respect of part or all of a liability of the taxpayer under this Act, the following rules apply:

(a) a payment by the annuitant on account of the annuitant's liability, or by the policyholder on account of the policyholder's liability, shall to the extent of the payment discharge their liability, but

(b) a payment by the taxpayer on account of the taxpayer's liability only discharges the annuitant's and the policyholder's liability to the extent that the payment operates to reduce the taxpayer's liability to an amount less than the amount in respect of which the annuitant and the policyholder were, by subsection (2.1), made liable.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 154(5), will add subsec. 160.2(5), applicable to assessments made after 2005.

Technical Notes: New subsection 160.2(5) provides that a payment by the annuitant or policyholder of a "qualifying trust annuity" with respect to a taxpayer (as defined in new subsection 60.011(2)), on account of the annuitant's or policyholder's joint liability for a portion of the taxpayer's tax, directly reduces the joint liability to the extent of the payment. However, a payment by the taxpayer on account of the taxpayer's tax liability reduces the joint liability of the annuitant and the policyholder only to the extent that the payment reduces the total liability of the taxpayer to an amount that is less than the amount in respect of which the annuitant and policyholder were made jointly liable under subsection 160.2(2.1).

Definitions [s. 160.2]: "amount", "annuity", "assessment", "Minister" — 248(1); "qualifying trust annuity" — 60.011(2), 248(1); "registered retirement income fund" — 146.3(1), 248(1); "registered retirement savings plan" — 146(1), 248(1); "taxation year" — 249; "taxpayer" — 248(1).

Interpretation Bulletins [s. 160.2]: IT-500R: RRSPs — death of an annuitant.

160.3 (1) Liability in respect of amounts received out of or under RCA trust — Where an amount required to be included in the income of a taxpayer by virtue of paragraph 56(1)(x) is received by a person with whom the taxpayer is not dealing at arm's length, that person is jointly and severally liable with the taxpayer to pay a part of the taxpayer's tax under this Part for the taxation year in which the amount is received equal to the amount by which the taxpayer's tax for the year exceeds the amount that would be the taxpayer's tax for the year if the amount had not been received, but nothing in this subsection shall be deemed to limit the liability of the taxpayer under any other provision of this Act.

(2) Minister may assess recipient — The Minister may at any time assess a person in respect of any amount payable by the person by virtue of this section and the provisions of this Division are applicable, with such modifications as the circumstances require, in respect of an assessment made under this section as though it had been made under section 152.

160.3 (1) Liability in respect of amounts received out of or under RCA trust — If an amount required to be included in the income of a taxpayer because of paragraph 56(1)(x) is received by a person with whom the taxpayer is not dealing at arm's length, that person is jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable with the taxpayer to pay a part of the taxpayer's tax under this Part for the taxation year in which the amount is received equal to the amount by which the taxpayer's tax for the year exceeds the amount that would be the taxpayer's tax for the year if the amount had not been received, but nothing in this subsection limits the liability of the taxpayer under any other provision of this Act or of the person for the interest that the person is liable to pay under this Act on an assessment in respect of the amount that the person is liable to pay because of this subsection.

(2) Assessment — The Minister may at any time assess a person in respect of any amount payable because of this section, and the provisions of this Division (including, for greater certainty, the provisions in respect of interest payable) apply, with any modifications that the circumstances require, in respect of an assessment made under this section as though it had been made under section 152 in respect of taxes payable under this Part.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), s. 155, will amend subsecs. 160.3(1) and (2) to read as above, applicable to assessments made after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 160.3(1) provides that a person who receives benefits from a retirement compensation arrangement that relate to another taxpayer's employment is jointly and severally liable for the portion of that other taxpayer's tax that is attributable to such benefits. The Minister of National Revenue may assess the person for such a liability under subsection 160.3(2). Subsections 160.3(1) and (2) are amended, in respect of assessments made after December 20, 2002, to clarify that such an assessment is subject to interest, without any limit on the amount of interest for which the person may be liable. [This overrules Algoa Trust, [1998] 4 C.T.C. 2001 (TCC), decided under 160(1) — ed.]

(3) Rules applicable — Where a taxpayer and another person have, by virtue of subsection (1), become jointly and severally liable in respect of part or all of a liability of the taxpayer under this Act, the following rules apply:

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

(b) a payment by the taxpayer on account of the taxpayer's liability only discharges the other person's liability to the extent that the payment operates to reduce the taxpayer's liability to an amount less than the amount in respect of which the other person was, by subsection (1), made jointly and severally liable.

160.4 (1) Liability in respect of transfers by insolvent corporations — Where property is transferred at any time by a corporation to a taxpayer with whom the corporation does not deal at arm's length at that time and the corporation is not entitled because of subsection 61.3(3) to deduct an amount under section 61.3 in computing its income for a taxation year because of the transfer or because of the transfer and one or more other transactions, the taxpayer is jointly and severally liable with the corporation to pay an amount of the corporation's tax under this Part for the year equal to the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at that time exceeds the fair market value at that time of the consideration given for the property, but nothing in this subsection limits the liability of the corporation under any other provision of this Act.

160.4 (1) Liability in respect of transfers by insolvent corporations — If property is transferred at any time by a corporation to a taxpayer with whom the corporation does not deal at arm's length at that time and the corporation is not entitled because of subsection 61.3(3) to deduct an amount under section 61.3 in computing its income for a taxation year because of the transfer or because of the transfer and one or more other transactions, the taxpayer is jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable with the corporation to pay the lesser of the corporation's tax payable under this Part for the year and the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at that time exceeds the fair market value at that time of the consideration given for the property, but nothing in this subsection limits the liability of the corporation under any other provision of this Act or of the taxpayer for the interest that the taxpayer is liable to pay under this Act on an assessment in respect of the amount that the taxpayer is liable to pay because of this subsection.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 156(1), will amend subsec. 160.4(1) to read as above, applicable to assessments made after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 160.4(1) applies where a transfer of property has been made by a corporation and, as a consequence of the transfer (or the transfer combined with other transactions), the corporation is precluded under subsection 61.3(3) from deducting an amount under section 61.3. Where this is the case, the transferee is jointly and severally liable with the transferor under subsection 160.4(1) for the transferor's tax under Part I of the Act for the first taxation year of the transferor that ends after the time of the transfer and for preceding taxation years. The liability of the transferee applies up to the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at the time of the transfer exceeds the fair market value of the consideration given for the property transferred.

In addition, subsection 160.4(2) provides for joint and several liability of subsequent non-arm's length transferees for the corporation's Part I tax if the original transferee makes a further non-arm's length transfer and one of the reasons that the transfer was made was to prevent the enforcement of section 160.4.

Under subsection 160.4(3), the Minister of National Revenue may assess a transferee for a liability arising under subsections 160.4(1) or (2).

Subsections 160.4(1), (2) and (3) are amended, in respect of assessments made after December 20, 2002, to clarify that such an assessment is subject to interest, without any limit on the amount of interest for which the transferee may be liable. [This overrules Algoa Trust, [1998] 4 C.T.C. 2001 (TCC), decided under 160(1) — ed.]

(b) the transferor is liable because of subsection (1) or this subsection to pay an amount of the tax of another person (in this subsection referred to as the "debtor") under this Part, and

(c) it can reasonably be considered that one of the reasons of the transfer would, but for this subsection, be to prevent the enforcement of this section, the transferee is jointly and severally liable with the transferor and the debtor to pay an amount of the debtor's tax under this Part equal to the lesser of the amount of such tax that the transferor was liable to pay at that time and the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at that time exceeds the fair market value at that time of the consideration given for the property, but nothing in this subsection limits the liability of the debtor or the transferor under any provision of this Act.

Proposed Amendment — 160.4(2) closing words

the transferee is jointly and severally, or solidarily, liable with the transferor and the debtor to pay an amount of the debtor's tax under this Part equal to the lesser of the amount of that tax that the transferor was liable to pay at that time and the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property at that time exceeds the fair market value at that time of the consideration given for the property, but nothing in this subsection limits the liability of the debtor or the transferor under any provision of this Act or of the transferee for the interest that the transferee is liable to pay under this Act on an assessment in respect of the amount that the transferee is liable to pay because of this subsection.

(i) is computed on an amount refunded to the corporation, or

(ii) would be computed on an amount to which the corporation is entitled, if that amount were refunded to the corporation; and Related Provisions: 248(11) — Interest compounded daily.

(6) Consequential reallocations — If a particular reallocation of an accumulated overpayment amount under subsection (4) results in a new accumulated overpayment amount of the corporation for a period, the new accumulated overpayment amount shall not be reallocated under this section unless the corporation so applies in its application for the particular reallocation.

(7) Assessments — Notwithstanding subsections 152(4), (4.01) and (5), the Minister shall assess or reassess interest and penalties payable by a corporation in respect of any taxation year as necessary in order to take into account a reallocation of amounts under this section.

Proposed Amendment — Extension of s. 161.1 to individuals

Notice of Ways and Means Motion, federal budget, February 28, 2000: Offsetting of Interest on Personal Tax Overpayments and Underpayments

(23) That, for individuals other than trusts, the taxable amount of refund interest accruing over any period after 1999 on overpayments of income tax be reduced by the amount of any arrears interest accruing over the same period on unpaid income tax.

Federal budget, supplementary information, February 28, 2000: Offsetting of Interest on Personal Tax Overpayments and Underpayments

An individual who has made an overpayment of income tax may be entitled to receive refund interest from the government on the overpayment. Refund interest is included in income for tax purposes, in the same manner as interest from other sources.

If, on the other hand, an individual has failed to pay an amount of income tax when due, the individual is required to pay arrears interest to the government. Arrears interest is not deductible in computing a taxpayer's income for tax purposes.

The taxation of refund interest and non-deductibility of arrears interest can produce inappropriate results in situations where an individual who owes interest on unpaid tax from one taxation year is concurrently owed interest on a tax overpayment from a different taxation year. In this circumstance, the cost of the non-deductible interest payable by the individual exceeds the after-tax value of the taxable interest receivable by the individual. In many instances, this difference results from the non-deductibility of interest paid and the inclusion in income of interest received.

This budget proposes a relieving mechanism for these individuals. Refund interest accruing over a period will be taxable only to the extent that it exceeds any arrears interest that accrued over the same period to which the refund interest relates. As under current practice, the individual's notice of assessment will indicate the full amount of refund interest. In addition, the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency will issue an information slip indicating the amount, if any, of the refund interest that must be included in the individual's income for tax purposes.

This measure will apply to individuals other than trusts in respect of arrears and refund interest amounts that accrue concurrently after 1999, regardless of the taxation year to which the amounts relate.

Dept. of Finance news release 2000-101 Backgrounder, December 21, 2000: Offset Interest

The 2000 budget proposed an interest offset mechanism in respect of overpayments and underpayments of tax by individuals. The Department of Finance and the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency are working to develop a mechanism under which this proposal can be given effect, for implementation at the earliest opportunity.

Proposed Amendment — 162(10.1)A(d)

(d) where the return is required to be filed under section 233.2 in respect of a trust, 5% of the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at the time it was made, of a contribution of the person or partnership made to the trust before the end of the last taxation year of the trust in respect of which the return is required,

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 36(2), will amend para. (d) of the description of A in subsec. 162(10.1) to read as above, applicable to returns in respect of taxation years that begin after 2002, and to returns in respect of taxation years that begin

(a) after 2000, if the return relates to a trust that makes a valid election under para. (a) of the Application of the amendment to s. 94; and

(b) after 2001, if the return relates to a trust that makes a valid election under para. (a) or (b) of the Application of the amendment to s. 94.

Technical Notes: Subsection 162(10.1) imposes a penalty on any person or partnership that is more than 24 months late in filing an information return that the person or partnership was required to file under any of sections 233.1 to 233.4. (This penalty applies in addition to the penalties imposed under subsections 162(7) and (10).)

The penalty imposed under subsection 162(10.1) with respect to a particular information return is equal to a specified amount less the amount of the penalties imposed under subsections 162(7) and (10) with respect to the return. The specified amount with respect to an information return for a trust required to be filed by a person or partnership under section 233.2 is equal to 5% of the total fair market value of any property transferred or loaned to the trust that, if no other loan or transfer were taken into account, would have imposed an obligation on the person or partnership to file the return.

Subsection 162(10.1) is amended, as a consequence of amendments made to section 233.2, by changing the manner in which the specified amount is determined. The specified amount is now to be determined with reference to the fair market value of "contributions" made by the person or partnership to the trust.

(e) where the return is required to be filed under section 233.3 for a taxation year or fiscal period, 5% of the greatest of all amounts each of which is the total of the cost amounts to the person or partnership at any time in the year or period of a specified foreign property (as defined by subsection 233.3(1)) of the person or partnership, and

(f) where the return is required to be filed under section 233.4 for a taxation year or fiscal period in respect of a foreign affiliate of the person or partnership, 5% of the greatest of all amounts each of which is the total of the cost amounts to the person or partnership at any time in the year or period of a property of the person or partnership that is a share of the capital stock or indebtedness of the affiliate, and

B is the total of the penalties to which the person or partnership is liable under subsections (7) and (10) in respect of the return.

Related Provisions: 162(7) — Initial calculation of penalty; 162(10.11) — Application to trust contribution; 162(10.2) — Shares or debt owned by controlled foreign affiliate; 162(10.3) — Application to partnership; 162(10.4) — Application to non-resident trust; 163(2.4)–(2.91) — Penalty for false statement or omission in return; 233.2(4.1) — Foreign arrangements similar to trusts; 233.5 — Due diligence defence to penalty; 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

History: Subsec. 162(10.1) added by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 51(3), applicable to returns required to be filed on or before a day that is after April 29, 1998.

Proposed Addition — 162(10.11)

(10.11) Application to trust contributions — In paragraph (d) of the description of A in subsection (10.1), subsections 94(1), (2) and (9) apply, except that the references to the expression "(other than a restricted property)" in the definition "arm's length transfer" in subsection 94(1) are to be read as references to the expression "(other than property that is not described in any of subclauses (b)(i)(A)(I) to (III) but to which paragraph 94(2)(g) applies)".

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 36(3), will add subsec. 162(10.11), applicable on the same basis as the amendment to 162(10.1)A(d).

Technical Notes: New subsection 162(10.11) provides that, for the purpose of the calculation in subsection 162(10.1), the definitions and rules in subsections 94(1), (2) and (9) generally apply. Subsection 162(10.11) is similar to amended subsection 233.2(2), described in greater detail in the commentary [to 233.2 — ed.].

(10.2) Shares or debt owned by controlled foreign affiliate — For the purpose of paragraph (f) of the description of A in subsection (10.1),

(a) shares or indebtedness owned by a controlled foreign affiliate of a person or partnership are deemed to be owned by the person or partnership; and

(b) the cost amount at any time of such shares or indebtedness to the person or partnership is deemed to be equal to 20% of the cost amount at that time to the controlled foreign affiliate of the shares or indebtedness.

(10.3) Application to partnerships — For the purposes of paragraph (f) of the description of A in subsection (10.1) and subsection (10.2), in determining whether a non-resident corporation or trust is a foreign affiliate or a controlled foreign affiliate of a partnership,

Proposed Amendment — 162(10.3) opening words

(10.3) Application to partnerships — For the purposes of paragraph (f) of the description of A in subsection (10.1) and subsection (10.2), in determining whether a non-resident corporation is a foreign affiliate or a controlled foreign affiliate of a partnership,

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 36(4), will amend the opening words of subsec. 162(10.3) to read as above, applicable on the same basis as the amendment to 162(10.1)A(d).

Technical Notes: Existing paragraph 94(1)(d) provides for non-resident trusts to be treated as foreign affiliates. It is being repealed as a consequence of the introduction of new rules for non-resident trusts in section 94. Subsections 162(10.3) and (10.4) are rules that affect the calculation of penalty tax in respect of a person's or partnership's failure to file a return in respect of a foreign affiliate.

Subsections 163(2.6) and (2.91) are similar provisions that affect the calculation of penalty tax in respect of false statements and omissions in such a return.

Subsections 162(10.3) and 163(2.6) are amended to reflect the changes to section 94 under which non-resident trusts are no longer treated as foreign affiliates. Subsections 162(10.4) and 163(2.91) are repealed for the same reason.

(a) the definitions "direct equity percentage" and "equity percentage" in subsection 95(4) shall be read as if a partnership were a person; and

(b) the definitions "controlled foreign affiliate" and "foreign affiliate" in subsection 95(1) shall be read as if a partnership were a taxpayer resident in Canada.

History: Subsec. 162(10.3) added by 1997, c. 25, subsec. 51(3), applicable to returns required to be filed on or before a day that is after April 29, 1998.

(10.4) Application to non-resident trusts — For the purposes of this subsection, paragraph (f) of the description of A in subsection (10.1) and subsection (10.2),

(a) a non-resident trust is deemed to be a controlled foreign affiliate of each beneficiary of which the trust is a controlled foreign affiliate for the purpose of section 233.4;

(b) the trust is deemed to be a non-resident corporation having a capital stock of a single class divided into 100 issued shares;

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), s. 158, will amend para. 163(2)(c.1) to read as above, applicable to amounts deemed to be paid during months specified for 2001 et seq.

Technical Notes: Subsection 163(2) imposes a penalty where a taxpayer knowingly, or in circumstances amounting to gross negligence, participates in or makes a false statement for the purposes of the Act. The penalty is determined with reference to the understatement of tax or the overstatement of amounts deemed to be paid on account of tax. Paragraph 163(2)(c.1) imposes a penalty where the false statement relates to the goods and services tax credit (GSTC).

The GSTC provisions were recently amended (S.C. 2002, chapter 9, formerly Bill C-49) to make the credit more responsive to changes in family circumstances by providing that the eligibility to the credit and the amount paid in each quarter reflect such changes that occurred before the end of the preceding quarter rather than in the preceding taxation year.

Paragraph 163(2)(c.1) is amended to reflect the new quarterly calculation of the GSTC.

(c.2) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount that would be deemed under subsection 122.51(2) to be paid on account of the person's tax payable under this Part for the year if the amount were calculated by reference to the information provided in the return

(d) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount that would be deemed by subsection 127.1(1) to be paid for the year by the person if that amount were calculated by reference to the information provided in the return or form filed for the year pursuant to that subsection

exceeds

(ii) the amount that is deemed by that subsection to be paid for the year by the person,

(e) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount that would be deemed by subsection 127.41(3) to have been paid for the year by the person if that amount were calculated by reference to the person's claim for the year under that subsection

exceeds

(ii) the maximum amount that the person is entitled to claim for the year under subsection 127.41(3),

(f) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount that would be deemed by subsection 125.4(3) to have been paid for the year by the person if that amount were calculated by reference to the information provided in the return filed for the year pursuant to that subsection

(ii) the amount that is deemed by that subsection to be paid for the year by the person, and

(g) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount that would be deemed by subsection 125.5(3) to have been paid for the year by the person if that amount were calculated by reference to the information provided in the return filed for the year pursuant to that subsection

(ii) the amount that is deemed by that subsection to be paid for the year by the person.

(ii) 5% of the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value of property transferred or loaned (determined as of the time of the transfer or loan) because of which there would, if no other transfer or loan were taken into account, be an obligation to file the return;

Proposed Amendment — 163(2.4)(b)

(b) where the return is required to be filed under section 233.2 in respect of a trust, the greater of

(i) $24,000, and

(ii) 5% of the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at the time it was made, of a contribution of the person or partnership made to the trust before the end of the last taxation year of the trust in respect of which the return is required;

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 37(1), will amend para. 163(2.4)(b) to read as above, applicable to returns in respect of trust taxation years that begin after 2002, and to returns in respect of trust taxation years that begin

(b) after 2001, if the return relates to a trust that makes a valid election under para. (a) or (b) of the Application of the amendment to s. 94.

Technical Notes: Subsection 163(2.4) imposes a penalty on any person or partnership that, knowingly or under circumstances amounting to gross negligence, has made or has participated in, assented to, or acquiesced in, the making of a false statement or omission in a return required to be filed under any of sections 233.1 to 233.6. The penalty under paragraph 163(2.4)(b) relates to a return required to be filed under section 233.2. The existing penalty is the greater of $24,000 and 5% of the total fair market value of the property that the person or partnership loaned or transferred to the trust that gave rise to the obligation to file.

Paragraph 163(2.4)(b) is amended as a consequence of changes made to the non-resident trust rules in section 94 and the annual reporting requirement in respect of non-resident trusts under section 233.2. Under amended section 233.2, a person is subject to the annual reporting requirement where the person makes a "contribution" to the trust.

Accordingly, amended paragraph 163(2.4)(b) provides for a penalty for a person equal the greater of $24,000 and a specified amount in respect of the return. The specified amount for a person is essentially equal to 5% of the fair market value of "contributions" made by the person. The specified amount is calculated in the same way as the specified amount under amended subsection 162(10.1) in respect of late-filed returns. Under new subsection 163(2.41), the definitions and rules in subsections 94(1), (2) and (9) generally apply. Subsection 163(2.41) is similar to amended subsection 233.2(2), described in greater detail in the commentary below.

(c) where the return is required to be filed under section 233.3 for a taxation year or fiscal period, the greater of

(i) $24,000, and

(ii) 5% of the greatest of all amounts each of which is the total of the cost amounts to the person or partnership at any time in the year or period of a specified foreign property (as defined by subsection 233.3(1)(a)) of the person or partnership in respect of which the false statement or omission is made;

(d) where the return is required to be filed under section 233.4 for a taxation year or fiscal period, the greater of

(i) $24,000, and

(ii) 5% of the greatest of all amounts each of which is the total of the cost amounts to the person or partnership at any time in the year or period of a property of the person or partnership that is a share of the capital stock or indebtedness of the foreign affiliate in respect of which the return is being filed; and

(e) where the return is required to be filed under section 233.6 for a taxation year or fiscal period, the greater of

(i) $2,500, and

(ii) 5% of the total of

(A) all amounts each of which is the fair market value of a property that is distributed to the person or partnership in the year or period by the trust and in respect of which the false statement or omission is made, and

(B) all amounts each of which is the greatest unpaid principal amount of a debt that is owing to the trust by the person or partnership in the year or period and in respect of which the false statement or omission is made.

Related Provisions: 163.2(4) — Meaning of "other person".

(6) Reliance in good faith — For the purposes of subsections (2) and (4), a person (in this subsection and in subsection (7) referred to as the "advisor") who acts on behalf of the other person is not considered to have acted in circumstances amounting to culpable conduct in respect of the false statement referred to in subsection (2) or (4) solely because the advisor relied, in good faith, on information provided to the advisor by or on behalf of the other person or, because of such reliance, failed to verify, investigate or correct the information.

Related Provisions: 163.2(2), (4) — Meaning of "other person"; 163.2(7) — No application to "excluded activity" such as selling tax shelters.

(7) Non-application of subsec. (6) — Subsection (6) does not apply in respect of a statement that an advisor makes (or participates in, assents to or acquiesces in the making of) in the course of an excluded activity.

(8) False statements in respect of a particular arrangement — For the purpose of applying this section (other than subsections (4) and (5)),

(a) where a person makes or furnishes, participates in the making of or causes another person to make or furnish, two or more false statements, the false statements are deemed to be one false statement if the statements are made or furnished in the course of

(i) one or more planning activities that are in respect of a particular arrangement, entity, plan, property or scheme, or

(ii) a valuation activity that is in respect of a particular property or service; and

(b) for greater certainty, a particular arrangement, entity, plan, property or scheme includes an arrangement, an entity, a plan, a property or a scheme in respect of which

(i) an interest is required to have, or has, an identification number issued under section 237.1 that is the same number as the number that applies to each other interest in the property,

(ii) a selling instrument in respect of flow-through shares is required to be filed with the Minister because of subsection 66(12.68), or

(iii) one of the main purposes for a person's participation in the arrangement, entity, plan or scheme, or a person's acquisition of the property, is to obtain a tax benefit.

(9) Clerical services — For the purposes of this section, a person is not considered to have made or furnished, or participated in, assented to or acquiesced in the making of, a false statement solely because the person provided clerical services (other than bookkeeping services) or secretarial services with respect to the statement.

(10) Valuations — Notwithstanding subsections (6) and 163(3), a statement as to the value of a property or a service (which value is in this subsection referred to as the "stated value"), made by the person who opined on the stated value or by a person in the course of an excluded activity is deemed to be a statement that the person would reasonably be expected to know, but for circumstances amounting to culpable conduct, is a false statement if the stated value is

(a) less than the product obtained when the prescribed percentage for the property or service is multiplied by the fair market value of the property or service; or

(b) greater than the product obtained when the prescribed percentage for the property or service is multiplied by the fair market value of the property or service.

Proposed Amendment — 163.2(10)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, July 11, 2000:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of February 4, 2000 concerning our meeting of November 4, 1999 regarding the 1999 budget proposal to introduce a civil penalty in respect of misrepresentations of tax matters by third parties. As you may know, the legislation implementing this proposal received Royal Assent on June 29, 2000 (i.e., S.C. 2000, c. 19).

Your letter replies to our request for input from the [xxx] on the appropriate prescribed percentages for the purpose of establishing a deviation range under new subsection 163.2(10) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). In your letter, you have indicated that the Institute has concluded that, if a percentage threshold is to-be set by the government, it should be the 200% test adopted by the U.S. under section 6700 of the Internal Revenue Code (the "IRC"). The Institute is also of the view that providing separate prescribed percentages for different industries would be inappropriate because it would be unworkable from a practical perspective — diversifications and business combinations defeat industry classification.

We agree with your observation that it may be impractical to have prescribed percentages that differ for various industries. However, we remain of the view that the deviation range established by prescribed percentages should be narrower than that which would exist under a range that is based upon a 200% standard.

It is our understanding that the U.S. 200% test for gross overstatements results in an automatic application of the penalty under section 6700 of the IRC, subject only to an exception for valuations for which there is a reasonable basis, which were made in good faith and then only if the Secretary of the Treasury waives the penalty under the authority of subsection 6700(b)(2) of the IRC. In contrast, section 163.2 of the Act merely provides a reverse onus. That is to say, in the case of valuations outside of the range, the onus is on the valuator to establish to the Minister of National Revenue or the judiciary that the valuation was reasonable in the circumstances, was made in good faith and was not based on a misleading assumption. The Canadian approach favours Canadian valuators.

The objective of the reverse onus rule in the Canadian provisions is to ensure that valuators and tax shelter promoters justify a substantial deviation from actual value. We would expect that a bona fide professional valuator would be prepared to substantiate that a particular valuation is reasonable in the circumstances (regardless of whether it is, on an ex post facto basis, proven to be inaccurate), that the valuation was made in good faith and that it is not based upon misleading assumptions. In this regard, therefore, it would be inappropriate to permit valuators to refuse to justify valuations that are proven to be inaccurate by a wide margin.

We anticipate a deviation range for all valuations that is narrower than 200%. However, consideration will be given within this parameter as to whether the deviation range for valuations used in a non-tax shelter context should differ from valuations used in a tax-shelter context and, if so, the appropriate percentages. If you wish to make further presentations to the Department on this issue, please contact Mr. Kerry Harnish at (613) 992-4385.

Finally, you should be aware that we intend to recommend that the percentages, which are "prescribed" for the purpose of applying new subsection 163.2(10) of the Act, be effective only for statements made after the day on which they are announced.

Thank you again for bringing your concerns to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Addition — 164(1.51)–(1.53)

(1.51) Where subsection (1.52) applies — Subsection (1.52) applies to a taxpayer for a taxation year if, at any time after the beginning of the year

(a) the taxpayer has, in respect of the tax payable by the taxpayer under this Part (and, if the taxpayer is a corporation, Parts I.3, VI, VI.1 and XIII.1) for the year, paid under any of sections 155 to 157 one or more instalments of tax;

(b) it is reasonable to conclude that the total amount of those instalments exceeds the total amount of taxes that will be payable by the taxpayer under those Parts for the year; and

(c) the Minister is satisfied that the payment of the instalments has caused or will cause undue hardship to the taxpayer.

(1.52) Instalment refund — If this subsection applies to a taxpayer for a taxation year, the Minister may refund to the taxpayer all or any part of the excess referred to in paragraph (1.51)(b).

Related Provisions: 164(1.51) — Conditions for 164(1.52) to apply; 164(1.53) — Refunded instalment deemed not paid for penalty/interest purposes.

(1.53) Penalties, interest not affected — For the purpose of the calculation of any penalty or interest under this Act, an instalment is deemed not to have been paid to the extent that all or any part of the instalment can reasonably be considered to have been refunded under subsection (1.52).

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 159(1), will add subsecs. 164(1.51)–(1.53), in force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: New subsections 164(1.51) to (1.53), which apply on Royal Assent, allow the Minister of National Revenue to refund excessive instalment amounts paid on account of a taxpayer's tax liability. In order for such a refund to be made, four conditions must be met. Three of these are set out in new subsection 164(1.51). First, the taxpayer must have paid one or more instalments of tax under Part I or, where the taxpayer is a corporation, Part I.3, VI, VI.1 or XIII of the Act. Second, it must be reasonable to conclude that the total amount of the instalments the taxpayer has paid exceeds the total amount of taxes payable by the taxpayer under those Parts for the year. Third, the Minister must be satisfied that the payment of the instalments has caused or will cause the taxpayer undue hardship.

The last condition is implied in new subsection 164(1.52). The availability of an instalment refund in a particular case is a matter of the Minister's discretion. The final condition is therefore that the Minister agree to make the refund. Similarly, new subsection 164(1.52) makes it clear that the amount of any instalment refund is to be decided by the Minister: the Minister may refund all or any part of an excessive instalment.

New subsection 164(1.53) provides that, for the purposes of computing interest and penalties, a taxpayer that receives an instalment refund is treated as not having paid the instalment to that extent.

(1.6) Refund of UI premium tax credit — Notwithstanding subsection (1), where an overpayment on account of a taxpayer's liability under this Part is deemed to have arisen under subsection 126.1(6) or (7), the Minister shall, with all due dispatch, refund the amount of the overpayment without application for it.

Proposed Repeal — 164(1.6)

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 159(2), will repeal subsec. 164(1.6), applicable after March 20, 2003.

Technical Notes: Subsection 164(1.6) provides rules concerning refunds of the UI premium tax credit. This subsection is repealed consequential to the repeal of section 126.1. For additional information, see the commentary to section 126.1.

Related Provisions: 164(3) — No interest on refund.

History: Subsec. 164(1.6) added by 1994, c. 8, subsec. 27(1), applicable after 1992.

(1.7) Limitation of repayment on objections and appeals — Subsection (1.1) does not apply in respect of an amount paid or security furnished under section 116 by a non-resident person.

History: Subsec. 164(1.7) added by 1994, c. 8, subsec. 164(1.7), applicable from May 12, 1994.

(1.8) Request to pay refund to province — An individual (other than a trust) may, in the individual's return of income for a taxation year, request the Minister to pay to Her Majesty in right of a prescribed province all or any part of a refund for the year claimed by the individual in the return and, where the individual makes such a request,

(a) the Minister may make the payment to Her Majesty in right of the province in accordance with the request; and

(b) the amount of the payment is deemed to have been refunded under this section to the individual at the time a notice of an original assessment of tax payable under this Part by the individual for the year, or a notification that no tax is payable under this Part by the individual for the year, is sent to the individual.

Related Provisions: 241(4)(m) — Disclosure of information by CRA to prescribed province.

History: Subsec. 164(1.8) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 190(3), applicable to requests made in returns of income for 1997 et seq. taxation years filed after 1997.

Subsec. 190(12) of the said c. 19 provides that for the purpose of applying subsec. 164(1.8), Ontario is deemed to be a prescribed province until the Income Tax Regulations are amended to prescribe a province for the purpose of subsec. 164(1.8).

Regulations: None yet, but subsec. 190(12) of the 1995-97 technical bill (1998, c. 19) deems Ontario to be a prescribed province until Regulations are provided. Ontario is to be prescribed in the Regulations (Department of Finance Technical Notes, December 1997).

(2) Application to other debts — Instead of making a refund or repayment that might otherwise be made under this section, the Minister may, where the taxpayer is, or is about to become, liable to make any payment to Her Majesty in right of Canada or in right of a province, apply the amount of the refund or repayment to that other liability and notify the taxpayer of that action.

PART I.3 — TAX ON LARGE CORPORATIONS

(b) an insurance corporation that carries on business in Canada,

(c) authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on the business of offering its services as a trustee to the public,

(d) authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to accept deposits from the public and carries on the business of lending money on the security of real estate or investing in mortgages or hypothecary claims on real estate,

Proposed Amendment — 181(1)"financial institution"(d)

(d) authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to accept deposits from the public and carries on the business of lending money on the security of real property or immovables or investing in indebtedness on the security of mortgages on real property or of hypothecs on immovables,

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 3 — bijuralism), s. 257, will amend para. (d) of the definition "financial institution" in subsec. 181(1) to read as above, to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

(e) a registered securities dealer,

(f) a mortgage investment corporation, or

(g) a prescribed corporation;

Proposed Amendment — 181(1)"financial institution"(g)

(g) a corporation

(i) listed in the schedule, or

[44] Indexed by s. 117.1 — ed.

(ii) all or substantially all of the assets of which are shares or indebtedness of financial institutions to which the corporation is related;

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), s. 160, will amend para. (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsec. 181(1) to read as above, applicable after December 22, 1997, but in applying the para. in respect of taxation years that end before December 20, 2002, it is to be read as follows:

(g) prescribed, or listed in the schedule;

Technical Notes: Subsection 181(1) sets out definitions for the purposes of the Part I.3 tax on large corporations. Among these is the term "financial institution," which is relevant for a number of purposes. Most importantly, corporations that are financial institutions compute their capital for the purposes of Part I.3 differently from other corporations. The status of a particular corporation is also relevant to corporations that invest in the particular corporation or hold its debt, since whether certain of those investments are counted in the investor corporation's "investment allowance" — and thus whether they will reduce their own tax under Part I.3 — depends, in part, on whether the particular corporation is a financial institution.

In addition to listing several types of corporations, the definition "financial institution" provides, in its paragraph (g), that the definition applies as well to a prescribed corporation. Currently, such corporations are prescribed under section 8604 of the Regulations. Paragraph (a) of that regulation provides that a corporation of which all or substantially all of the assets of which are shares or indebtedness of a financial institution (as defined in subsection 181(1)) to which the corporation is related, is itself prescribed to be a financial institution; the remaining paragraphs list particular corporations by name.

Paragraph (g) of the definition is amended to reflect a fundamental change in the technique by which these corporations will be identified as financial institutions. Rather than listing corporations in a regulation, this new approach is to list them in a schedule to the Act. Amended paragraph (g) therefore refers to corporations that are either listed in the schedule, as per new subparagraph (g)(i), or that are described in new subparagraph (g)(ii), currently paragraph (a) of section 8604 of the Regulations.

As a consequence to the changes to paragraph (g) of the definition, section 8604 of the Regulations is to be repealed and a schedule is added at the end of the Act. Subject to a number of deletions due primarily to name changes and amalgamations, the schedule lists those corporations that are currently prescribed under section 8604 immediately before its repeal. The schedule also lists a number of corporations that are not currently prescribed, but meet the requirements for treatment as financial institutions and have asked to be treated as such.

Transitional rules for paragraph (g) of the definition ensure that corporations prescribed before the repeal of Regulation 8604 retain the status that they would have had under paragraph (g) had it not been amended to exclude prescribed corporations.

As described above, a number of corporations currently not prescribed are listed in the schedule, effective as of dates that precede December 20, 2002. Transitional rules ensure that, for any taxation year that begins before December 20, 2002, no corporation that deals at arm's length with any of these corporations will lose an investment allowance as a result the corporation's change in status to a financial institution under paragraph (g) of the definition.

Related Provisions: 142.2(1)"financial institution"(a)(i), 248(1)"restricted financial institution"(e.1), "specified financial institution"(e.1) — Prescribed corporation under this definition deemed to be FI, RFI and SFI.

Para. (e) of the definition "financial institution" in subsec. 181(1) amended by 1995, c. 21, s. 72, applicable to taxation years that end after June 1989. Para. (e) formerly read:

(e) registered or licensed under the laws of a province to trade in securities,

Regulations: 8604 [to be repealed] (prescribed corporations).

(b) in the case of an insurance corporation, its subordinated indebtedness (within the meaning assigned by section 2 of the Insurance Companies Act) evidenced by obligations issued for a term of not less than 5 years, and

but does not include, where the corporation is a prescribed federal Crown corporation for the purpose of section 27, any indebtedness evidenced by obligations issued to and held by Her Majesty in right of Canada;

History: The definition "long-term debt" in subsec. 181(1) substituted by 1994, c. 21, s. 81, applicable after May 31, 1992. That definition formerly read:

"long-term debt" means

Proposed Amendment — 181.1(1)

Federal Economic and Fiscal Statement, November 14, 2005 (Annex 4): Accelerating the Elimination of the Federal Capital Tax

The federal capital tax was introduced in 1989 as Part I.3 of the Income Tax Act. The rate is currently 0.175% on taxable capital in excess of $50 million. A corporation's taxable capital is generally described as the total of its shareholders' equity, surpluses and reserves, as well as loans and advances to the corporation, less certain types of investments in other corporations. A corporation's federal income surtax (1.12% of taxable income) is deductible against the corporation's federal capital tax liability.

Budget 2003 announced that the federal capital tax would be eliminated for smaller corporations by 2004 and would be completely eliminated by 2008. In order to further promote investment and strengthen Canada's tax advantage, the Update proposes to eliminate the federal capital tax as of January 1, 2006 — two years earlier than was originally scheduled. The federal capital tax rate will be pro-rated for taxation years that do not coincide with the calendar year.

The following table summarizes the phase-out announced in 2003 and the proposed changes to the federal capital tax rates.

Table A4.13 — Proposed Acceleration of Federal Capital Tax Elimination

	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007
	Capital Tax Rates (per cent)
Current phase-out	0.225	0.200	0.175	0.125	0.0625
Proposed phase-out	0.225	0.200	0.175	0.00	0.00

Under the current federal capital tax, the corporate surtax in excess of a corporation's federal capital tax liability for a taxation year can generally be applied against the capital tax liability for the three preceding and seven subsequent taxation years. Corporations will continue to be able to apply the corporate surtax against the federal capital tax liability, if any, for the three previous tax years. For these purposes, the excess credits will continue to be computed by reference to a notional Part I.3 tax liability, based on the 0.225% federal capital tax rate and the $50-million capital deduction applicable immediately prior to the phasing out of the tax.

Tiered Partnerships

Subsection 181.2(3) defines the "capital" of a corporation, and in paragraph 181.2(3)(g) includes in a corporation's capital a pro-rata share of the reserves, deferred foreign exchange gains and indebtedness of any partnership of which it is a member. To determine those amounts, the relevant paragraphs of subsection 181.2(3) are applied to the partnership in the same way as they apply to corporations. Paragraph 181.2(3)(g) is amended so that it itself applies on this basis. As a result, the proration of the reserve, deferred gain and debt amounts will carry through any number of tiered partnerships.

Subsection 181.2(4) provides for the "investment allowance" by which, in broad terms, one corporation's investment in another is excluded from the first corporation's taxable capital. Subsection 181.2(5) determines the carrying value of an interest of a corporation in a partnership for this purpose. Subsection 181.2(5) is amended to ensure that the carrying value of an interest of a corporation in a particular partnership, for the purposes of subsection 181.2(4), includes the carrying value of an interest of the particular partnership in another partnership.

Proposed Amendment — 181.2(3)(i)

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 161(2), will amend para. 181.2(3)(i) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after 1995.

Technical Notes: Preferred Shares

In general, a corporation's tax payable under Part I.3 of the Act is computed with reference to amounts reflected in the balance sheet of the corporation, as prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP).

The Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants' Handbook (the Handbook), which is the principal authority of GAAP in Canada, requires that a liability of a corporation in respect of a redeemable preferred share be reflected on the corporation's balance sheet. The Handbook provides that this liability may be accounted for in one of two ways. Under the first method, the difference between the stated capital of a share and its redemption value is charged to retained earnings, which in some cases may result in the corporation having negative retained earnings or a deficit. Retained earnings are unaffected under the second method, under which a line account is set up reflecting the redemption liability of the preferred shares.

Current paragraph 181.2(3)(i) allows for a reduction of a corporation's capital, to the extent of any deficit deducted in computing the corporation's shareholders' equity. To accommodate the alternative presentation of a provision for the redemption of preferred shares, the paragraph is amended to refer explicitly to the amount of such a provision.

(j) any amount deducted under subsection 135(1) in computing its income under Part I for the year, to the extent that the amount can reasonably be regarded as being included in the amount determined under any of paragraphs (a) to (g) in respect of the corporation for the year.

(k) the amount of its deferred unrealized foreign exchange losses at the end of the year.

Possible Future Amendment — Joint debt

Letter from Dept. of Finance, August 6, 1997:

Dear [xxx]

This is in response to your memorandum dated July 29, 1997 respecting the application of the Large Corporation Tax (LCT) to joint debt. You are concerned that joint debt may be fully taxed in the hands of each co-borrower under the LCT, even though the advance is divided among those borrowers. Using the example provided in your note, a joint debt in the amount of $400 million might be shared so that one party is advanced $100 million and the other, $300 million. You believe that the aggregate addition to capital in respect of the debt should be $400 million for the two borrowers; your concern is that, under the current law, each of them would be required to add $400 million to capital with the result that a total of $800 million would be subject to LCT.

Your concern is based on the current wording of subsection 181(3) of the Act, which provides that, "except as otherwise provided under this Part", the amounts to be used in calculating LCT are those set out on the taxpayer's balance sheet, prepared in accordance with GAAP. You feel that the definition of capital in paragraph 181.2(3) of the Act "provides otherwise" for these purposes, and hence, that the amounts set out on the balance sheet may not be relevant.

As you have described it, GAAP currently provides that only the portion of a jointly-incurred debt that is actually advanced to a borrower is recorded as a liability on the balance sheet. A note to the balance sheet indicates the full value of the joint debt in order to disclose the legal liability of the borrower for that part of the debt that was not received by that borrower. If subsection 181(3) applies, you reason that the taxpayers in your example would be taxed on $100 million and $300 million in capital respectively. If subsection 181(3) does not apply, each taxpayer would be taxed on the full amount of their legal indebtedness, being $400 million.

In our view, the definition of capital in subsection 181.2(3) of the Act does not constitute an exception to the application of subsection 181(3) of the Act. Rather, our intention — which we believe to be reflected in the existing legislation — is that subsection 181(3) apply to use the amounts reflected in a borrower's balance sheet to quantify the amounts included in its capital.

That being said, there may be a risk of double-counting in the application of the LCT to jointly-incurred debt. As notes to the financial statements are an integral part of the balance sheet, there is a possibility that the amount set out in the notes would be assessed as the corporation's capital in respect of a joint debt. If this were to occur, each co-borrower under a joint debt would be taxed for the full amount of the debt, irrespective of the amount actually advanced to that borrower.

In principle, we agree that the amount of a joint debt should only be taxed once, and we hope to discuss this matter further with Revenue Canada officials to determine whether that result can be achieved under the current law. If that proves unsuccessful, we are prepared to consider legislative changes to ensure this outcome. As noted, GAAP currently allocates joint debt based on the amount of cash advanced to each co-borrower — for LCT purposes, other factors may be relevant in making such an allocation. If a change to the law should prove necessary, we would be pleased [to] have your views in this respect.

If you would like to discuss this matter in more detail, please feel free to contact Robin Maley (992-4859) or Brian Ernewein (992-3045) of the Division directly.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber

Proposed Amendment — 181.2(4)(d.1)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 25, 2004:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of February 3, 2004, in which you provide additional material regarding the application, to tiered partnership structures, of the investment allowance provisions in Part I.3 of the Income Tax Act. Further to our meeting on this matter, it was helpful to see set out the particular criteria that in your view ought to apply in order for a corporation that loans or advances funds to such a structure to recognize an investment allowance in respect of that debt.

As you know, although the proposed amendments to the Act announced in December 2002 and released again in February 2004 address certain issues around partnerships and the Part I.3 tax, they do not — and were not intended to — deal with the question you have raised. That question, in short, is whether under any circumstances the investment allowance of a corporation ought to include an amount in respect of the corporation's holding of debt of a partnership, not all of the members of which are corporations. In its current form, paragraph 181.2(4)(d.1) recognizes partnership debt only if all the members of the partnership are corporations (other than financial institutions) that either are not exempt from Part I.3 tax or are neither resident in Canada nor carrying on business in Canada through a permanent establishment. The provision thus has the effect that advances or loans to second- or lower-tiered partnerships do not support an investment allowance, since one or more members of such partnerships are necessarily not corporations.

You have suggested that the investment allowance ought to be available in some cases of multiple partnership tiers. That is, subject to certain additional criteria which I will return to in a moment, you propose that a debt investment in a particular partnership support an investment allowance if all of the members of the partnership that are not corporations are themselves partnerships that, either directly or through further layers of partnerships, are made up of corporations. This concept can perhaps be expressed most succinctly by defining a new term, "eligible partnership". An eligible partnership would (again, subject to some further criteria) be one all of the members of which are either corporations or other eligible partnerships. The carrying value of any loan or advance to (or bond, etc. of) an eligible partnership would be included in computing the investment allowance of a corporation other than a financial institution.

I agree that this is in principle an appropriate result. In policy terms, the fact that the debtor's corporate structure has been arranged to include more than one layer of partnerships ought not necessarily to deny the holder of a debt an investment allowance. While as a practical matter there will often be ways of avoiding such a structure, or at least of relocating the debt, it is recognized that business and other considerations may make it difficult or undesirable in a particular instance to do that. For that reason, I am prepared to recommend an amendment to paragraph 181.2(4)(d.1), to be effective for the 2004 and subsequent taxation years, that would include in the investment allowance calculation the debt of what I have called "eligible partnerships."

At the same time, it will in my view be necessary both to define "eligible partnership", and to set out additional criteria that would be applicable in respect of debt issued by partnerships within a tiered partnership structure, with some care. In this regard, we would expect to make recommendations along the following lines:

- An eligible partnership could have no member that is a financial institution, or that is corporation that is exempt from tax under Part I.3 (otherwise than because it is non-resident and does not carry on business in Canada through a permanent establishment).
- Where a partnership's status as an eligible partnership is relevant in respect of a debt for a particular taxation year, the partnership would be required to maintain that status throughout the taxation year.
- For the purposes of including amounts in capital under paragraph 181.2(3)(g) in respect of a loan or an advance to an eligible partnership, the fiscal year-end of any intervening or higher-tiered partnership would be deemed to be the same as that of the debtor partnership.

Of course, we cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Parliament will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, we trust that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein

Technical Notes: Section 181.3 provides rules for determining the capital, taxable capital, taxable capital employed in Canada and investment allowance of a financial institution (as defined in subsection 181(1)) for the purposes of the Part I.3 tax on large corporations.

Section 181.3 is amended in two respects. First, changes are made to several paragraphs of subsection 181.3(3) to accommodate a change to the accounting presentation of redeemable preferred shares. Second, a new subparagraph and a new clause are added, respectively, to paragraph 181.3(3)(c) and subparagraph 181.3(3)(d)(iv) to reflect the manner in which property and casualty insurers are required to account for claims reserves.

Preferred Shares

The accounting procedures described in the notes to amended section 181.2 are relevant to financial institutions as well as to other corporations, and readers may consult those notes for additional background. As in that section, the amendments introduced to section 181.3 include, in the computation of a deficit deducted in computing shareholders' equity, the amount of any provision for the redemption of preferred shares. This inclusion is added to three specific provisions: subparagraph 181.3(3)(a)(v) in respect of financial institutions other than insurers and authorized foreign banks; subparagraph 181.3(3)(b)(iv) in respect of Canadian-resident life insurance corporations; and subparagraph 181.3(3)(c)(v) in respect of other Canadian-resident insurance companies.

(b) in the case of an insurance corporation that was resident in Canada at any time in the year and carried on a life insurance business at any time in the year, the amount, if any, by which the total at the end of the year of

(i) the amount of its long-term debt, and

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 162(4), will add subpara. 181.3(3)(c)(vii), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1995.

Technical Notes: Claims Reserves

In general, a corporation is required to compute amounts relevant in determining its tax payable under Part I.3 of the Act using generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP).

The Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants' Handbook (the Handbook), which is the principle [sic] authority of GAAP in Canada, requires that property and casualty insurers account for claims reserves on a gross basis, rather than net of reinsurance.

Paragraphs 181.3(3)(c) and (d) stipulate the amounts to be included in determining the capital of an insurance corporation resident in Canada (other than a life insurance corporation) and an insurance corporation not resident in Canada, respectively. Among other things, claims reserves are required under these paragraphs to be included in computing the capital of such a corporation.

New subparagraph 181.3(3)(c)(vii) and clause 181.3(3)(d)(iv)(F) allow such corporations to reduce their capital by an amount that is recoverable through reinsurance, to the extent that the amount relates to an amount that was included in capital as a claims reserve. In this way, claims reserves are included on a net of reinsurance basis under paragraphs 181.3(3)(c) and (d).

(d) in the case of an insurance corporation that was throughout the year not resident in Canada and carried on an insurance business in Canada at any time in the year, the total at the end of the year of

(i) the amount that is the greater of

(A) the amount, if any, by which

(I) the corporation's surplus funds derived from operations (as defined in subsection 138(12)) as of the end of the year, computed as if no tax were payable under this Part or Part VI for the year exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is

(II) an amount on which the corporation was required to pay, or would but for subsection 219(5.2) have been required to pay, tax under Part XIV for a preceding taxation year, except the portion, if any, of the amount on which tax was payable, or would have been payable, because of subparagraph 219(4)(a)(i.1), and

(III) an amount on which the corporation was required to pay, or would but for subsection 219(5.2) have been required to pay, tax under subsection 219(5.1) for the year because of the transfer of an insurance business to which subsection 138(11.5) or (11.92) has applied, and

(B) the corporation's attributed surplus for the year,

(ii) any other surpluses relating to its insurance businesses carried on in Canada,

(iii) the amount of its long-term debt that may reasonably be regarded as relating to its insurance businesses carried on in Canada, and

(iv) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the amount of its reserves for the year (other than its reserves in respect of amounts payable out of segregated funds) that may reasonably be regarded as having been established in respect of its insurance businesses carried on in Canada

exceeds the total of

(B) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of a reserve (other than a reserve described in subparagraph 138(3)(a)(i)) to the extent that it was included in the amount determined under clause (A) and was deducted in computing its income under Part I for the year,

(C) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of a reserve described in subparagraph 138(3)(a)(i) to the extent that it was included in the amount determined under clause (A) and was deductible under subparagraph 138(3)(a)(i) in computing its income under Part I for the year,

(D) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount outstanding (including any interest accrued thereon) as at the end of the year in respect of a policy loan (within the meaning assigned by subsection 138(12)) made by the corporation, to the extent that it was deducted in computing the amount determined under clause (C), and

(E) the total amount of its deferred acquisition expenses in respect of its property and casualty insurance business in Canada, to the extent that it can reasonably be attributed to an amount included in the amount determined under clause (A); and

Proposed Addition — 181.3(3)(d)(iv)(F)

(F) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount recoverable through reinsurance, to the extent that it can reasonably be regarded as being included in the amount determined under clause (A) in respect of a claims reserve; and

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 162(5), will add cl. 181.3(3)(d)(iv)(F), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1995.

Technical Notes: See under 181.3(3)(c)(vii).

(e) in the case of an authorized foreign bank, the total of

(i) 10% of the total of all amounts, each of which is the risk-weighted amount at the end of the year of an on-balance sheet asset or an off-balance sheet exposure of the bank in respect of its Canadian banking business that the bank would be required to report under the OSFI risk-weighting guidelines if those guidelines applied and required a report at that time, and

(ii) the total of all amounts, each of which is an amount at the end of the year in respect of the bank's Canadian banking business that

(A) if the bank were a bank listed in Schedule II to the Bank Act, would be required under the risk-based capital adequacy guidelines issued by the Superintendent of Financial Institutions and applicable at that time to be deducted from

(B) is not an amount in respect of a loss protection facility required to be deducted from capital under the Superintendent's guidelines respecting asset securitization applicable at that time.

(b) was resident in Canada and had a class of shares outstanding that were purchased and sold in the manner in which such shares normally are purchased and sold by any member of the public in the open market.

(2) Tax payable — Where, as a part of a transaction or series of transactions or events, the corporation shall, on or before its balance-due day for its taxation year that includes that time, pay tax of 45% of that amount or portion of it, as the case may be.

Related Provisions: 248(10) — Series of transactions.

(b) any portion of the amount paid for the share may reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances, as consideration for a dividend that had been declared, but not yet paid, on the share, that portion of the amount shall, for the purposes of subsection (2), be deemed to have been paid as a substitute for dividends that would otherwise have been paid in the normal course by the corporation notwithstanding that the dividend was actually paid thereafter.

(5) Indirect payment — Where, as a part of a transaction or series of transactions or events, a person received a payment from a corporation, or from any person with whom the corporation was not dealing at arm's length, in consideration, in whole or in part, for paying an amount to any other person as proceeds of disposition of any property, the corporation shall, for the purposes of subsection (2), be deemed to have paid the amount indirectly to the other person.

(6) Where subsec. (2) does not apply — Subsection (2) does not apply if none of the purposes of the transaction or series of transactions or events referred to therein may reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances, to have been to enable shareholders of a corporation who are individuals or non-resident persons to receive an amount, directly or indirectly, as proceeds of disposition of property rather than as a dividend on a share that was of a class that was listed on a stock exchange or that was purchased and sold in the manner in which shares are normally purchased and sold by any member of the public in the open market.

(7) Where subsec. 110.6(8) does not apply — Where this section has been applied in respect of an amount, subsection 110.6(8) does not apply to the capital gain in respect of which the amount formed all or a part of the proceeds of disposition.

PART III — ADDITIONAL TAX ON EXCESSIVE ELECTIONS

184. (1) [Repealed under former Act]

(2) Tax on excessive elections — Where a corporation has elected in accordance with subsection 83(2), 130.1(4) or 131(1) in respect of the full amount of any dividend payable by it on shares of any class of its capital stock and the full amount of the dividend exceeds the portion thereof deemed by that subsection to be a capital dividend or capital gains dividend, as the case may be, the corporation shall, at the time of the election, pay a tax under this Part equal to 3/4 of the excess.

Proposed Amendment — 184(2)

(2) Tax on excessive elections — If a corporation has elected in accordance with subsection 83(2), 130.1(4) or 131(1) in respect of the full amount of any dividend payable by it on shares of any class of its capital stock (in this section referred to as the "original dividend") and the full amount of the original dividend exceeds the portion of the original dividend deemed by that subsection to be a capital dividend or capital gains dividend, as the case may be, the corporation shall, at the time of the election, pay a tax under this Part equal to 3/5 of the excess.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), s. 163, will amend subsec. 184(2) to read as above, applicable to original dividends paid by a corporation after its 1999 taxation year.

Technical Notes: Under section 83, a private corporation can identify a dividend as a "capital dividend," with the result that the dividend is not taxable to the shareholders who receive it. In concept, a capital dividend is a distribution of the non-taxable portion of the corporation's capital gains, which portion is recorded in the corporation's "capital dividend account". A similar mechanism allows mutual fund corporations and mortgage investment corporations to designate a dividend as a "capital gains dividend" — which is taxable to the shareholder, but as a capital gain.

Part III of the Act (sections 184 and 185) applies a special tax to a corporation that designates as a capital dividend or a capital gains dividend an amount that exceeds the amount available to be paid as such a dividend. If the corporation obtains the consent of its shareholders, it can avoid the special tax by treating the excess amount as a separate taxable dividend.

These amendments simplify Part III and update its language, reduce the rate of the special tax, and modify the requirement for shareholder consent to the recharacterization of an excessive dividend. These amendments apply to dividends that are paid by a corporation after its 1999 taxation year, with a special transitional rule for elections, described below in the notes to subsection 184(5).

Subsection 184(2) applies the tax under Part III of the Act to the amount by which a dividend paid by a corporation as a capital dividend or a capital gains dividend exceeds the amount eligible to be so designated. For greater clarity, the subsection is amended to refer to the full amount of the initial dividend as the "original dividend." That term is then used elsewhere in amended Part III.

The rate of tax imposed by subsection 184(2) is also changed, as part of a series of amendments that reflect recent and planned reductions in tax rates. The rate is reduced from 75% of the excess capital gains dividend to 60% of the excess.

Related Provisions: 18(1)(t) — Tax is non-deductible; 87(2)(z.2) — Amalgamation — continuing corporation; 184(3) — Election to treat excess as a separate dividend.

(2.1) Reduction of excess — Notwithstanding subsection (2), where a corporation has elected in accordance with subsection 83(2) in respect of the full amount of a dividend that became payable by it at a particular time in its 1988 taxation year and before June 18, 1987, the amount of the excess referred to in subsection (2) in respect of the dividend shall be deemed, for the purposes of subsection (2), to be the amount of the excess that would have been determined under subsection (2) in respect of the dividend if the corporation's taxation year had ended on December 31, 1987.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), s. 163, will repeal subsec. 184(2.1), applicable to original dividends paid by a corporation after its 1999 taxation year.

Technical Notes: Subsection 184(2.1) is a transitional rule that applies to certain dividends that became payable before June 18, 1987. That subsection has lapsed and is repealed.

(3) Election to treat excess as separate dividend — Where, in respect of a dividend payable at a particular time after 1971, a corporation would, but for this subsection, be required to pay a tax under this Part equal to all or a portion of an excess referred to in subsection (2) of this section or subsection 184(1) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, it may elect in prescribed manner on or before a day that is not later than 90 days after the day that is the later of December 15, 1977 and the day of mailing of the notice of assessment in respect of the tax that would otherwise be payable under this Part, and on such an election being made, subject to subsection (4), the following rules apply:

(a) the amount by which the full amount of the dividend exceeds the amount of the excess shall be deemed for the purposes of the election that the corporation made in respect of the dividend under subsection 83(2), 130.1(4) or 131(1) of this Act or subsection 83(1) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, and for all other purposes of this Act to be the full amount of a separate dividend that became payable at the particular time;

(b) such part of the excess as the corporation may claim shall, for the purposes of any election in respect thereof under subsection 83(2), 130.1(4) or 131(1) of this Act or subsection 83(1) of the Income Tax Act, chapter 148 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1952, and, where the corporation has so elected, for all purposes of this Act, be deemed to be the full amount of a separate dividend that became payable immediately after the particular time;

(c) the amount by which the excess exceeds any portion deemed by paragraph (b) to be a separate dividend for all purposes of this Act shall be deemed to be a separate dividend that is a taxable dividend that became payable at the particular time; and

(d) each person who held any of the issued shares of the class of shares of the capital stock of the corporation in respect of which the full amount of the dividend was paid shall be deemed

(i) not to have received any portion of the dividend, and

(ii) to have received at the time the dividend was paid the proportion of any separate dividend, determined under paragraph (a), (b) or (c), that the number of shares of that class held by the person at the time the dividend was paid is of the number of shares of that class outstanding at that time except that, for the purpose of Part XIII, a separate dividend that is a taxable dividend, a capital dividend or a life insurance capital dividend shall be deemed to have been paid on the day that the election in respect of this subsection is made.

Proposed Amendment — 184(3)

(3) Election to treat excess as separate dividend — If, in respect of an original dividend payable at a particular time, a corporation would, but for this subsection, be required to pay a tax under this Part in respect of an excess referred to in subsection (2), and the corporation elects in prescribed manner on or before the day that is 90 days after the day of mailing of the notice of assessment in respect of the tax that would otherwise be payable under this Part, the following rules apply:

(a) the portion of the original dividend deemed by subsection 83(2), 130.1(4) or 131(1) to be a capital dividend or capital gains dividend, as the case may be, is deemed for the purposes of this Act to be the amount of a separate dividend that became payable at the particular time;

(b) if the corporation identifies in its election any part of the excess, that part is, for the purposes of any election under subsection 83(2), 130.1(4) or 131(1) in respect of that part, and, where the corporation has so elected, for all purposes of this Act, deemed to be the amount of a separate dividend that became payable immediately after the particular time;

(c) the amount by which the excess exceeds any portion deemed by paragraph (b) to be a separate dividend for all purposes of this Act is deemed to be a separate taxable dividend that became payable at the particular time; and

(d) each person who held any of the issued shares of the class of shares of the capital stock of the corporation in respect of which the original dividend was paid is deemed

(i) not to have received any portion of the original dividend, and

(ii) to have received, at the time that any separate dividend determined under any of paragraphs (a) to (c) became payable, the proportion of that dividend that the number of shares of that class held by the person at the particular time is of the number of shares of that class outstanding at the particular time except that, for the purpose of Part XIII the separate dividend is deemed to be paid on the day that the election in respect of this subsection is made.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), s. 163, will amend subsec. 184(3) to read as above, applicable to original dividends paid by a corporation after its 1999 taxation year.

(i) who received or were entitled to receive all or any portion of the dividend in respect of which a tax would, but for subsection (3), be payable under this Part, and

(ii) whose addresses were known to the corporation; and

(b) either

(i) it is made on or before the day that is 30 months after the day on which the dividend became payable, or

(ii) each shareholder described in subparagraph (a)(i) concurs with the election, in which case, notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), such assessment of the tax, interest and penalties payable by each such shareholder for any taxation year may be made as is necessary to take the corporation's election into account.

(4) Concurrence with election — An election under subsection (3) is valid only if

(a) it is made with the concurrence of the corporation and all its shareholders

(i) who received or were entitled to receive all or any portion of the original dividend, and

(ii) whose addresses were known to the corporation; and

(b) either

(i) it is made on or before the day that is 30 months after the day on which the original dividend became payable, or

(ii) each shareholder described in subparagraph (a)(i) concurs with the election, in which case, notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), any assessment of the tax, interest and penalties payable by each of those shareholders for any taxation year shall be made that is necessary to take the corporation's election into account.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), s. 163, will amend subsec. 184(4) to read as above, applicable to original dividends paid by a corporation after its 1999 taxation year.

Technical Notes: Subsection 184(4) sets out the requirements for shareholders' consent to the recharacterization, under subsection 184(3), of an excessive capital dividend or capital gains dividend. This subsection is amended to update and clarify its language.

Related Provisions: 185 — Assessment of tax.

(5) Penalty — The penalty in respect of an election under subsection (3.1) or (3.2) in relation to a particular dividend is an amount equal to the product obtained when $500 is multiplied by the proportion that the number of months or parts of months during the period commencing on the day the dividend became payable and ending on the day on which that election was made is of 12.

Proposed Amendment — 184(5)

(5) Exception for non-taxable shareholders — If each person who, in respect of an election made under subsection (3), is deemed by subsection (3) to have received a dividend at a particular time is also, at the particular time, a person all of whose taxable income is exempt from tax under Part I,

(a) subsection (4) does not apply to the election; and

(b) the election is valid only if it is made on or before the day that is 30 months after the day on which the original dividend became payable.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), s. 163, will amend subsec. 184(5) to read as above, applicable to original dividends paid by a corporation after its 1999 taxation year except that, for the purpose of subsec. 184(5), as amended, an election made before the 90th day after the amending legislation is assented to is deemed to have been made in a timely manner.

Technical Notes: New subsection 184(5) provides an exception to the shareholder consent requirements of subsection 184(4). Where a corporation wishes to recharacterize an excessive dividend under subsection 184(3), and the dividend was paid on a class of shares all of the holders of which are persons all of whose taxable income is exempt from tax (for example, registered plans), the corporation need not obtain the shareholders' consent. Instead, the only requirement imposed by new subsection 184(5) is that the corporation's election be made within 30 months after the time that the original (excessive) dividend became payable.

An election under new subsection 184(5) will be deemed to have been made in a timely manner if it is made within 90 days after these amendments receive Royal Assent.

Proposed Amendment — 186.1(b)(vii)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, January 18, 2002:

Dear [xxx]:

This is in response to your letter of May 25, 2001 and subsequent telephone conversations between you, [xxx], and Sanjeev Sivarulrasa of this Division. You have requested that we consider recommending an amendment to the Income Tax Act (Act) to take into account the demutualization of the Toronto Stock Exchange (TSE) as of April 3, 2000, in which "member firms" were converted to "participating organizations".

As I understand it, your concern has to do with the current wording of subparagraph 186.1(b)(vii), which exempts from Part IV tax a corporation that is "a registered securities dealer that was throughout the year a member of a prescribed stock exchange in Canada." Since demutualization of the TSE, "member firms" are now "participating organizations", and it is unclear whether the current wording of subparagraph 186.1(b)(vii) will continue to exempt from Part IV tax a registered securities dealer that is a "participating organization" of the TSE.

As you know, your request raised a number of potential issues, and we considered it important to review in this context the not-for-profit status of the TSE, the fact that its demutualization has now made it a for-profit corporation, and the appropriate tax treatment of any dividends that the TSE might have paid to its members after its demutualization. In the end, we have concluded that, since a "participating organization" of the TSE will have to meet the same qualifications as a "member firm", a registered securities dealer that is a participating organization ought to be exempt from Part IV tax. Accordingly, we will recommend that subparagraph 186.1(b)(vii) be amended as you request, effective April 3, 2000.

I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Parliament will agree with the recommendation that I have described. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

History [Part V]: The heading to Part V amended by 2005, c. 19, s. 42 to replace "Tax" with "Tax and Penalties", deemed to have come into force on March 23, 2004.

187.7 Application of subsec. 149.1(1) — The definitions in subsection 149.1(1) apply to this Part.

Origin of s. 187.7: R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Supp.).

188. (1) Deemed year-end on notice of revocation — If on a particular day the Minister issues a notice of intention to revoke the registration of a taxpayer as a registered charity under any of subsections 149.1(2) to (4.1) and 168(1) or it is determined, under subsection 7(1) of the Charities Registration (Security Information) Act, that a certificate served in respect of the charity under subsection 5(1) of that Act is reasonable on the basis of information and evidence available,

(a) the taxation year of the charity that would otherwise have included that day is deemed to end at the end of that day;

(b) a new taxation year of the charity is deemed to begin immediately after that day; and

(c) for the purpose of determining the charity's fiscal period after that day, the charity is deemed not to have established a fiscal period before that day.

Related Provisions: 188(2.1) — Conditions for 188(1) not to apply.

History: Subsec. 188(1) amended by 2005, c. 19, subsec. 43(1), applicable in respect of notices issued and certificates served by the Minister of National Revenue after June 12, 2005. The subsec. formerly read:

(1) Revocation tax — Where the registration of a charity is revoked, the charity shall, on or before the day (in this subsection referred to as the "payment day") in a taxation year that is one year after the day on which the revocation is effective,

(a) pay a tax under this Part for the year equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value of an asset of the charity on the day (in this section referred to as the "valuation day") that is 120 days before the day on which

(i) the notice of the Minister's intention to revoke the charity's registration is mailed, if the registration is revoked under subsection 168(2), or

(ii) the charity is, under subsection 5(1) of the Charities Registration (Security Information) Act, served with a copy of a certificate, if the registration is revoked under subsection 168(3).

B is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of a gift for which it issued a receipt described in subsection 110.1(2) or 118.1(2) in the period (in this section referred to as the "winding-up period") that begins on the valuation day and ends immediately before the payment day, or an amount received by it in the winding-up period from a registered charity,

Proposed Amendment — Former 188(1)(a)B [temporary]

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), s. 164, provides that in applying the description of B in para. 188(1)(a) in respect of gifts made to a charity after December 20, 2002, as those gifts are relevant in respect of notices of intention to revoke the registration of the charity and certificates under subsec. 5(1) of the Charities Registration (Security Information) Act that are issued by the Minister of National Revenue before June 13, 2005, that description is to be read with "which is the eligible amount" substituted for "which is the amount".

Technical Notes: Subsection 188(1) imposes a tax payable by a registered charity in respect of the revocation of the charity's registration. The tax is generally equal to the total of the value of the assets of the charity plus the amount of receipted donations and inter-charity gifts received by the charity after the "valuation day" of the charity's assets, net of certain eligible disbursements.

Subsection 188(1) is amended consequential to the addition of new subsection 248(31), in respect of gifts made after December 20, 2002, to refer to the "eligible amount" of a gift for which a receipt was issued by the charity. For additional information, see the commentary to new subsection 248(31).

C is the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at the time of the transfer, of an asset transferred by it in the winding-up period to a qualified donee,

D is the total of all amounts each of which is expended by it in the winding-up period on charitable activities carried on by it,

E is the total of all amounts each of which is paid by it in the winding-up period in respect of its debts that were outstanding on the valuation day and not included in determining the value of D, and

F is the total of all amounts each of which is a reasonable expense incurred by it in the winding-up period and not included in determining the value of D; and

(b) file with the Minister a return in prescribed form and containing prescribed information, without notice or demand therefor.

The description of A in para. 188(1)(a) amended by 2001, c. 41, s. 116, in force December 24, 2001. The description of A formerly read:

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the fair market value of an asset of the charity on the day (in this section referred to as the "valuation day") that is 120 days before the day on which notice of the Minister's intention to revoke its registration is mailed,

Subsec. 188(1) substituted by 1994, c. 21, s. 84, applicable where the registration of a charity is revoked pursuant to a notice of intention to revoke its registration that is mailed after 1992. That subsec. formerly read:

(1) Where the registration of a charity is revoked, the charity shall, on or before the day in a taxation year that is one year after the day on which the revocation is effective, pay a tax for the year under this Part equal to the amount, if any, by which the total of

(a) the fair market value, on the day that notice of the Minister's intention to revoke its registration is mailed, of all its assets on that day, and

(b) the total of all gifts for which it issued receipts described in subsection 110.1(2) or 118.1(2) after the day referred to in paragraph (a) and all amounts received after that day from registered charities

exceeds the total of

(c) the fair market value on the day referred to in paragraph (a) of each asset of the charity transferred by it to a qualified donee within the period commencing immediately after that day and expiring at the end of one year from the day on which the revocation is effective,

(d) amounts expended by it within the period described in paragraph (c) on charitable activities carried on by it,

(e) amounts paid by the charity after the day referred to in paragraph (a) in respect of bona fide debts of the charity that were outstanding on that day, and

Para. 188(1)(b) amended by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), s. 155, applicable to 1988 et seq. Para. (b) formerly read:

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount of a gift for which it issued a receipt described in paragraph 110.1(1)(a) or subsection 118.1(2) after the day referred to in paragraph (a) or an amount received after that date from a registered charity.

(1.1) Revocation tax — A charity referred to in subsection (1) is liable to a tax, for its taxation year that is deemed to have ended, equal to the amount determined by the formula

(b) the amount of an appropriation (within the meaning assigned by subsection (2)) in respect of a property transferred to another person in the 120-day period that ended at the end of that taxation year, or

(c) the income of the charity for its winding-up period, including gifts received by the charity in that period from any source and any income that would be computed under section 3 as if that period were a taxation year; and

B is the total of all amounts (other than the amount of an expenditure in respect of which a deduction has been made in computing income for the winding-up period under paragraph (c) of the description of A), each of which is

(a) a debt of the charity that is outstanding at the end of that taxation year,

(b) an expenditure made by the charity during the winding-up period on charitable activities carried on by it, and

(c) an amount in respect of a property transferred by the charity during the winding-up period and not later than the latter[45] of one year from the end of the taxation year and the day, if any, referred to in paragraph (1.2)(c), to a person that was at the time of the transfer an eligible donee in respect of the charity, equal to the amount, if any, by which the fair market value of the property, when transferred, exceeds the consideration given by the person for the transfer.

Proposed Addition — 191(6)

(6) Excluded dividend — partner — If at any time a corporation pays a dividend to a partnership, the corporation is, for the purposes of this subsection and paragraph (a) of the definition "excluded dividend" in subsection (1), deemed to have paid at that time to each member of the partnership a dividend equal to the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount of the dividend paid to the partnership; and

B is the member's specified proportion for the last fiscal period of the partnership that ended before that time (or, if the partnership's first fiscal period includes that time, for that first fiscal period).

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), s. 166, will add subsec. 191(6), applicable to dividends paid after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Section 191 sets out a number of rules relating to the taxes imposed, under Part VI.1 of the Act, on taxable Canadian corporations that pay dividends of certain kinds. Those taxes are not payable in respect of "excluded dividends," a term defined in subsection 191(1). Dividends paid by a corporation to a shareholder that holds a "substantial interest" in the corporation are excluded dividends.

"Substantial interest" is itself defined in subsection 191(2). In general, a shareholder has a substantial interest in a corporation if the shareholder is related to the corporation (otherwise than because of a right under paragraph 251(5)(b)) or if the shareholder's holdings meet certain thresholds in terms of votes and value.

If a shareholder has a substantial interest in a corporation, and is also a member of a partnership that holds shares of the corporation, it is appropriate that a dividend paid by the corporation to the partnership be an excluded dividend, to the extent of the shareholder's interest in the dividend. To ensure this result, new subsection 191(6) is added to the rules that govern the Part VI taxes. The new subsection provides that a dividend paid to a partnership is, for the purposes of the "excluded dividend" definition, considered to have been paid ratably to each member of the partnership.

Three technical aspects of the new rule bear special mention. First, the apportionment of the dividend among the partners is based upon each partner's share of the partnership's income for its last fiscal period that ended before the corporation paid the dividend. (If the dividend was paid during the partnership's first fiscal period, the apportionment looks to that period.)

Second, to ensure appropriate effects where there is more than one tier of partnerships between the dividend-paying corporation and the person that holds a substantial interest in the corporation, the new provision applies to itself. That is, if a member of a partnership is itself a partnership, the rule will treat the dividend-paying corporation as having paid a proportionate amount as a dividend not only to the second partnership, but also to that second partnership's members.

Third, in apportioning a dividend among members of a partnership, new subsection 191(6) uses the new definition of "specified proportion," which is added to subsection 248(1). For further information, see the commentary to that amendment.

191.1 (1) Tax on taxable dividends — Every taxable Canadian corporation shall pay a tax under this Part for each taxation year equal to the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of

(i) 66⅔% of the amount, if any, by which the total of all taxable dividends (other than excluded dividends) paid by the corporation in the year and after 1987 on short-term preferred shares exceeds the corporation's dividend allowance for the year,

Proposed Amendment — 191.1(1)(a)(i)

(i) 50% of the amount, if any, by which the total of all taxable dividends (other than excluded dividends) paid by the corporation in the year on short-term preferred shares exceeds the corporation's dividend allowance for the year,

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), s. 167, will amend subpara. 191.1(1)(a)(i) to read as above, applicable to dividends paid by a corporation in 2003 et seq.

Technical Notes: Subsection 191.1(1) provides for a tax to be paid by a corporation that has paid taxable dividends on taxable preferred shares. In the case of short-term preferred shares, paragraph 191.1(1)(a) sets the rate of the tax at 66 ⅔% of the dividend. This rate produces an amount of tax equal to the amount of income tax that would have been collected had a corporate shareholder sought the same after-tax return in the form of interest. That result obtains, at the current 66 ⅔ percent rate, if interest income is assumed to be taxed at 40%.

As part of a series of amendments reflecting recent and planned reductions in income tax rates, the rate of tax under paragraph 191.1(1)(a) is reduced to 50% of the dividend amount. This provides the desired result on the basis of an assumed tax of 33.3% on interest income, as shown below.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, August 2, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing further to your letter of July 31, 2002, regarding the rates of tax imposed under Part VI.1 of the Income Tax Act and the treatment, under Part I of the Act, of amounts paid under Part VI.1. Specifically, you have asked for written confirmation of this Division's intention to recommend certain changes in both of these areas. You have emphasized that this matter is of pressing concern for your client, and we have accordingly given your enquiry some priority.

This will confirm that we do intend to propose such changes, as part of a series of technical measures designed to reflect recent and planned reductions in corporate income tax rates. Our recommendation in respect of Part VI.1 will be that the rate of tax imposed by subparagraph 191.1(1)(a)(i) be reduced from 66⅔% to 50%. Complementing this, we will recommend that the factor to be applied in computing the deduction for Part I purposes [110(1)(k) — ed.] in respect of Part VI.1 taxes be adjusted from ¾ to 3. Both of these measures would apply for the 2003 and subsequent taxation years.

As you know, I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Parliament will endorse these proposals. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our intentions is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(6) Dividend allowance in short years — Notwithstanding any other provision of this section,

(a) where a corporation has a taxation year that is less than 51 weeks, its dividend allowance for the year is that proportion of its dividend allowance for the year determined without reference to this paragraph that the number of days in the year is of 365; and

(b) where a taxable Canadian corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "first corporation") has more than one taxation year ending in a calendar year and is associated in two or more of those taxation years with another taxable Canadian corporation that has a taxation year ending in that calendar year, the dividend allowance of the first corporation for each taxation year in which it is associated with the other corporation ending in that calendar year is, subject to the application of paragraph (a), an amount equal to the amount that would be its dividend allowance for the first such taxation year if the allowance were determined without reference to paragraph (a).

PART X.3 — LABOUR-SPONSORED VENTURE CAPITAL CORPORATIONS

History: The heading "Labour-Sponsored Venture Capital Corporations" before s. 204.8 amended by 1998, c. 19, s. 50, applicable after February 18, 1997. It formerly read:

Registered Labour-Sponsored Venture Capital Corporations

Proposed Amendment — Part X.3

Federal budget, supplementary information, February 16, 1999: RRSP withdrawals under the Home Buyers' Plan (HBP) and the Lifelong Learning Plan (LLP)

The HBP and the LLP allow a qualifying individual to withdraw RRSP funds on a tax-free basis to purchase a home or to pay for education. HBP withdrawals are repayable over a 15-year period, while LLP withdrawals are repayable over a 10-year period. To the extent that a scheduled repayment for a year is not made, it is added in computing the participant's income for the year.

The Quebec government has proposed to allow individuals to withdraw proceeds from the redemption of provincial LSVCC shares held within an RRSP, without the provincial LSVCC credit being recovered if the withdrawal is made under the HBP or the LLP. Under existing law, the federal credit will not be recovered in these circumstances. Individuals making such withdrawals are expected to acquire replacement shares in annual amounts determined under the existing HBP and LLP repayment schedules. These replacement purchases are not eligible for the Quebec LSVCC credit. Where an individual fails to acquire LSVCC replacement shares, a special Quebec tax of 15 per cent of the shortfall is imposed on the individual to recover the LSVCC credit that Quebec provided on the purchase of the redeemed shares.

The budget proposes that purchases of replacement shares in Quebec LSVCCs likewise not be eligible for the federal LSVCC credit. In addition, where an individual fails to acquire a replacement share, it is proposed to levy a federal penalty tax that matches the special 15 per cent Quebec tax. These proposals will apply from the date the corresponding Quebec proposals apply.

Similar changes are not contemplated for federally-registered LSVCCs or LSVCCs registered in other provinces. Because shares in Quebec LSVCCs are not normally redeemable until retirement, amounts on which an LSVCC credit was paid will be available for small business investment for a considerable period of time even if withdrawn under the HBP or the LLP for part of that time. In contrast, because shares in federally-registered LSVCCs or in LSVCCs registered in other provinces may generally be redeemed without a recovery of the federal credit after eight years, it would be inappropriate to allow the amounts invested in these shares not to be available for small business investment for any length of time in that period.

Proposed Amendment — Asset purchase merger

Letter from Dept. of Finance, October 17, 2005:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your letter of September 26, 2005, requesting that subsection 204.8(2) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") be amended in order to accommodate "asset purchase mergers" involving labour-sponsored venture capital corporations to occur without triggering any penalty tax under Part X.3 of the Act.

As you state in your letter, it is the intention of a number of existing LSVCCs, all managed by [xxx], to consolidate their operations. It is intended that they do this, generally, in three steps. First, one LSVCC (the "Continuing Fund") will purchase, at fair market value, all the assets of one or more LSVCCs (each such LSVCC, a "Terminating Fund") in exchange for Class A shares of the Continuing Fund. Once this is done, the Terminating Fund will redeem the shares of its individual investors, providing, as payment for the redemption, the Class A shares of the Continuing Fund. Afterward, the shell Terminating Fund will be wound up or dissolved. You have informed us that you have obtained a ruling from the Canada Revenue Agency that such a transaction will qualify as a "merger" under subsection 204.85(3) of the Act so that the Continuing Fund will, for the purpose of the LSVCC rules, be treated as a continuation of both the Continuing Fund and the Terminating Fund and that there will be no recovery of the labour-sponsored funds tax credit from the existing investors in the Terminating Fund.

You have informed us that, in order to complete the merger, the articles of incorporation of the Continuing Fund will have to be amended to allow for Class A shares to be issued to a corporation, and to allow a transfer of those Class A shares from the Terminating Fund to the individual investors of the Terminating Fund. However, if the Continuing Fund amends its articles in this way, under the present wording of the Act, paragraph 204.8(2)(a) (which, in conjunction with section 204.841, levies a penalty tax on a registered LSVCC if its articles cease to comply with paragraph 204.81(1)(c)) will be triggered.

The "asset purchase merger" transaction described in your letter does not appear to contravene the tax policy underlying the labour-sponsored funds tax credit program. Consequently, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance modifications to the income tax provisions concerning the labour-sponsored funds tax credit that would permit, without triggering a penalty tax under section 204.841, a Continuing Fund to issue, in the course of an asset purchase merger of the Continuing Fund and the Terminating Fund, its Class A shares to a Terminating Fund in exchange for the net assets of the Terminating Fund if those Class A shares of the Continuing Fund are transferred to the Terminating Fund's Class A shareholders upon the redemption by the terminating fund of the Class A shares of the Terminating Fund. We would also recommend that those modifications be made effective in respect of asset purchase mergers completed after 2004.

While we cannot offer any assurance that our recommendation in this matter will be accepted, we hope our statement of intent in this matter will be helpful in responding to your concern.

Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

"Eligible labour body" substituted for "national central labour body" in para. (b), cl. (c)(ii)(B) and subpara. (c)(iii) of subsec. 204.81(1) by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), s. 119, applicable to 1992 et seq.

Regulations: 6706 (prescribed conditions for 204.81(1)(c)(v)(G)).

Forms: T5005: Application to register a labour-sponsored venture capital corporation.

Proposed Addition — 204.81(1.1), (1.2)

(1.1) Corporations incorporated before March 6, 1996 — In applying clause (1)(c)(v)(E) in relation to any time before 2004 in respect of a corporation incorporated before March 6, 1996, the references in that clause to "eight" are replaced with references to "five" if, at that time, the relevant statements in the corporation's articles refer to "five".

(1.2) Deemed provisions in articles — In applying subsection (1) in relation to any time before 2004, to a corporation incorporated before February 7, 2000, if the articles of the corporation comply with subclause (1)(c)(v)(E)(I) (as modified, where relevant, by subsection (1.1)), those articles are deemed to provide the statement required by subclause (1)(c)(v)(E)(II).

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 169(2), will add subsecs. 204.81(1.1) and (1.2), applicable after February 6, 2000.

Technical Notes: However, federally-registered LSVCCs that were incorporated before March 6, 1996 may contain statements in their articles that provide that the LSVCC shall not redeem certain of its shares unless the redemption occurs more than five years after the day on which such a share was issued. New subsection 204.81(1.1) provides that in applying clause 204.81(1)(c)(v)(E), at any time before 2004, in respect of a corporation incorporated before March 6, 1996, the references in that clause to the word "eight" are replaced with references to the word "five" if, at that time, the relevant statements in the corporation's articles refer to the word "five". This is intended to ensure that the extended (February, or March 1st) redemption provisions required of a federally-registered LSVCC's articles apply equally to shares originally subject to a minimum five year holding period and those subject to a minimum eight year holding period.

New subsection 204.81(1.2) is a transitional rule that provides a federally-registered LSVCC, incorporated before February 7, 2000, with a reasonable amount of time to amend its articles as required by clause 204.81(1)(c)(v)(E). Subsection 204.81(1.2) provides that, in applying subsection 204.81(1) at any time before 2004 to such an LSVCC, if the LSVCC's articles comply with subclause 204.81(1)(c)(v)(E)(I) (as modified by subsection 204.81(1.1)) those articles are deemed to provide the statement required by subclause 204.81(1)(c)(v)(E)(II).

New subsections 204.81(1.1) and (1.2) apply after February 6, 2000. These amendments are part of a set of amendments, announced by the Minister of Finance (News Release 2000-009, dated February 7, 2000 [reproduced under 211.8(1)(a)B(i)(B), (C) — ed.]) concerning the redemption requirements for federally-registered LSVCCs. For information on a related amendment, see the commentary to subsection 211.8(1).

and the subscriber makes at least one payment under the agreement before that day,

(a) the excess amount for a year in respect of the beneficiary shall be deemed not to exceed the excess amount for the year that would be determined under subsection (1) if the total of all such payments made in the year and, where the agreement so provides, amounts paid in the year in satisfaction of the requirement to make such payments under all such agreements by all such subscribers in respect of the beneficiary were equal to the lesser of the amounts described in paragraphs (a) and (b) of the definition "excess amount" in subsection (1); and

(b) in determining a subscriber's share of an excess amount for a year, any payment included in the total described in paragraph (a) in respect of the year shall be excluded in determining the values for A and B in the definition "subscriber's share of the excess amount" in subsection (1).

(3) Refunds from unregistered plans — For the purposes of subsection (1) and section 146.1, where an individual entered into an education savings plan before February 21, 1990, pursuant to a preliminary prospectus issued by a promoter, and the promoter refunds all payments made into the plan and all income accrued thereon to the individual, each payment made by the individual into a registered education savings plan before December 31, 1990 shall be deemed to be a payment made before February 21, 1990, to the extent that the total of all such payments does not exceed the amount so refunded to the individual.

(4) New beneficiary — For the purposes of this Part, if at any particular time an individual (in this subsection referred to as the "new beneficiary") becomes a beneficiary under a registered education savings plan in place of another individual (in this subsection referred to as the "former beneficiary") who ceased at or before the particular time to be a beneficiary under the plan,

(a) except as provided by paragraph (b), each contribution made at an earlier time by or on behalf of a subscriber into the plan in respect of the former beneficiary is deemed also to have been made at that earlier time in respect of the new beneficiary;

(b) except for the purpose of applying this subsection to a replacement of a beneficiary after the particular time, applying subsection (5) to a distribution after the particular time and applying subsection 204.91(3) to events after the particular time, paragraph (a) does not apply as a consequence of the replacement at the particular time of the former beneficiary if

(i) the new beneficiary had not attained 21 years of age before the particular time and a parent of the new beneficiary was a parent of the former beneficiary, or

(ii) both beneficiaries were connected by blood relationship or adoption to an original subscriber under the plan and neither had attained 21 years of age before the particular time; and

(c) except where paragraph (b) applies, each contribution made by or on behalf of a subscriber under the plan in respect of the former beneficiary under the plan is, without affecting the determination of the amount withdrawn from the plan in respect of the new beneficiary, deemed to have been withdrawn at the particular time from the plan to the extent that it was not withdrawn before the particular time.

History: Para. 204.9(4)(b) amended by 1999, c. 22, s. 71, applicable to replacements of beneficiaries that occur after 1997. It formerly read:

Subsec. 204.9(4) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 57(2), applicable to replacements of beneficiaries and distributions that occur after 1996. Subsec. 204.9(4) formerly read:

(4) For the purposes of this Part,

(a) where at any time an individual (in this paragraph referred to as the "new beneficiary") becomes a beneficiary under a registered education savings plan in place of another individual (in this paragraph referred to as the "former beneficiary") who ceases at that time to be a beneficiary under the plan, all payments made before that time into the plan in respect of the former beneficiary shall be deemed to have been made in respect of the new beneficiary; and

(b) where at any time property is transferred from a trust governed by a registered education savings plan (in this paragraph referred to as the "transferor plan") to a trust governed by another registered education savings plan (in this paragraph referred to as the "transferee plan"), unless a beneficiary under the transferee plan was, immediately before that time, a beneficiary under the transferor plan, all payments made before that time in respect of all beneficiaries under the transferor plan shall be deemed to have been made in respect of the beneficiaries under the transferee plan.

(5) Transfers between plans — For the purposes of this Part, if property held by a trust governed by a registered education savings plan (in this subsection referred to as the "transferor plan") is distributed at a particular time to a trust governed by another registered education savings plan (in this subsection referred to as the "transferee plan"),

(a) except as provided by paragraphs (b) and (c), the amount of the distribution is deemed not to have been contributed into the transferee plan;

(b) subject to paragraph (c), each contribution made at any earlier time by or on behalf of a subscriber into the transferor plan in respect of a beneficiary under the transferor plan is deemed also to have been made at that earlier time by the subscriber in respect of each beneficiary under the transferee plan;

(c) except for the purpose of applying this subsection to a distribution after the particular time, applying subsection (4) to a replacement of a beneficiary after the particular time and applying subsection 204.91(3) to events after the particular time, paragraph (b) does not apply as a consequence of the distribution where

(i) any beneficiary under the transferee plan was, immediately before the particular time, a beneficiary under the transferor plan, or

(ii) a beneficiary under the transferee plan had not attained 21 years of age at the particular time and a parent of the beneficiary was a parent of an individual who was, immediately before the particular time, a beneficiary under the transferor plan;

(d) where subparagraph (c)(i) or (ii) applies in respect of the distribution, the amount of the distribution is deemed not to have been withdrawn from the transferor plan; and

(e) each subscriber under the transferor plan is deemed to be a subscriber under the transferee plan.

"affiliate" of a corporation (in this definition referred to as the "parent corporation") at any time is any other corporation where, at that time,

(a) the parent corporation controls the other corporation,

(b) the parent corporation or a corporation controlled by the parent corporation owns

(i) shares of the capital stock of the other corporation that would give the parent corporation or the corporation controlled by the parent corporation 25% or more of the votes that could be cast under all circumstances at an annual meeting of shareholders of that other corporation, and

(ii) shares of the capital stock of the other corporation having a fair market value of 25% or more of the fair market value of all the issued shares of the capital stock of that other corporation, or

(c) the other corporation is controlled by a particular corporation and the parent corporation or a corporation controlled by the parent corporation owns

(i) shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation that would give the parent corporation or the corporation controlled by the parent corporation 25% or more of the votes that could be cast under all circumstances at an annual meeting of shareholders of the particular corporation, and

"carrying value" of a property of a corporation or partnership at any time means

(a) where a balance sheet of the corporation or the partnership as of that time was presented to the shareholders of the corporation or the members of the partnership and the balance sheet was prepared using generally accepted accounting principles and was not prepared using the equity or consolidation method of accounting, the amount in respect of the property reflected in the balance sheet, and

(b) in any other case, the amount that would have been reflected in a balance sheet of the corporation or the partnership as of that time if the balance sheet had been prepared in accordance with generally acceptable accounting principles and neither the equity nor consolidation method of accounting were used;

"cost amount" at any time of a taxpayer's capital interest in a trust that is foreign property is deemed to be the greater of

(a) the cost amount of the interest, determined without reference to this definition, and

(b) where that time is more than 60 days after the end of a taxation year of the trust, the amount that would be the cost amount of the interest if new units of the trust had been issued in satisfaction of each amount payable

(iii) [Repealed]

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 171(2), will replace subparas. (b)(i)–(iii) of the definition "cost amount" in former subsec. 206(1) [repealed by S.C. 2005, c. 30] with subparas. (b)(i) and (ii) to read as above, applicable to months that end after December 20, 2002 and before 2005.

Technical Notes: Part XI of the Act set out rules for a 1% per month penalty tax on excess foreign property held by deferred income plans. Part XI was repealed, effective for months that end after 2004, in Budget Implementation Act, 2005, S.C. 2005, c. 30. A number of amendments are being made to Part XI that are effective prior to its repeal.

"Cost amount" is defined in subsection 206(1) for the purposes of Part XI. The definition was introduced in 2001 to deal with arrangements that provided for trust income to be "capitalized" without the trust issuing new units. Under the definition, the cost amount otherwise determined of a taxpayer's interest in such a trust reflects the capitalized amounts. The definition is amended to clarify that it applies to trusts under which all beneficiaries are registered plan trusts (e.g., trusts described in paragraph (e) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1)).

"designated value" of a property at any time means the greater of

(a) the fair market value at that time of the property, and

(b) the carrying value at that time of the property;

"excluded share" means

(a) a share that is of a class of shares listed on a prescribed stock exchange in Canada, where no share of that class has been issued after December 4, 1985 (otherwise than pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before 5:00 p.m. Eastern Standard Time on December 4, 1985),

(b) a share last acquired after 1995 that is of a class of shares listed on a prescribed stock exchange in Canada, where

(i) no share of that class has been issued after July 20, 1995 (otherwise than pursuant to an agreement in writing made before July 21, 1995), and

(ii) the share would not be foreign property if the expression "primarily from foreign property" in paragraph (d.1) of the definition "foreign property" in this subsection were read as "primarily from portfolio investments in property that is foreign property" and that paragraph were read without reference to "(other than an excluded share)", and

(c) a share last acquired after 1995 as a consequence of the exercise of a right acquired before 1996 where the share would not be foreign property if the expression "primarily from foreign property" in paragraph (d.1) of the definition "foreign property" in this subsection were read as "primarily from portfolio investments in property that is foreign property" and that paragraph were read without reference to "(other than an excluded share)";

"foreign property" means

(a) tangible property situated outside Canada except automotive equipment registered in Canada,

(b) automotive equipment not registered in Canada pursuant to the laws of Canada or a province,

(c) intangible property (other than any property described in paragraphs (d) to (g)) situated outside Canada including, without restricting the generality of the foregoing, any patent under the laws of a country other than Canada and any licence in respect thereof,

(d) any share of the capital stock of a corporation other than a Canadian corporation,

(d.1) except as provided by subsection (1.1), any share (other than an excluded share) of the capital stock of, or any debt obligation issued by, a corporation (other than an investment corporation, mutual fund corporation or registered investment) that is a Canadian corporation, where shares of the corporation can reasonably be considered to derive their value, directly or indirectly, primarily from foreign property,

Proposed Amendment — Former 206(1)"foreign property"(d.1)

(d.1) any share (other than an excluded share) of the capital stock of, or any debt obligation (other than a debt obligation described in subparagraph (g)(iii)) issued by, a corporation (other than an investment corporation, a mutual fund corporation or a registered investment) that is a Canadian corporation, if shares of the corporation can reasonably be considered to derive their value, directly or indirectly, primarily from foreign property,

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 171(3), will amend para. (d.1) of the definition "foreign property" in former subsec. 206(1) [repealed by S.C. 2005, c. 30] to read as above, applicable to months that end after October 2003 and before 2005.

Technical Notes: "Foreign property" is defined in subsection 206(1). Under paragraph (d.1) of the definition, foreign property includes certain shares and debt issued by Canadian corporations, if shares of the corporation may reasonably be considered to derive their value primarily from foreign property. Paragraph (g) of the definition treats as foreign property the indebtedness of a non-resident person other than indebtedness issued by various international organizations or indebtedness issued by an authorized foreign bank and payable at a Canadian branch of that bank.

Paragraphs (d.1) and (g) are amended to provide that a mortgage obligation that is fully secured by real property situated in Canada is not foreign property. These amendments apply to months that end after October 2003 and before 2005.

(e) except as prescribed, any share of the capital stock of a mutual fund corporation or investment corporation that is not a registered investment, other than a share of the capital stock of an investment corporation that was last acquired before October 14, 1971,

(f) any property that, under the terms or conditions thereof or any agreement relating thereto, is convertible into, is exchangeable for or confers a right to acquire, property that is foreign property, but not including property that is

(i) a share of the capital stock of a Canadian corporation listed on a prescribed stock exchange in Canada, or

(ii) a right issued before 1984 and listed on a prescribed stock exchange in Canada to acquire a share of the capital stock of a Canadian corporation,

(g) indebtedness of a non-resident person, other than

(i) indebtedness issued by an authorized foreign bank and payable at a branch in Canada of the bank, or

(ii) indebtedness issued or guaranteed by

(A) the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development,

(B) the International Finance Corporation,

(C) the Inter-American Development Bank,

(D) the Asian Development Bank,

(E) the Caribbean Development Bank,

(F) the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development,

(G) the African Development Bank, or

(H) a prescribed person,

Proposed Addition — Former 206(1)"foreign property"(g)(iii)

(iii) a debt obligation that is fully secured by a mortgage, charge, hypothec or similar instrument in respect of real or immovable property situated in Canada or that would be fully secured were it not for a decline in the fair market value of the property after the debt obligation was issued,

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 171(4), will add subpara. (g)(iii) to the definition "foreign property" in former subsec. 206(1) [repealed by S.C. 2005, c. 30], applicable to months that end after October 2003 and before 2005.

Technical Notes: See under 206(1)"foreign property"(d.1) above.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, November 3, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

This is in reply to your letter of September 22, 2003 in which you seek an amendment to the Income Tax Act to address certain practical difficulties of monitoring the foreign property character of Canadian-based commercial mortgage-backed securities (CMBS).

We understand that CMBS in Canada are generally issued as certificates representing undivided co-ownership interests in a pool of mortgage loans secured by commercial real property situated in Canada. To determine the foreign property character of the certificates, it is necessary to determine the character of each of the mortgage loans in the pool based on the attributes of the issuer. As the issuers are typically private corporations, obtaining the information necessary to make on-going determinations as to the applicability of paragraphs (d.1) and (g) of the "foreign property" definition in subsection 206(1) and subsection 206(1.1) is time-consuming and expensive. Finally, we understand that the foreign property component of typical CMBS offerings in Canada is minimal.

Given these factors, we are prepared to recommend relief. In particular, we will recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Income Tax Act be amended, effective for months ending after October 2003, to exclude from the definition "foreign property" certificates representing undivided co-ownership interests in a pool of mortgage loans secured by real property situated in Canada, subject to the following conditions:

- at the time of issuance of the certificates, not more than 20% of the total amount of the mortgage loans in the pool would otherwise constitute foreign property;
- at the time of issuance of the certificates, not more than 20% of the total amount of the mortgage loans in the pool is attributable to mortgage loans issued by a single person or related group;
- the certificates are issued as part of an offering of at least $25 million;
- the amount of each mortgage loan in the pool, at the time [of] its issuance, (together with the amount of any other debt of equal or superior rank) does not exceed the fair market value, at that time, of the real property subject to the mortgage loan; and
- no mortgage loan is added to the pool after issuance of the certificates unless it is non-foreign property.

As you are aware, we are also considering possibility of providing a more general exclusion for any mortgage loan in respect of real property situated in Canada. If a decision is made to provide a general exclusion, it would be communicated by way of public announcement. [Subpara. (g)(iii) provides this more general exclusion — ed.]

I trust this addresses your concerns and thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Possible Future Addition [abandoned] — Tax on Pension Funds Holding Income Trusts (likely s. 207.21)

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, March 23, 2004: Income Trusts

. . . [Notice of Ways and Means Motion resolutions (12)-(14) no longer reproduced — ed.]

Budget 2004 proposes two measures to limit the level of investment that a pension fund can place in business income trusts.

First, it is proposed that restricted investment property holdings of pension funds (RPP trusts, RPP corporations and tax-exempt pension investment corporations) be limited to no more than 1% of the book value of the fund's assets. Excess restricted investment property holdings would be subject to a 1% per-month penalty tax. For this purpose:

- Restricted investment property would include direct holdings (units and debt) of business income trusts. It would also include holdings of investment vehicles such as mutual fund trusts, which give pension funds indirect exposure to business income trust investments.
- Holdings in an investment vehicle would be restricted investment property if more than 1% of its holdings consist of restricted investment property. This treatment would be similar to the manner in which investment vehicles are generally treated for the purposes of the foreign property limit.

Second, it is proposed that investment by pension funds will be limited to no more than 5% of the units of any business income trust. Excess holdings in any given business income trust would also be subject to a 1% per-month penalty tax based on the fair market value of the excess units held.

Restricted investment property will not include investments in resource royalty trusts and REITs, given that pension funds can invest directly in the type of property held by those entities. Deferred income plans that are not RPPs, such as RRSPs and registered retirement income funds (RRIFs), will not be affected by these proposals.

Existing investments by pension funds in business income trusts will be given transitional relief. Specifically, existing investments in restricted investment property would not give rise to penalty tax themselves, but they would be taken into account in determining the extent to which new restricted investment property investments could be acquired. This transitional relief for direct holdings in business income trusts would cease after 10 years. Transitional relief for indirect holdings, however, would cease after five years in recognition of the greater risk for pension funds to expand their holdings in income trusts through indirect investments such as pooled investment vehicles and other mutual funds.

To ensure that investment vehicles such as mutual funds have sufficient time to develop systems required to monitor the new limits and possibly restructure their portfolios, it is proposed that these penalty taxes apply for months that end after 2004.

Dept. of Finance news release 2004-036, May 18, 2004: Minister of Finance Announces Consultations on Pension Fund Investment in Business Income Trusts

Since the March 23, 2004 tabling of the budget, several pension funds, financial market stakeholders and provincial governments have raised concerns about the proposed investment limits. In response to these representations — including a request from the Government of Ontario — the proposals to limit pension fund investment in business income trusts will be suspended.

Officials will consult with representatives of the pension fund industry, the investment industry, provincial governments and other interested parties. Details of the consultation process will be released soon. Following consultations, the Government will issue legislative proposals. [Detailed Backgrounder not reproduced — ed.]

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, February 23, 2005: Income Trusts

In the 2004 budget, the Government identified a risk to tax revenue posed by business income trusts, which have grown considerably in recent years. As flow-through entities, business income trusts shift the point of taxation from the corporation to the investor. Where the investor is taxable, the revenue loss to Government is small. However, where the investor is tax-exempt, the net fiscal impact may be significant.

The 2004 budget noted that expected provincial legislation to limit the liability of investors in income trusts could stimulate additional investment in business income trusts, including by tax-exempt entities, thereby contributing to further erosion of tax revenues. Accordingly, to protect tax revenues while still allowing the business income trust market to develop in an orderly manner, the 2004 budget proposed to limit the level of pension fund investment in business income trusts.

After the tabling of the 2004 budget, however, a number of stakeholders expressed concern about the impact of the proposals. In response, the Government decided to suspend the implementation of these measures and to engage in further consultation.

The decision in the budget to eliminate the foreign property rule [see under 206(2) — ed.] also lifts a restriction that applied, under this rule, to investments in limited partnerships. Limited partnerships have many of the same characteristics, from a tax policy perspective, as business income trusts and other flow-through entities, and correspondingly pose many of the same policy issues.

The Government will consult stakeholders on tax issues related to business income trusts and other flow-through entities. A consultation paper will be released by the Department of Finance shortly after the budget. The consultation will be open and transparent and will involve third parties to ensure a range of views is engaged on a broad spectrum of options.

The Government will continue to monitor developments in the markets for business income trusts and other flow-through entities during the consultation process. Future initiatives, if any, will be taken following these consultations and in full consideration of the costs and benefits related to business income trusts and other flow-through entities.

Dept. of Finance news release 2005-055, September 8, 2005: Department of Finance Launches Consultations on Issues Related to Publicly Listed Flow-Through Entities (Income Trusts and Limited Partnerships)

The Department of Finance today launched consultations on tax and other issues related to business income trusts and other flow-through entities (FTEs). Submissions will be received until December 31, 2005.

A consultation paper entitled Tax and Other Issues Related to Publicly Listed Flow-Through Entities (Income Trusts and Limited Partnerships) is available on the Finance Canada Web site. The purpose of this paper is to promote discussion and third-party input on a number of key questions by providing background information on FTEs and related economic efficiency issues, an international comparison, as well as the estimated impact of FTEs on federal tax revenues.

An additional vehicle for public input will be symposiums to be organized and hosted by the Canadian Tax Foundation. The Canadian Tax Foundation is an independent non-profit organization devoted to education and research in the fields of taxation and public finance in Canada. The Foundation provides a forum for expert analysis and discussion of issues in these fields, but does not itself advise on or advocate specific policy recommendations to governments. The symposiums are intended to help foster a better understanding and public discussion of the tax and economic policy issues relating to FTEs. The Foundation will provide further information on these symposiums as soon as detailed arrangements have been finalized.

Today's launch of consultations by the Department of Finance follows through on the announcement in Budget 2005 that the government would have open and transparent consultations with stakeholders on tax issues related to FTEs.

During the consultation process, the Department will continue to monitor developments in the FTE market. Any future initiatives will be taken following these consultations and in full consideration of the costs and benefits related to FTEs.

Trusts and limited partnerships have been used by investors for several decades. In the last 10 years, publicly listed income trusts have gained popularity as investment vehicles. Since 2000, this growth has accelerated sharply.

Copies of the consultation paper can be found on the Department of Finance web site at www.fin.gc.ca/activty/consult_e.html. Submissions can be made by e-mail at trusts-fiducies@fin.gc.ca. For greater transparency, comments received will be made available on the Department's Web site with the consent of the submitting parties.

For further information, media may contact: David Gamble, Public Affairs and Operations Division, (613) 996-8080.

[Submissions may be sent until the end of 2005 to Denis Normand, Tax Policy Branch, Business Income Tax Division, Dept. of Finance, 17th floor, East Tower, 140 O'Connor St., Ottawa K1A 0G5, fax 613-943-8436 or email trusts-fiducies@fin.gc.ca — ed.]

Dept. of Finance news release 2005-059, September 19, 2005: Government Postpones Advance Rulings on Income Trusts and Other Flow-Through Entities: Emphasizes Importance of Consultations

Minister of Finance Ralph Goodale today announced that he has asked Minister of National Revenue John McCallum to postpone providing advance rulings respecting flow-through entity (FTE) structures effective immediately. Minister McCallum supports this request.

On September 8, 2005, the Government issued a paper and launched consultations on the economic and fiscal implications of FTEs. Submissions will be received until December 31, 2005.

"We launched consultations because of our concern about how the increased use of this type of business vehicle may affect economic growth," said Minister Goodale. "We have a viable and productive corporate sector that invests, creates jobs and contributes its fair share of tax. I want to make sure that government tax revenues are appropriately safeguarded, but even more importantly I want strong and vibrant Canadian enterprises of all sizes in all sectors contributing to a dynamic and growing economy."

The Minister said that, while these consultations are underway and until the Government announces what action it may take, it would be inappropriate for the Government to issue advance tax rulings on these matters.

Minister Goodale encouraged the public to participate fully in the consultation process. He added that the Department of Finance is closely monitoring developments in the FTE market with a view to proposing measures in response to the consultations. The Government will consider what, if any, transitional measures would be appropriate.

For further information, media may contact: Pat Breton, Press Secretary, Office of the Minister of Finance, (613) 996-7861; David Gamble, Public Affairs and Operations Division, (613) 996-8080.

Minister of National Revenue John McCallum will resume providing advance tax rulings on flow-through entity structures.

(c) to the extent that the property is an interest in a bituminous sands deposit, oil sands deposit or oil shale deposit, the amount deducted under subsection 66.2(2) in computing the person's income for the year to the extent that it may reasonably be considered to be attributable to the cost of that interest;

"carved-out property" of a person means

(II) the expiration of the term of the head lease, whichever occurs first, and

(B) in any other case, at any time before the expiration of a period of 10 years commencing when the property was acquired, or

(iv) another person has a right under an arrangement to acquire, at any time, the property or a portion thereof or a similar property from the person and it is reasonable to consider that one of the main reasons for the arrangement, or any series of transactions or events that includes the arrangement, was to reduce or postpone tax that would, but for this subparagraph, be payable under this Part, or

(b) an interest in a partnership or trust that holds a Canadian resource property where it is reasonable to consider that one of the main reasons for the existence of the interest is to reduce or postpone the tax that would, but for this paragraph, be payable under this Part,

but does not include

(c) an interest in respect of a property that was acquired by the person solely in consideration of the person's undertaking under an agreement to incur Canadian exploration expense or Canadian development expense in respect of the property and, where the agreement so provides, to acquire gas or oil well equipment (as defined in subsection 1104(2) of the Income Tax Regulations) in respect of the property,

(c.1) an interest in respect of a property that was retained by the person under an agreement under which another person obtained an absolute or conditional right to acquire another interest in respect of the property, if the other interest is not carved-out property of the other person because of paragraph (c),

(I) identical to its interest (referred to in this clause as the "particular interest") as a beneficiary under the other trust,

(II) acquired from each person or partnership from whom it acquired the particular interest, and

(III) held, at all times after the later of October 1, 1987 and the day on which the particular interest was created, by the same persons or partnerships that held the particular interest at those times; or

(e) a particular partnership any of the members of which is at that time

(i) another partnership, except if

Technical Notes: Section 210 is amended so that a number of definitions that apply for the purposes of Part XII.2 are now found in new subsection 210(1). In addition, new subsection 210(2) replaces section 210.1, which is being repealed.

New subsection 210(1) contains the definitions "designated beneficiary" (previously found in section 210) and "designated income" (previously found in subsection 210.2(2)). These definitions apply in Part XII.2.

Under paragraphs (a) and (b) of the definition "designated beneficiary", a designated beneficiary includes, respectively, a non-resident person and a non-resident-owned investment corporation. Under paragraph (c) of the definition, a person exempt from tax under Part I of the Act is treated as a designated beneficiary because of owning an interest in a trust (acquired from a beneficiary under the trust) unless, generally speaking, no taxable entity previously owned that interest. Under paragraph (d) of the definition, a trust is a designated beneficiary of another trust if a beneficiary of the trust includes, generally, either a person or partnership described in any of paragraphs (a), (b), (c) or (e) of the definition or another trust (other than a testamentary trust resident in Canada). Under paragraph (e) of the definition, a partnership is a designated beneficiary of a trust if a member of the partnership is a person described in paragraph (a), (b) or (d) of the definition, another partnership or a person exempt from tax under Part I by reason of subsection 149(1).

The opening words of the definition "designated beneficiary" are amended so that the references in the definition to a "trust" under which there may be a designated beneficiary are references to a "particular trust".

Paragraph (c) of the definition "designated beneficiary" is amended to clarify that a designated beneficiary of a particular trust includes, except as provided in subparagraphs (c)(i) and (ii) of the definition, a person who is, because of subsection 149(1), exempt from tax under Part I on all or part of their taxable income and who acquired an interest in the particular trust after October 1, 1987 directly or indirectly from a beneficiary under the particular trust.

Paragraph (d) of the definition "designated beneficiary" is amended so that a designated beneficiary of a particular trust includes another trust (in this commentary referred to as the "other trust") having as a beneficiary any one of the following persons or partnerships:

- under subparagraphs (d)(i) and (ii) of the definition, a non-resident person (including a trust) or a non-resident-owned investment corporation;
- under subparagraphs (d)(iii) of the definition, any trust, other than
  - a testamentary trust (however, note that if the testamentary trust were non-resident, the other trust would be treated as a designated beneficiary of the particular trust because of subparagraph (d)(i)),
  - a mutual fund trust,
  - a trust that is exempt because of subsection 149(1) from tax under Part I on all or part of its taxable income (however, note that under subparagraph (d)(iv), described below, such a trust may cause the other trust to be a designated beneficiary of the particular trust), and
  - a trust none of the beneficiaries under which is, at that time, a designated beneficiary under it and whose interest, at that time, in the other trust was held, at all times after the day on which the interest was created, either by it or by persons who were exempt because of subsection 149(1) from tax under Part I on all of their taxable income;
- under subparagraph (d)(iv) of the definition, a person (including a trust) or partnership that
  - is a designated beneficiary under the other trust because of paragraph (c) of the definition (i.e., a person who is, because of subsection 149(1), exempt from tax under Part I on all or part of their taxable income and who acquired an interest in the particular trust after October 1, 1987 directly or indirectly from a beneficiary under the particular trust) or because of paragraph (e) of the definition, or — would, based on the assumptions set out in clause (d)(iv)(B), be a designated beneficiary under the particular trust because of paragraph (c) or (e) of the definition.

Note that a person or partnership that is a beneficiary of the other trust need only be described in any of one of subparagraphs (d)(i) to (iv) in order for the other trust to be a designated beneficiary of the particular trust. Note also that references in paragraph (d) of the definition to the expression "resident in Canada" are removed as these are unnecessary given that paragraph (a) of the definition provides that a non-resident person is a designated beneficiary.

Paragraph (d) of the definition is also amended to provide that the other trust will not be treated, under that paragraph, as a designated beneficiary of the particular trust if it is a testamentary trust, a mutual fund trust, or a trust that is exempt because of subsection 149(1) from tax under Part I on all or part of its taxable income. However, these excluded trusts may be treated as designated beneficiaries of the particular trust under paragraphs (a) or (c) of that definition (e.g., a non-resident testamentary trust).

Amended paragraph (e) of the definition provides, in new subparagraph (e)(i), that a designated beneficiary of a particular trust includes a particular partnership any of the members of which is another partnership. However, no such other partnership will cause the particular partnership to be a designated beneficiary under the particular partnership if

- all such other partnerships are Canadian partnerships (as defined in subsection 102(1)),
- the interest of each such other partnership in the particular partnership is held, at all times after the day on which the interest was created, by the other partnership or by persons who were exempt because of subsection 149(1) from tax under Part I on all of their taxable income,
- the interest of each member, of each such other partnership, that is a person exempt because of subsection 149(1) from tax under Part I on all or part of its taxable income was held, at all times after the day on which the interest was created, by that member or by persons who were exempt because of subsection 149(1) from tax under Part I on all of their taxable income, and
- the particular partnership's beneficial interest in the particular trust is held, at all times after the day on which the interest was created, by the particular partnership or by persons who were exempt because of subsection 149(1) from tax under Part I on all of their taxable income.

Under subparagraphs (e)(ii) to (iv), a particular partnership will be a designated beneficiary under a particular trust if any one of the partnership's members is a non-resident person, a non-resident-owned investment corporation, or a specified person. For this purpose, a specified person means a trust that is a designated beneficiary of the particular trust because of paragraph (d) of the definition or a trust that would be such a designated beneficiary on the following assumptions: the other trust were at that time a beneficiary under the particular trust whose interest as a beneficiary under the particular trust were

- acquired from each person or partnership from whom the particular partnership acquired its interest as a beneficiary under the particular trust, and
- held at all times after the later of October 1, 1987 and the day on which the particular partnership's interest as a beneficiary under the particular trust was created, by the same persons or partnerships that held at those times that interest of the particular partnership.

New subparagraph (e)(v) of the definition provides that a particular partnership will be a designated beneficiary of a particular trust if any of the members of the particular partnership is a person exempt because of subsection 149(1) from tax under Part I on all or part of its taxable income, unless the interest of the particular partnership in the particular trust was held, at all times after the day on which the interest was created, by the particular partnership or by persons who were exempt because of subsection 149(1) from tax under Part I on all of their taxable income.

Note that, for the purposes of the definition "designated beneficiary", a new rule in section 132.2 applies in respect of certain trust units acquired by a beneficiary under a "qualifying exchange" (as defined in subsection 132.2(1)). For more detail, see the commentary on section 132.2.

"designated income", of a trust for a taxation year, means the amount that would be the income of the trust for the year determined under section 3 if

(a) this Act were read without reference to subsections 104(6), (12) and (30);

(b) the trust had no income other than taxable capital gains from dispositions described in paragraph (c) and incomes from

(i) real or immovable properties in Canada (other than Canadian resource properties),

(ii) timber resource properties,

(iii) Canadian resource properties (other than properties acquired by the trust before 1972), and

(iv) businesses carried on in Canada;

(c) the only taxable capital gains and allowable capital losses referred to in paragraph 3(b) were from

(i) dispositions of taxable Canadian property, and

(ii) dispositions of particular property (other than property described in any of subparagraphs 128.1(4)(b)(i) to (iii)), or property for which the particular property is substituted, that was transferred at any particular time to a particular trust in circumstances in which subsection 73(1) or 107.4(3) applied, if

(A) it is reasonable to conclude that the property was so transferred in anticipation that a person beneficially interested at the particular time in the particular trust would subsequently cease to reside in Canada, and a person beneficially interested at the particular time in the particular trust did subsequently cease to reside in Canada, or

(B) when the property was so transferred, the terms of the particular trust satisfied the conditions in subparagraph 73(1.01)(c)(i) or (iii), and it is reasonable to conclude that the transfer was made in connection with the cessation of residence, on or before the transfer, of a person who was, at the time of the transfer, beneficially interested in the particular trust and a spouse or common-law partner, as the case may be, of the transferor of the property to the particular trust; and

(d) the only losses referred to in paragraph 3(d) were losses from sources described in any of subparagraphs (b)(i) to (iv).

Paragraphs (a), (b) and (d) of the new definition "designated income" in subsection 210(1) are largely unchanged from the equivalent provisions found in repealed subsection 210.2(2).

Paragraph (c) of the new definition replaces paragraph 210.2(2)(b). Under subparagraph (c)(i), designated income is calculated by reference to taxable capital gains and allowable capital losses from dispositions of the trust's taxable Canadian property. Subparagraph (c)(ii) provides that a trust's designated income is also calculated by reference to taxable capital gains and allowable capital losses from a disposition by the trust of particular property (other than property described in any of subparagraphs 128.1(4)(b)(i) to (iii)).

In this context, particular property (or property for which the particular property is a substitute) must be property (referred to in this commentary as the "transferred property") that was transferred to a particular trust in circumstances in which subsection 73(1) or 107.4(3) applied. This condition will be met whether the particular trust is the trust in respect of which the designated income is being determined, or any other trust to which the transferred property was transferred in circumstances in which subsection 73(1) or 107.4(3) applied and that subsequently transferred, directly or indirectly, the property to the trust in respect of which the designated income is being determined.

In addition, clauses (c)(ii)(A) and (B) of the definition require

- that it be reasonable to conclude that the transferred property was, at a particular time, transferred to the particular trust in anticipation of the emigration of a person beneficially interested at the particular time in the particular trust and that a person (whether the anticipated person or another) beneficially interested at that time in the particular trust subsequently ceases to reside in Canada, or
- at the particular time that the transferred property was transferred to the particular trust, that the terms of the particular trust satisfy the conditions in subparagraph 73(1.01)(c)(i) or (iii) and that it be reasonable to conclude that the transfer was made in connection with the cessation of residence, on or before that time, of a person who was, at that time, beneficially interested in the particular trust and a spouse or common-law partner, as the case may be, of the transferor of the transferred property to the particular trust.

Related Provisions: 248(5) — Substituted property.

(2) Tax not payable — No tax is payable under this Part for a taxation year by a trust that was throughout the year

(a) a testamentary trust;

(b) a mutual fund trust;

(c) exempt from tax under Part I because of subsection 149(1);

(d) a trust to which paragraph (a), (a.1) or (c) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1) applies; or

(e) non-resident.

Technical Notes: See under 210.1 below.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), s. 173, will amend s. 210 to read as above, applicable to 1996 et seq. except that para. (c) of the definition "designated income" in subsec. 210(1), as amended, is to be read

" (a) in respect of dispositions that occur after October 1, 1996 and before December 21, 2002, as follows:

(c) the only taxable capital gains and allowable capital losses referred to in paragraph 3(b) were from dispositions of taxable Canadian property; and;

and

(b) in respect of dispositions that occur in a 1996 taxation year and before October 2, 1996, as follows:

(c) the only taxable capital gains and allowable capital losses referred to in paragraph 3(b) were from dispositions of property that would have been taxable Canadian property if, at no time in the year, the trust had been resident in Canada; and.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, December 11, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of April 11, 2003, concerning the proposed definition "designated beneficiary" in Part XII.2 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"), contained in the legislative proposals relating to income tax released by the Finance Minister on December 20, 2002. I would also like to acknowledge our meeting of May 13, 2003 and your subsequent discussions with Mr. Grant Nash of this Division.

As you know, Part XII.2 of the Act seeks to avoid the minimization of tax on specified Canadian-source income earned by non-residents through a Canadian-resident trust. Part XII.2 is also intended to discourage arrangements between taxable and tax-exempt beneficiaries designed to allow taxable income earned by a trust to be flowed through to tax-exempt beneficiaries after the acquisition of the trust unit by the tax-exempt beneficiary from the taxable beneficiary. Part XII.2, therefore, plays an important role in protecting the Canadian tax base and ensuring that taxpayers that use trust intermediaries to hold property do not obtain income advantages that are not available to taxpayers that hold such property directly.

Part XII.2 tax is levied at the trust level, but generally is payable only where a trust has a "designated beneficiary". Under the proposed definition "designated beneficiary" contained in the legislative proposals, a designated beneficiary under a particular trust would include a particular partnership if any member of the particular partnership were another partnership. In your letter, you are seeking a modification to that definition so that the particular partnership would not be treated as a designated beneficiary of the trust if it were a Canadian partnership the membership interests in which trade on a prescribed stock exchange.

We have considered the arrangement that you have identified and a number of other arrangements involving partnerships that invest directly, or indirectly through other partnerships, in trusts. In light of these deliberations, we are prepared to recommend modifications to the definition "designated beneficiary", but we are of the view that in dealing with partnership arrangements under Part XII.2 it is appropriate that partnerships be required to ascertain the characteristics of their members in order for a partnership to avoid characterization as a designated beneficiary under a trust. Accordingly, the modifications that we would support in this context would be narrower than those that you proposed.

In particular, a particular partnership that is a beneficiary of a trust will continue to be treated as a designated beneficiary under the trust if any of its members is another partnership. However, we will recommend that any such other partnership, that is a member of the particular partnership, will not cause the particular partnership to be a designated beneficiary under the trust if:

- that other partnership is a Canadian partnership (as defined by subsection 248(1) of the Act),
- that other partnership is a limited partnership whose interest in the particular partnership is held, at all times after the day on which the interest was created, by it or by persons ("eligible persons") who were exempt because of subsection 149(1) from Part I tax on all of their taxable income,
- the interest of each member, of the other partnership, that is a person exempt because of subsection 149(1) from Part I tax on all or part of its taxable income was held, at all times after the day on which the interest was created, by that member or by eligible persons, and
- the beneficial interest of the particular partnership in the trust was held, at all times after the day on which the interest was created, by the particular partnership or by eligible persons.

Based on our discussions with you, we are also prepared to recommend that these modifications be effective for the 2001 and subsequent taxation years.

Thank you for writing to us on this matter.

Yours sincerely,

Letter from Dept. of Finance, June 13, 2001:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in reply to your letters to Mr. Len Farber of March 5 and March 9, 2001 and your letter of April 10, 2001 to Mr. Grant Nash of this Division, concerning the rules for designated beneficiaries in section 210 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

The definition "designated beneficiary" in section 210 applies for the purposes of Part XII.2 of the Act. One of the objectives of Part XII.2 tax is to prevent the minimization of tax on specified Canadian-source income that would otherwise arise where a Canadian trust's income is distributed to a non-resident and is subject only to Part XIII tax. Part XII.2 tax is also meant to discourage transactions between taxable and tax-exempt beneficiaries designed to allow taxable income earned by a trust to be flowed-through to tax-exempt beneficiaries after the acquisition of a trust unit by the tax-exempt beneficiary from the taxable beneficiaries.

We understand that you have seen a sanitized version of two earlier letters issued by us [below — ed.] in which we agreed to recommend changes to the definition "designated beneficiary" in section 210 of the Act. Under the structure described in the earlier letters ("double-tier structure"), registered pension plans and other investors would invest in units issued by a unit trust ("top fund"). The top fund would in turn invest in units issued by other trusts ("bottom funds"). In the earlier letter, we agreed to recommend changes so that the top fund would not be considered a designated beneficiary of the bottom fund solely because the beneficiaries of the top fund include a person exempt from tax under Part I of the Act. However, under the recommended changes, a top fund would be considered a designated beneficiary of the bottom fund if the top fund acquired its interest in the bottom fund directly or indirectly from another beneficiary of the bottom fund, unless the interest was owned, at all times after the creation of the bottom fund, by the top fund or a person exempt from tax under Part I of the Act because of subsection 149(1).

You have asked that we clarify whether it was intended that the proposed changes would accommodate structures of more than two levels of trust ("multiple-tier structures"). In particular, you have described a structure in which the units of the top fund are held by a third unit trust (i.e. pooled fund arrangement) the units of which are in turn held by other trusts none of which is a designated beneficiary of the third trust. You have also indicated that similar pooled fund arrangements may be used involving multiple levels of unit trusts.

In light of the policy objectives of Part XII.2, we are prepared to recommend a further change to the definition "designated beneficiary". In particular, we will recommend that a top fund be treated as a designated beneficiary of a bottom fund, subject to the exceptions described below, where the top fund acquires its interest directly from the bottom fund or directly or indirectly from another beneficiary of the bottom fund. However, the top fund would not be a designated beneficiary of the bottom fund at a particular time where it meets two conditions. The first condition would be that its interest in the bottom fund be owned at all times after the date on which the bottom fund was created by the top fund or a person exempt from tax under Part I because of subsection 149(1). The second condition would be that none of the beneficiaries of the top fund be a designated beneficiary of the top fund. We will further recommend that these amendments be effective for the 1996 and subsequent taxation years.

Thank you for writing to us on this matter.

Yours sincerely,

Letter from Dept. of Finance, December 9, 1999:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of October 20, 1999 concerning the definition "designated beneficiary" in section 210 of the Income Tax Act. I apologize for the delay in responding to you.

I am attaching a copy of our earlier letter to you of September 3, 1996 in which we agree to recommend changes to the definition "designated beneficiary" so that Part XII.2 tax is not exigible in the circumstances of certain kinds of "tiering" arrangements involving trusts (such as, for example, those arrangements described in your letters of October 20, 1999 and June 10, 1996). It continues to be our intention to recommend inclusion of this amendment in a future technical bill.

Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 25, 1998:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in reply to your letter of May 13, 1998 concerning the rules for designated beneficiaries in section 210 of the Income Tax Act. I understand that you have had access to a sanitized version of a letter from this Division on the same subject dated September 3, 1996.

Your letter contemplates a structure involving a number of different trusts resident in Canada and partnerships. Under this structure, a trust governed by a registered pension plan and other investors resident in Canada will have interests in a trust (the "middle trust"). The middle trust will invest in units issued by a unit trust (the "bottom trust"). In addition, a registered charity and other taxpayers resident in Canada will invest in a partnership which, in turn, will invest in units issued by the bottom trust. We also assume from the comments in your letter that neither the middle trust nor the partnership will acquire units of the bottom trust from other unitholders of the trust, but will instead acquire their units directly from the bottom trust.

One of the objectives of Part XII.2 tax is to prevent the minimization of tax on specified Canadian-source income that would otherwise arise where a Canadian trust's income is distributed to a non-resident and is subject only to Part XIII tax. Part XII.2 tax is also meant to discourage transactions between taxable and tax-exempt beneficiaries designed to allow "lumpy" taxable income earned by a trust to be flowed-through to tax-exempt beneficiaries after the acquisition of a trust unit by the tax-exempt beneficiary from the taxable beneficiaries.

Given the existing structure and objectives of Part XII.2, we agree it would be anomalous for either the middle trust or partnership in the circumstances described above to be treated as "designated beneficiaries" under the bottom trust. I am prepared to recommend amendments to eliminate this anomaly. I expect these amendments will be introduced in a future technical bill and be effective from no later than the beginning of this year.

Thank you for writing to us on this matter.

Yours sincerely,

Director, Tax Legislation Division

Letter from Dept. of Finance, September 3, 1996:

Dear [xxx]

This is in reply to your letter of June 10, 1996 to Simon Thompson regarding a suggested change to the definition of "designated beneficiary" in section 210 of the Income Tax Act.

Your letter contemplates a structure involving a number of different trusts resident in Canada. Under this structure, registered pension plans and other investors resident in Canada will invest in trust units issued by one unit trust (the "top fund"). The top fund will invest in units issued by other unit trusts (the "bottom funds"). You have asked that section 210 of the Act be amended so the top fund will not be a "designated beneficiary" of the bottom funds as a consequence of the top fund having beneficiaries (i.e., registered pension plans) which are exempt from tax under Part I of the Act.

We agree that one of the objectives of Part XII.2 tax is to prevent the minimization of tax on specified Canadian-source income that would otherwise arise where a Canadian trust's income is distributed to a non-resident and is subject only to Part XIII tax. However, Part XII.2 tax is also meant to discourage transactions between taxable and tax-exempt beneficiaries designed to allow "lumpy" taxable income earned by a trust to be flowed-through to tax-exempt beneficiaries after the acquisition of a trust unit by the tax-exempt beneficiary from the taxable beneficiaries.

In view of the second objective of Part XII.2 tax, described above, it would be difficult to recommend the amendment referred to above by itself. However, I understand that you have discussed this matter with one of my staff and are amenable to an additional amendment in this context. The additional amendment would, in effect, provide that the top fund would be a "designated beneficiary" under a bottom fund if it acquired an interest in the bottom fund directly or indirectly from a beneficiary under the bottom fund (except where the interest was owned, at each time after the date on which the bottom fund was created, by the top fund or a person exempt from tax under Part I of the Act because of subsection 149(1) of the Act). The combination of the two amendments would meet the both of the policy objectives. I am prepared to recommend that these amendments be introduced in a future technical bill and be effective from a date that will accommodate the planned structure described in your letter.

Thank you for writing to us on this matter.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
Director, Tax Legislation Division

Proposed Repeal — 210.1

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), s. 173, will repeal s. 210.1, applicable to 1996 et seq.

Technical Notes: Section 210.1 provides a list of types of trusts to which Part XII.2 does not apply.

Section 210.1 is being repealed. The list of types of trusts to which Part XII.2 does not apply is now found in new subsection 210(2). New subsection 210(2), consequential on the amendments to the definition "designated beneficiary" (described in the commentary above), also clarifies that it applies only to determine to which trusts the special Part XII.2 tax does not apply. Subsection 210(2) does not apply, for example, to determine whether a trust referred to in that subsection may have a designated beneficiary.

210.2 (1) Tax on income of trust — Subject to section 210.3, where an amount in respect of the income of a trust for a taxation year is or would, if all beneficiaries under the trust were persons resident in Canada to whom Part I was applicable, be included in computing the income under Part I of a person by reason of subsection 104(13) or 105(2), the trust shall pay a tax under this Part in respect of the year equal to 36% of the least of

(a) the designated income of the trust for the year,

(b) the amount that, but for subsections 104(6) and (30), would be the income of the trust for the year, and

(c) 100/64 of the amount deducted under paragraph 104(6)(b) in computing the trust's income under Part I for the year.

Related Provisions: 18(1)(t) — Tax under Part XII.2 is deductible; 104(30) — Part XII.2 tax deductible in computing income of trust; 210.1, 210.3 — Where no tax payable.

(1.1) Amateur athlete trusts — Notwithstanding section 210.1, where an amount described in subsection 143.1(2) in respect of an amateur athlete trust would, if Part I were applicable, be required to be included in computing the income for a taxation year of a designated beneficiary under the trust, the trust shall pay a tax under this Part in respect of the year equal to 36% of 100/64 of that amount.

Proposed Repeal — 210.2(1.1)

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 174(1), will repeal subsec. 210.2(1.1), applicable to 1996 et seq.

Technical Notes: See under 210.2(2) below.

History: Subsec. 210.2(1.1) added by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), s. 122, applicable to 1992 et seq.

Forms: T3ATH-IND: Amateur athlete trust income tax return.

(2) Designated income — For the purposes of subsection (1), the designated income of a trust for a taxation year means the amount that, but for subsections 104(6), (12) and (30), would be the income of the trust for the year determined under section 3 if

(a) it had no income other than taxable capital gains from dispositions described in paragraph (b) and incomes from

(i) real properties in Canada (other than Canadian resource properties),

(ii) timber resource properties,

(iii) Canadian resource properties (other than properties acquired by the trust before 1972), and

(iv) businesses carried on in Canada;

(b) the only taxable capital gains and allowable capital losses referred to in paragraph 3(b) were from dispositions of taxable Canadian property; and

(c) the only losses referred to in paragraph 3(d) were losses from sources described in subparagraphs (a)(i) to (iv).

Proposed Amendment — 210.2(2)

(2) Amateur athlete trusts — Notwithstanding subsection 210(2), a trust shall pay a tax under this Part in respect of a particular taxation year of the trust equal to 56.25% of the amount that is required by subsection 143.1(2) to be included in computing the income under Part I for a taxation year of a beneficiary under the trust, if

(a) the beneficiary is at any time in the particular taxation year a designated beneficiary under the trust; and

(b) the particular taxation year ends in that taxation year of the beneficiary.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 174(1), will amend subsec. 210.2(2) to read as above, applicable to 1996 et seq. ("Designated income" is moved to 210; this provision was 210.2(1.1).)

Technical Notes: Subsection 210.2(1.1) extends the tax under Part XII.2 to amateur athlete trusts, which are provided for in section 143.1, in circumstances where amounts are distributed by such trusts to non-resident beneficiaries.

Subsection 210.2(1.1) is amended by renumbering it as subsection 210.2(2). In addition, the reference in that subsection to section 210.1 is, given that section's renumbering as subsection 210(2), replaced with a reference to subsection 210(2). The amended subsection also replaces the existing reference to the phrase "36% of $^{100}/_{64}$" with the numerical equivalent of "56.25%". Finally, the provision is amended to clarify that Part XII.2 tax applies to a trust for a particular taxation year of the trust on the amount that is required by subsection 143.1(2) to be included in computing the income under Part I for a taxation year of a beneficiary under the trust, only if

- the beneficiary is at any time in the particular taxation year a designated beneficiary under the trust, and
- the particular taxation year ends in that taxation year of the beneficiary.

Related Provisions: 104(7.01)(b)(i) — No deduction under 104(6) for designated income of trust.

History: Para. 210.2(2)(b) amended by 2001, c. 17, s. 172, applicable after October 1, 1996. It formerly read:

> (b) the only taxable capital gains and allowable capital losses referred to in paragraph 3(b) were from dispositions of property that would have been taxable Canadian property if, at no time in the year, the trust had been resident in Canada; and

(3) Tax deemed paid by beneficiary — Where an amount (in this subsection and subsection 210.3(2) referred to as the "income amount") in respect of the income of a trust for a taxation year is, by reason of subsection 104(13) or 105(2), included in computing

(a) the income under Part I of a person who was not at any time in the year a designated beneficiary under the trust, or

(b) the income of a non-resident person (other than a person who, at any time in the year, would be a designated beneficiary under the trust if section 210 were read without reference to paragraph 210(a)) that is subject to tax under Part I by reason of subsection 2(3) and is not exempt from tax under Part I by reason of a provision contained in a tax convention or agreement with another country that has the force of law in Canada,

Proposed Amendment — 210.2(3)(b)

(b) the income of a non-resident person (other than a person who, at any time in the year, would be a designated beneficiary under the trust if section 210 were read without reference to paragraph (a) of the definition "designated beneficiary" in that section) that is subject to tax under Part I by reason of subsection 2(3) and is not exempt from tax under Part I by reason of a provision contained in a tax treaty,

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 174(3), will amend para. 210.2(3)(b) to read as above, applicable to 1996 et seq., except that in applying para. 210.2(3)(b) for the 1996 and 1997 taxation years, "treaty" is to be read as "convention or agreement with another country that has the force of law in Canada".

Technical Notes: Note as well that paragraph 210.2(3)(b) is amended to ensure that subsection 210.2(3) does not apply to a non-resident person that would be a designated beneficiary under the trust if the definition "designated beneficiary" in subsection 210(1) were read without reference to its paragraph (a).

211.7 (1) Definitions — The definitions in this section apply for the purposes of this Part.

"approved share" has the meaning assigned by subsection 127.4(1).

"labour-sponsored funds tax credit" in respect of a share is

(a) where the original acquisition of the share occurred before 1996, 20% of the net cost of the share on that acquisition; and

(b) in any other case, the amount that would be determined under subsection 127.4(6) in respect of the share if this Act were read without reference to paragraphs 127.4(6)(b) and (d).

"net cost" has the meaning assigned by subsection 127.4(1).

"original acquisition" has the meaning assigned by subsection 127.4(1).

"qualifying trust" has the meaning assigned by subsection 127.4(1).

"revoked corporation" means a corporation the registration of which has been revoked under subsection 204.81(6).

(2) Amalgamations and mergers — For the purposes of this Part, where two or more corporations (each of which is referred to in this subsection as a "predecessor corporation") amalgamate or merge to form a corporate entity deemed by paragraph 204.85(3)(d) to have been registered under Part X.3, the shares of each predecessor corporation are deemed not to be redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the predecessor corporation on the amalgamation or merger.

History: S. 211.7 renumbered as subsec. 211.7(1) and subsec. 211.7(2) added by 2000, c. 19, s. 61, applicable after February 16, 1999.

S. 211.7 added by 1997, c. 25, s. 62, applicable to redemptions, acquisitions, cancellations and dispositions that occur after November 15, 1995, except that s. 211.7 does not apply

(a) to any redemption that occurs before 1998 of a share of the capital stock of a corporation that was registered under subsec. 204.81(1), where an amount determined under regulations made for the purpose of cl. 204.81(1)(c)(v)(F) is directed to be remitted to the Receiver General in order to permit the redemption; and

(b) to any disposition that occurs before 1998, where an amount is required to be remitted to the government of a province as a consequence of the disposition and a portion of the amount is in respect of the recovery of a tax credit that is provided under subsection 127.4(2) in respect of the share.

Definitions [s. 211.7]: "amount" — 248(1); "corporation" — 248(1), Interpretation Act 35(1); "net cost", "original acquisition" — 127.4(1), 211.7(1); "share" — 248(1).

211.8 (1) Disposition of approved share — Where an approved share of the capital stock of a registered labour-sponsored venture capital corporation or a revoked corporation is, before the first discontinuation of its venture capital business, redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the corporation less than eight years after the day on which the share was issued (other than in circumstances described in subclause 204.81(1)(c)(v)(A)(I) or (III) or clause 204.81(1)(c)(v)(B) or (D)) or any other share that was issued by any other labour-sponsored venture capital corporation is disposed of, the person who was the shareholder immediately before the redemption, acquisition, cancellation or disposition shall pay a tax under this Part equal to the lesser of

(a) the amount determined by the formula

where

(i) where the share was issued by a registered labour-sponsored venture capital corporation or a revoked corporation, the labour-sponsored funds tax credit in respect of the share, and

(ii) where the share was issued by any other labour-sponsored venture capital corporation and was at any time an approved share, the amount, if any, required to be remitted to the government of a province as a consequence of the redemption, acquisition, cancellation or disposition (otherwise than as a consequence of an increase in the corporation's liability for a penalty under a law of the province), and

B is

(i) nil, where the share was issued by a registered labour-sponsored venture capital corporation or a revoked corporation, the original acquisition of the share was before March 6, 1996 and the redemption, acquisition, cancellation or disposition is

(A) more than 2 years after the day on which it was issued, where the redemption, acquisition, cancellation or disposition is permitted under the articles of the corporation because an individual attains 65 years of age, retires from the workforce or ceases to be resident in Canada, or

(B) more than 5 years after the day on which it was issued,

Proposed Amendment — 211.8(1)(a)B(i)(B), (C)

(B) more than five years after its issuance, or

(C) if the day that is five years after its issuance is in February or March of a calendar year, in February or on March 1st of that calendar year but not more than 31 days before that day,

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 176(1), will amend cl. (i)(B) of the description of B in para. 211.8(1)(a) to read as above, and add cl. (i)(C), applicable to redemptions, acquisitions, cancellations and dispositions that occur after November 15, 1995.

Technical Notes: Subsection 211.8(1) provides that the special tax under Part XII.5 generally applies where shares in a federally-registered LSVCC that qualify for the federal LSVCC tax credit are redeemed prior to the expiry of a minimum period. In the case of shares the "original acquisition" (as defined in subsection 127.4(1)) of which occurred before March 6, 1996, there is no recovery of the tax credit for a share redeemed more than five years after the day on which the share was issued. For shares the original acquisition of which occurs after March 5, 1996, the recovery generally applies where a share is redeemed less than eight years after the day on which it was issued.

Subsection 211.8(1) is amended so that there is no Part XII.5 tax in respect of the redemption by a federally-registered LSVCC of a share the original acquisition of which was after March 5, 1996, if the redemption occurs on a day that is in February or on March 1st of a calendar year and that day is no more than 31 days before the day that is eight years after the day on which the share was issued. For a share the original acquisition of which occurred before March 6, 1996, the circumstances in which there is no recovery of the tax credit are extended to include the redemption of the share on a day that is in February or on March 1st of a calendar year if that day is no more than 31 days before the day that is five years after the day on which the share was issued.

This amendment is part of a set of amendments, announced by the Minister of Finance (News Release 2000-009, dated February 7, 2000) concerning the redemption requirements for federally-registered LSVCCs. The set of amendments is intended to accommodate taxpayers wishing to acquire new LSVCC shares in the first 60 days of a year using the proceeds from the redemption of LSVCC shares. Other related changes include amendments to section 204.81. For additional information, see the commentary on those provisions.

Example 1

On February 2nd, 1998 a federally-registered LSVCC redeemed 200 Class A shares owned by Charles. The original acquisition by Charles of the shares was on March 1, 1993, the same day on which the shares were issued. The issuing LSVCC was incorporated on December 1, 1992. The LSVCC's Articles comply with the applicable registration requirements.

Results:

1. Under new clause (i)(C) of the description of B in paragraph 211.8(1)(a), there will be no recovery of the tax credit on the redemption of the 200 shares because the original acquisition of the shares was before March 6, 1996 and the redemption occurred on a day in February not more than 31 days before the day that is five years after the day on which the shares were issued.

2. Because of new subsection 204.81(1.2), subsection 204.81(6) would not apply to allow the Minister of National Revenue to revoke the LSVCC's registration solely because of the redemption.

Example 2

On February 15, 2005 a federally-registered LSVCC redeemed 200 Class A shares owned by Marguerite. The circumstances of the redemption are not described in any of the provisions, described in clauses 204.81(1)(c)(v)(A) to (D), of the LSVCC's articles. The original acquisition by Marguerite of the first 100 shares was on March 1, 1997, although the shares were issued on March 12th, 1997. The original acquisition by Marguerite of the second 100 shares was on February 29, 2000, the same day on which the shares were issued. The LSVCC was incorporated on May 1, 1996.

Results:

1. Under new subparagraph (i.1) of the description of B in paragraph 211.8(1)(a), there will be no recovery of the tax credit on the redemption of the first 100 shares because the redemption occurred in February on a day not more than 31 days before the day that is eight years after the day on which the shares were issued. Subparagraph (i) of the description of variable B in paragraph 211.8(1)(a) does not apply because the original acquisition of the shares was not before March 6, 1996.

2. Under new subparagraph (i.1) of the description of B in paragraph 211.8(1)(a), there will be a recovery of the tax credit on the redemption of the second 100 shares because the redemption occurred less than eight years after the day on which the share was issued and more than 31 days before the day that is eight years after the day on which the shares were issued.

3. Because of new subsection 204.81(1.2), subsection 204.81(6) would not apply to allow the Minister of National Revenue to revoke the LSVCC's registration solely because of the redemption of the first 100 shares. However, the early redemption by the corporation of the second 100 shares, in violation of the provisions of its articles described in clause 204.81(1)(c)(v)(E), authorizes the Minister of National Revenue to revoke the LSVCC's registration under subsection 204.81(6).

Dept. of Finance news release 2000-009, February 7, 2000: Finance Minister Announces Minor Change to the Redemption Requirements for Federal LSVCCs

Finance Minister Paul Martin today announced that he would propose a minor change affecting federally-registered labour-sponsored venture capital corporations (LSVCCs). The proposed change provides an exemption from the rules governing the recovery of the federal LSVCC tax credit.

Shares in federally-registered LSVCCs that qualify for the federal LSVCC tax credit must be held for a minimum period. Where a share is redeemed prior to the expiry of the minimum period, the federal LSVCC tax credit for the share is generally recovered. In the case of shares issued before March 6, 1996, there is no recovery of the tax credit for a share redeemed more than five years after the day on which the share was issued. For shares issued after March 5, 1996, the recovery applies where a share is redeemed less than eight years after the day on which it was issued.

The proposed change will, for the purpose of the recovery provisions, treat a share redeemed in February or on March 1st as having been redeemed 30 days later. For example, existing LSVCC shares issued on March 1, 1995 and redeemed on February 29, 2000 would be exempt from a recovery of the federal LSVCC tax credit that was associated with the original acquisition of the shares.

This measure is intended to accommodate taxpayers wishing to acquire new LSVCC shares in the first 60 days of a year with the proceeds from the redemption of LSVCC shares. In these circumstances, a taxpayer would generally be entitled to claim a tax credit for the preceding year in respect of an acquisition of the new shares and would not be subject to a tax penalty with respect to the redemption of the existing shares. In addition, any necessary changes will be made to ensure that an LSVCC's registration cannot be revoked as a result of having redeemed LSVCC shares in these circumstances. It is proposed that this change apply from the inception of the rules governing the recovery of the LSVCC tax credit.

Proposed Addition — 211.8(1)(a)B(i.1)

(I) in respect of a period ending not later than the earliest day on which, under the terms of the obligation determined as of the time it was entered into, the obligee would be entitled to demand payment of the principal amount of the obligation or the amount outstanding as or on account of the principal amount thereof, as the case may be, if the terms of the obligation determined as of that time provided for that payment on or after a specified day, or

(iv) [exemption certificate] — interest payable on any bond, debenture or similar obligation to a person with whom the payer is dealing at arm's length and to whom a certificate of exemption that is in force on the day the amount is paid or credited was issued under subsection (14),

Proposed Amendment — 212(1)(b)(iv)

(iv) interest payable to a person with whom the payer is dealing at arm's length and to whom a certificate of exemption that is in force on the day the amount is paid or credited was issued under subsection (14),

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 177(1), will amend subpara. 212(1)(b)(iv) to read as above, applicable to 1998 et seq.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 212(1)(b) both applies tax under Part XIII to interest paid or credited by a person resident in Canada to a non-resident person and includes a number of exemptions from the tax. One of these, in subparagraph 212(1)(b)(iv), is for interest payable to an arm's length person who holds a valid "certificate of exemption". These certificates, issued by the Minister of National Revenue under the authority provided by subsection 212(14), are generally available to foreign pension entities, charities and certain other tax-exempt entities.

In its current form, subparagraph 212(1)(b)(iv) applies only to interest on a "bond, debenture or similar obligation." Since this restriction may unduly limit the scope of the provision, it is broadened to encompass all forms of indebtedness. It should be noted, however, that no change is made to the requirement that the Canadian-resident payer of the interest and the non-resident recipient deal at arm's length.

(v) [life insurance business outside Canada] — interest payable to a person with whom the payer is dealing at arm's length on any obligation entered into in the course of carrying on a life insurance business in a country other than Canada,

(vi) [Repealed under former Act]

(vii) [5-year corporate debt] — interest payable by a corporation resident in Canada to a person with whom that corporation is dealing at arm's length on any obligation where the evidence of indebtedness was issued by that corporation after June 23, 1975 if under the terms of the obligation or any agreement relating thereto the corporation may not under any circumstances be obliged to pay more than 25% of

(A) where the obligation is one of a number of obligations that comprise a single debt issue of obligations that are identical in respect of all rights (in equity or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently) attaching thereto, except as regards the principal amount thereof, the total of the principal amount of those obligations, or

(B) in any other case, the principal amount of the obligation, within 5 years from the date of issue of that single debt issue or that obligation, as the case may be, except

(C) in the event of a failure or default under the said terms or agreement,

(D) if the terms of the obligation or any agreement relating thereto become unlawful or are changed by virtue of legislation or by a court, statutory board or commission,

(E) if the person exercises a right under the terms of the obligation or any agreement relating thereto to convert the obligation into, or exchange the obligation for, a prescribed security, or

(F) in the event of the person's death;

(viii) [mortgage on real property outside Canada] — interest payable on a mortgage, hypothecary claim or similar obligation secured by, or on an agreement for sale or similar obligation with respect to, real property situated outside Canada or an interest in any such real property except to the extent that the interest payable on the obligation is deductible in computing the income of the payer under Part I from a business carried on by the payer in Canada or from property other than real property situated outside Canada,

Proposed Amendment — 212(1)(b)(viii)

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 3 — bijuralism), subsec. 267(1), will amend subpara. 212(1)(b)(viii) by substituting "such real property, or to immovables situated outside Canada or a real right in any such immovable," for "such real property" and "real or immovable property" for "real property", to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

(ix) [deposit in foreign branch of Canadian bank] — interest payable in Canadian currency on account of an amount in Canadian currency deposited in a country other than Canada with a branch or office of a payer who

(A) is, or is eligible to become, a member of the Canadian Payments Association, or

(B) is a credit union that is a shareholder or member of a body corporate or organization that is a central for the purposes of the Canadian Payments Association Act, to a person with whom the payer is dealing at arm's length,

(x) [prescribed international organization] — interest payable to a prescribed international organization or agency,

(xi) [International Banking Centre deposit] — interest payable on an amount deposited with a prescribed financial institution for the period during which the amount was an eligible deposit (within the meaning assigned by subsection 33.1(1)) of the institution, and

(xii) [securities lending arrangement] — interest payable under a securities lending arrangement by a lender under the arrangement that is a financial institution prescribed for the purpose of clause (iii)(D), or a registered securities dealer resident in Canada, on money provided to the lender either as collateral or as consideration for the particular security lent or transferred under the arrangement where

Proposed Amendment — 212(1)(b)(xii) opening words

(xii) interest payable by a lender under a securities lending arrangement, if the lender and the borrower deal with each other at arm's length and the lender is a financial institution prescribed for the purpose of clause (iii)(D), or a registered securities dealer resident in Canada, on money provided to the lender either as collateral or as consideration for the particular security lent or transferred under the arrangement where

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 177(2), will amend the opening words of subpara. 212(1)(b)(xii) to read as above, applicable to arrangements made after 2002.

Technical Notes: Subparagraph 212(1)(b)(xii) provides an exemption for interest payable under certain securities lending arrangements by registered or licensed securities dealers resident in Canada. Given the current definition of "securities lending arrangement" in subsection 260(1), this exemption is only available to dealers who are dealing at arm's length with the other parties to the arrangements.

Consequential to the amendments to the definition of "securities lending arrangement" in subsection 260(1), which now includes certain arrangements between non-arm's length parties, the amendment to subparagraph 212(1)(b)(xii) confirms that the exemption is limited to arm's length arrangements.

(A) the particular security is an obligation referred to in subparagraph (ii) or an obligation of the government of any country, province, state, municipality or other political subdivision,

(B) the amount of money so provided at any time during the term of the arrangement does not exceed 110% of the fair market value at that time of the particular security, and

(C) the arrangement was neither intended, nor made as a part of a series of securities lending arrangements, loans or other transactions that was intended, to be in effect for more than 270 days,

Proposed Addition — 212(1)(b)(xiii)

(xiii) [securities lending arrangement] — an amount paid or credited under a securities lending arrangement that is deemed by subparagraph 260(8)(c)(i) to be a payment made by a borrower to a lender of interest if

(A) the securities lending arrangement was entered into by the borrower in the course of carrying on a business outside Canada, and

(B) the security that is transferred or lent to the borrower under the securities lending arrangement is described in paragraph (b) or (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection 260(1) and issued by a non-resident issuer;

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 177(3), will add subpara. 212(1)(b)(xiii), applicable to securities lending arrangements entered into after May 1995, except that in its application to arrangements made before 2002, the reference to "subparagraph 260(8)(c)(i)" in the subpara. is to be read as "subparagraph 260(8)(a)(i)".

Technical Notes: Securities lending arrangements often include an obligation for one party to compensate the other for certain income amounts. In the absence of special rules, these compensation payments may be subject to tax under Part XIII if they are paid by a person resident in Canada to a non-resident person.

New subparagraph 212(1)(b)(xiii) exempts from tax under Part XIII certain interest compensation payments made to a non-resident by a borrower resident in Canada under a securities lending arrangement. For this exemption to apply,

- the payments must be made by the borrower in the course of carrying on its business outside of Canada; and
- the borrowed securities must be issued by a non-resident issuer.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, February 18, 2002: See under 212(2.1).

and for the purpose of this paragraph, where interest is payable on an obligation, other than a prescribed obligation, and all or any portion of the interest is contingent or dependent on the use of or production from property in Canada or is computed by reference to revenue, profit, cash flow, commodity price or any other similar criterion or by reference to dividends paid or payable to shareholders of any class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation, the interest shall be deemed not to be interest described in subparagraphs (ii) to (vii) and (ix);

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 13, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

This letter responds to submissions received in respect of a financing transaction in which [xxx] proposes to enter into a lease leaseback arrangement with U.S. investors in respect of its [xxx].

In order to facilitate this financing structure you have asked that the exemption from non-resident withholding tax presently available for rent payments made in respect of [aircraft] and attached equipment be extended to [xxx]. You have submitted that such an exemption would be consistent with the current exemption for [aircraft] and is required to facilitate [xxx] participation in a financing structure that delivers U.S. tax benefits for investors outside of Canada.

Based on your assurance that the proposed lease financing transaction referred to in your submission meets all of the requirements of the U.S. Internal Revenue Code, I am prepared to recommend Parliament approve an amendment to the Income Tax Act to provide for an expansion of the list of equipment, presently eligible for exemption from non-resident withholding tax under section 212(1)(d) of the Income Tax Act, to include [xxx] utilized pursuant to the [xxx]. If Parliament approves this recommendation, it would have effect for the 2003 and subsequent taxation years.

Yours very truly,

John Manley
Minister of Finance

• the borrowed securities were issued by a non-resident issuer.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, February 18, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in reply to your email message of December 3, 2001 to Joseph Lam of this Division regarding the application of paragraph 260(8)(a) and Part XIII of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

In your email, you describe a situation where a Canadian resident financial institution, in the course of carrying on its business outside Canada through foreign branches and, indirectly, through foreign subsidiaries, borrows or acquires shares issued by a non-Canadian issuer in a transaction with an arm's length non-resident and the Canadian financial institution makes a "dividend compensation payment" to the non-resident. You represent that the transaction satisfies the definition of "securities lending arrangement" in section 260 of the Act, and, as it is fully collateralized, the payment is deemed to be a dividend for the purposes of Part XIII by virtue of paragraph 260(8)(a).

We recognize that under certain circumstances there should be, in policy terms, no Canadian non-resident withholding tax on dividend compensation payments made by a foreign branch of a Canadian financial institution, in the course of carrying on its business outside Canada, to a non-resident. Consequently, we are prepared to recommend amendments to the Act to exempt from Canadian non-resident withholding tax payments that are deemed to be dividends by virtue of paragraph 260(8)(a), where the payments are made pursuant to a securities lending arrangement entered into in the course of carrying on a business outside Canada, the securities lent or sold are securities of a foreign issuer, and the securities lender is at arm's length with the Canadian securities borrower. In addition, we are prepared to recommend that the amendments apply to securities lending arrangements entered into after May 1995.

While we cannot provide assurance that the Minister will accept our recommendations, we intend to include measures along the line described above in the next package of income tax technical amendments.

We trust that the above satisfies your requirements.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(3) Replacement obligations — For the purpose of subparagraph (1)(b)(vii), an obligation (in this subsection referred to as the "replacement obligation") issued by a corporation resident in Canada wholly or in substantial part and either directly or indirectly in exchange or substitution for an obligation or a part of an obligation (in this subsection referred to as the "former obligation") shall, where

(a) the replacement obligation was issued

(i) as part of a proposal to, or an arrangement with, its creditors that was approved by a court under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act,

(ii) at a time when all or substantially all of its assets were under the control of a receiver, receiver-manager, sequestrator or trustee in bankruptcy, or

(iii) at a time when, because of financial difficulty, the issuing corporation or another corporation resident in Canada with which it does not deal at arm's length was in default, or could reasonably be expected to default, on the former obligation,

(b) the proceeds from the issue of the replacement obligation can reasonably be regarded as having been used by the issuing corporation or another corporation with which it does not deal at arm's length in the financing of its active business carried on in Canada immediately before the time when the replacement obligation was issued, and

Proposed Repeal — 212(3)(b)

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 177(10), will repeal para. 212(3)(b), applicable to replacement obligations issued after 2000.

Technical Notes: Among the exceptions to the imposition of tax under Part XIII of the Act on interest is one found in subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii) for interest paid by a corporation resident in Canada on its medium- and long-term arm's length debt. Subsection 212(3), which applies for the purpose of subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii), allows a corporation in certain circumstances of financial difficulty to treat a debt obligation that replaces another as having been issued when that other obligation was issued. The circumstances in which this is possible are set out in paragraphs 212(3)(a) to (c). Paragraph 212(3)(b) requires that, for the subsection to apply, it must be possible to regard the proceeds of the replacement borrowing as being used in financing an active business that was carried on in Canada, by the issuing company or one with which it does not deal at arm's length, immediately before the replacement obligation was issued.

There is no clear basis in tax policy for this requirement. The condition in paragraph 212(3)(b) is repealed for replacement debt obligations that are issued after 2000.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, June 11, 2001:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in response to your fax of June 6, 2001, regarding paragraph 212(3)(b) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). [xxx]

Paragraph 212(l)(b) of the Act imposes withholding tax on interest paid or credited by a person resident of Canada to a non-resident, subject to a number of exceptions. Among these exceptions is the "long-term debt" rule in subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii): in very broad terms, interest on corporate debt with a term of 5 years or longer is exempt from tax.

In 1994, the Act was amended to facilitate refinancing in certain cases of financial difficulty. The principle behind the amendment was that in such cases, replacing a long-term debt obligation that benefited from subparagraph (vii) ought not to cause withholding tax to apply. The new rule is found in subsection 212(3) of the Act. Paragraph 212(3)(b) requires that, for the subsection to apply, it must be possible to regard the proceeds of the replacement borrowing as being used by the issuing corporation (or a corporation with which it does not deal at arm's length) in financing an active business carried on in Canada immediately before the replacement obligation was issued.

As I understand it, [xxx] happens not to carry out most of its operations in Canada. Instead, the company is present, through its subsidiaries, in a number of foreign countries. This may make it difficult for [xxx] to meet the paragraph 212(3)(b) requirement. You have therefore suggested that the requirement be modified or eliminated.

Having reviewed the matter in response to your suggestion, I agree that there is no clear basis in tax policy for the requirement, and it is my view that subsection 212(3) would serve its function equally well if the requirement were removed. We are therefore prepared to recommend that the Act be amended to delete paragraph 212(3)(b), with application to replacement obligations issued after June 10, 2001.

I can, as you know, offer no assurance that the Minister of Finance or Parliament itself will accept this recommendation. However, I have no reason to believe that this modest change will prove controversial, and I expect that we will be able to include it in a package of draft technical amendments to be released later this year.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(5) Motion picture films — Every non-resident person shall pay an income tax of 25% on every amount that a person resident in Canada pays or credits, or is deemed by Part I to pay or credit, to the non-resident person as, on account or in lieu of payment of, or in satisfaction of, payment for a right in or to the use of

(a) a motion picture film, or

(b) a film, video tape or other means of reproduction for use in connection with television (other than solely in connection with and as part of a news program produced in Canada), that has been or is to be used or reproduced in Canada.

Proposed Amendment — 212(5) closing words

that has been, or is to be, used or reproduced in Canada to the extent that the amount relates to that use or reproduction.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 177(12), will amend the closing words of subsec. 212(5) to read as above, applicable to 2000 et seq.

Technical Notes: Subsection 212(5) applies tax under Part XIII to, in general terms, any amount that a person resident in Canada pays to a non-resident person for a right in or to the use of a motion picture film or video product that has been or is to be used or reproduced in Canada (otherwise than for a news program). As presently worded, the subsection can be read as applying even if the payment in question is not for that Canadian use or reproduction, but relates instead to employment of the film or video in some other country. Accordingly, subsection 212(5) is amended to impose tax only to the extent that the amount of the payment relates to the use or reproduction of the product in Canada.

(5.1) Acting services — Notwithstanding any regulation made under paragraph 214(13)(c), every person who is either a non-resident individual who is an actor or that is a corporation related to such an individual shall pay an income tax of 23% on every amount paid or credited, or provided as a benefit, to or on behalf of the person for the provision in Canada of the acting services of the actor in a film or video production.

(5.2) Relief from double taxation — Where a corporation is liable to tax under subsection (5.1) in respect of an amount for acting services of an actor (in this subsection referred to as the "corporation payment") and the corporation pays, credits or provides as a benefit to the actor an amount for those acting services (in this subsection referred to as the "actor payment"), no tax is payable under subsection (5.1) with respect to the actor payment except to the extent that it exceeds the corporation payment.

(5.3) Reduction of withholding — If the Minister is satisfied that the deduction or withholding otherwise required by section 215 from an amount described in subsection (5.1), would cause undue hardship, the Minister may determine a lesser amount to be deducted or withheld and that lesser amount is deemed to be the amount so required to be deducted or withheld.

(7) Where subsec. (6) does not apply — Subsection (6) does not apply to interest on any bond or other obligation described therein that was issued after December 20, 1960, except any such bond or other obligation for the issue of which arrangements were made on or before that day with a dealer in securities, if the existence of the arrangements for the issue of the bond or other obligation can be established by evidence in writing given or made on or before that day.

Related Provisions: 212(8) — Bonds issued in exchange for earlier bonds.

(8) Bonds issued after December 20, 1960 in exchange for earlier bonds — For the purposes of this Part, where any bond, except a bond to which clause (1)(b)(ii)(C) applies, was issued after December 20, 1960 in exchange for a bond issued on or before that day, it shall, if the terms on which the bond for which it was exchanged was issued conferred on the holder thereof the right to make the exchange, be deemed to have been issued on or before December 20, 1960.

(9) Exemptions — Where

(a) a dividend or interest is received by a trust from a non-resident-owned investment corporation,

(b) an amount (in this subsection referred to as the "royalty payment") is received by a trust as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a royalty on or in respect of a copyright in respect of the production or reproduction of any literary, dramatic, musical or artistic work, or

(c) interest is received by a mutual fund trust maintained primarily for the benefit of non-resident persons

Proposed Addition — 212(9)(d)

(d) a dividend or interest is received by a trust created under a reinsurance trust agreement, to which the Superintendent of Financial Institutions is a party, established in accordance with guidelines issued by the Superintendent relating to reinsurance arrangements with unregistered insurers

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 177(13), will add para. 212(9)(d), applicable to amounts paid or credited after 2000 to non-resident persons.

Technical Notes: Subsection 212(9) provides an exemption from withholding tax under Part XIII of the Act with respect to certain amounts of a trust's income that are paid or credited to a non-resident beneficiary under the trust and that would otherwise be subject to withholding tax under paragraph 212(1)(c). The exemption currently applies only in respect of amounts that are attributable to income of the trust in the form of: dividends or interest received by the trust from a non-resident-owned investment corporation; certain artistic royalties; and interest, where the trust is a mutual fund maintained primarily for the benefit of non-resident persons. If no Part XIII tax would have been payable with respect to the dividends, interest or royalties if they had been paid directly to the beneficiary, no Part XIII tax is payable with respect to a distribution from trust income to nonresident beneficiaries that derives from the dividends, interest or royalties.

Subsection 212(9) is amended to add a fourth type of trust income to this list of exemptions. In certain circumstances, Canada's Superintendent of Financial Institutions may require a non-resident reinsurer that reinsures Canadian risks to place assets in a trust in Canada. Such a "reinsurance trust" may earn dividend or interest income, which is payable to the non-resident. In recognition of the regulatory requirement for these trusts, subsection 212(9) is amended to provide that, if the dividends or interest would not have borne Canadian tax if the non-resident had earned them directly, they may be distributed to the non-resident free of Part XIII tax.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, June 8, 2001:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of February 28, 2001 concerning the application of non-resident withholding tax under paragraph 212(1)(c) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") in the context of reinsurance trusts required to be used in certain circumstances under guidelines issued by the Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions (OSFI).

The issue arises when a life insurance company (the "primary insurer") regulated by OSFI cedes insurance risks to a non-resident reinsurer that is not supervised by OSFI. OSFI's Guideline A dealing with minimum capital requirements does not give credit for such "unregistered reinsurance" that would reduce the primary insurer's capital requirements unless, pursuant to Guideline B-3 on Unregistered Reinsurance, the reinsurer's potential liability under the reinsurance arrangement is secured in an approved manner. This security is effectively a substitute for minimum capital requirements for the reinsurer imposed by either OSFI or a provincial government.

The primary method of providing such security is for the reinsurer to enter into a reinsurance trust arrangement, supervised by OSFI, in which assets are placed in a Canadian trust, to be available to meet the reinsurer's liability to the primary insurer under the reinsurance arrangement. Since the principal amount of the assets of the trust normally must be sufficient to meet the potential reinsurance liability, the reinsurance trust agreement generally provides that any income realized on the assets in the trust — usually government securities — is immediately payable to the reinsurer.

Where the reinsurer is non-resident, even if interest on the underlying assets would normally be free of withholding tax if held directly — as in the case of government bonds — interest income payable to the reinsurer will normally be subject to tax under paragraph 212(1)(c) as a distribution of trust income. Subsection 212(11) deems amounts paid or credited to a person beneficially interested in a trust to be paid as trust income regardless of their source. By way of exception, subsection 212(9) provides that in certain specified cases, no tax is payable under paragraph 212(l)(c) if the underlying payment received by the trust would not have been subject to withholding tax if it had been paid directly to the non-resident. None of the specified cases, however, covers the present situation.

Given the regulatory role performed by reinsurance trusts, we will recommend that subsection 212(9) of the Act be extended to interest received by a trust created under a reinsurance trust agreement to which OSFI is a party established in accordance with OSFI's guidelines relating to reinsurance arrangements with unregistered reinsurers. We will recommend that this amendment be effective for amounts paid or credited to a non-resident person after 2000 as income of or from such a trust.

While I cannot give any assurance that the Minister or Parliament will agree with our recommendation in this regard, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful to you.

If you have any further questions with respect to this issue, please contact Lawrence Purdy of the Tax Legislation Division at 996-0602.

(iii) extracts minerals from a mineral resource in Canada

pays or credits an amount (other than an amount to which subsection (13) applies) to another non-resident person, the first-mentioned non-resident person shall be deemed, in respect of the portion of that amount that was deductible in computing that person's taxable income earned in Canada for any taxation year, to be a person resident in Canada.

Proposed Amendment — 212(13.2)

(13.2) Application of Part XIII tax — non-resident operates in Canada — For the purposes of this Part, a particular non-resident person, who in a taxation year pays or credits to another non-resident person an amount other than an amount to which subsection (13) applies, is deemed to be a person resident in Canada in respect of the portion of the amount that is deductible in computing the particular non-resident person's taxable income earned in Canada for any taxation year from a source that is neither a treaty-protected business nor a treaty-protected property.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 177(15), will amend subsec. 212(13.2) to read as above, applicable to amounts paid or credited under obligations entered into after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 212(13.2) is one of several provisions that extend Part XIII tax to apply in particular circumstances — in this case, for the most part, the payment by a non-resident of royalties and similar amounts in respect of a Canadian income source. The principle that underlies subsection 212(13.2) is that if a non-resident has Canadian-source business or resource income, and can deduct in computing that income (strictly speaking, in computing "taxable income earned in Canada") a payment to another non-resident, that payment ought to be treated for purposes of Part XIII tax as though it had been made by a person resident in Canada. This is accomplished by treating the first non-resident — the one making the payment — as a person resident in Canada for those purposes.

In its current form, subsection 212(13.2) applies only if the non-resident making the payment carries on business principally in Canada, manufactures or processes goods in Canada or carries out any of various resource activities here. On the other hand, the rule does not explicitly link that business or activity to the deductibility of the payment: it can be read as applying whether or not the payment is made in relation to the particular business or activity.

Accordingly, subsection 212(13.2) is amended to apply in respect of any portion of a payment (other than one to which the generally comparable rule in subsection 212(13) applies) made by one non-resident person to another that is deductible in computing the first non-resident's taxable income earned in Canada from any source. The only exceptions are payments that are deductible in respect of treaty-protected businesses or treaty-protected properties (as defined in subsection 248(1)).

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 14, 2003:

KPMG LLP, Montréal, Québec

Dear Mr. [xxx]

I am writing in response to your letter of February 25, 2003, to Lawrence Purdy of this Division. In that letter, you identify a concern with the effective date that has been proposed, in the December 2002 draft technical amendments, for a change to subsection 212(13.2) of the Income Tax Act. The question you raise is an important one, and I appreciate your patience in awaiting this reply.

Subsection 212(13.2) treats certain non-resident persons as though they were resident in Canada, for purposes of the non-resident withholding tax applied by Part XIII of the Act. Specifically, the provision in its current form applies to a non-resident person who either carries on business principally in Canada, manufactures or processes goods here, or extracts Canadian mineral or oil and gas resources, and makes a payment to another non-resident that is deductible in computing the payer's taxable income earned in Canada. Where it applies, the subsection deems the payer to be resident in Canada in respect of the payment, with the result that Part XIII tax may be required to be withheld.

The draft technical amendments released on December 20, 2002 propose to extend this deeming rule to any non-resident who pays to another non-resident an amount that is deductible in computing the payer's taxable income earned in Canada from a source that is neither a treaty-protected business nor a treaty-protected property. As a practical matter, this would make subsection 212(13.2) potentially applicable to any non-resident who carries on business in Canada — provided, in the case of a resident of a country with which Canada has a tax treaty, that the business is carried on through a Canadian permanent establishment.

I gather from your letter that you do not question the policy basis for this amendment, but rather its entry into force. As proposed, the amendment would apply to amounts paid or credited after December 20, 2002. You suggest that this may impose an inappropriate burden on a non-resident who was already obliged to pay to another non-resident an amount — such as interest — that will now attract withholding tax. Had it known when it negotiated the debt that withholding tax could apply, the borrower (who may be required to spare the lender any Canadian tax effect) might have structured the borrowing to conform to the exception in subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii), or might have borrowed from a Canadian lender. The alternative of renegotiating the loan now could be costly and difficult for both parties.

I agree that applying this measure in respect of debt obligations that are already outstanding could unduly inconvenience some taxpayers, and that a less abrupt entry into force would not be objectionable in policy terms. We will therefore recommend that the version of the amendment that is submitted to Parliament apply the change to amounts paid under obligations entered into after December 20, 2002.

While I can, as you know, offer no assurance that the Minister of Finance of Parliament as a whole will accept our recommendation, I trust that our intentions in this regard respond to your concerns.

Yours sincerely,

Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, September 30, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in response to your letter of August 27, 2003, to Lawrence Purdy of this Division. In that letter you refer to a comfort letter dated May 14, 2003 regarding the December 2002 proposed amendment to subsection 212(13.2) of the Income Tax Act. In our May 14 letter we stated that we would recommend that the version of the amendment that is submitted to Parliament apply the change to amounts paid under obligations entered into after December 20, 2002. The specific example we responded to concerned a debt obligation. You have asked us to confirm that the proposed grandfathering will apply to any obligation entered into on or before December 20, 2002, and not be restricted to debt obligations.

We confirm that we intend to recommend that the proposed grandfathering apply to any obligation entered into on or before December 20, 2002, and not be restricted to debt obligations. Therefore, as set out in your letter, royalties paid to a non-resident corporation pursuant to a trademark licence agreement entered into on or before December 20, 2002 are not intended to be subject to the proposed amendment.

While we can, as you know, offer no assurance that the Minister of Finance or Parliament as a whole will accept our recommendations, we trust that our intentions in this regard respond to your concerns.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein

Letter from Dept. of Finance, July 13, 2001:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in response to your letter of May 3, 2001 to James Greene, formerly of this Division, regarding the Income Tax Act's recently-enacted rules for the taxation of foreign bank branches. Although your letter raises several different questions, including matters of administration as well as of policy and legislative design, I understand from subsequent contacts with your colleague [xxx] that the most pressing issue for you and your clients at this time relates to non-resident withholding tax. I propose, therefore, in this reply to address only that point, reserving your other questions for further consideration.

On the issue of the obligation to withhold amounts on account of tax, you identify three areas of concern. The first is with respect to the payment by a resident of Canada to an authorized foreign bank of an amount, such as interest, that would ordinarily be subject to tax under Part XIII of the Act. Under new subsection 212(13.3) of the Act, the bank is deemed to be resident in Canada for this purpose — and the payer need not withhold tax — provided the interest is "in respect of (the bank's) Canadian banking business." You point out that it is not clear how the Canadian-resident payer will know whether this test is met, given that the payer can be expected to have only limited information about the bank's operations. You ask whether provisions comparable to Regulations 800 to 804 (which apply to non-resident insurers) might be contemplated, under which the bank itself, rather than those making payments to it, would be responsible for any tax arising under Part XIII.

A second, related point concerns the withholding obligations that may arise, under Part I of the Act and Regulation 105, in respect of payments made by a resident of Canada to an authorized foreign bank for services provided by the bank. Although there is no rule deeming the bank to be resident in Canada, many of the considerations that led to such a rule in the context of Part XIII tax are relevant here as well; the bank's business is carried on in Canada, and a person making a payment to the bank cannot always be presumed to know the details of the bank's situation.

Third, you ask whether we anticipate recommending that the withholding and clearance obligations under section 116 of the Act, which generally apply where a non-resident disposes of taxable Canadian property, not apply in respect of property held in an authorized foreign bank's Canadian banking business.

On each of these three points the current requirements, as they apply to the Canadian business of an authorized foreign bank, do seem in policy terms excessive. It is therefore our general intention to propose that the requirements be moderated. Although the details of any relieving proposals remain to be determined, the broad direction of our thinking is as follows. First, with respect to Part XIII taxation, it should be possible to provide that the payor's reasonable belief, or a presumption based on the payee's address, will suffice to relieve the payor from possible liability. A similar test could be applied for purposes of an exemption from the withholding requirements of Regulation 105 [see now Reg. 105(2)(b) — ed.]. Finally, the definition "excluded property" in section 116 could be expanded to cover property held by an authorized foreign bank in the course of carrying on its Canadian banking business: such a change could be made either in the statutory definition itself [this has been done: see 116(6)(f) — ed.] or in Regulation 810.

While our views on these points are subject to further refinement, and I can offer no assurance that the Minister will accept our recommendations, we expect that measures along the general lines I have described will be included in the next package of draft technical amendments. This is currently scheduled for release later this year. The changes would apply after June 27, 1999, to coincide with other aspects of the taxation rules for authorized foreign banks.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 177(16), will amend subpara. (b)(i) of the description of B in subsec. 212(19) to read as above, applicable to securities lending arrangements entered into after May 28, 1993.

Technical Notes: Subsection 212(19) imposes a tax on Canadian-resident registered securities dealers that enter into certain securities lending arrangements described in subparagraph 212(1)(b)(xii). The tax is calculated, by formula, based in part on the capital or the margin requirement of the relevant provincial laws governing the registration or license of securities dealers.

An earlier amendment to subsection 212(19) removed a reference to the provincial laws under which the taxpayer is registered or licensed. The subsection is further amended, as a consequence of that earlier change, to replace the words "those laws" in subparagraph (b)(i) of the description of B in the formula (which no longer have any clear antecedent), with a specific reference to the provincial legislation that govern the registration or license of securities dealers.

(ii) 20 times the greatest amount of capital required under those laws to be maintained by the taxpayer as a margin in respect of securities described in clause (1)(b)(xii)(A) at the end of the day, and

and shall remit that amount to the Receiver General on or before the 15th day of the month after the month in which the day occurs.

215. (1) Withholding and remittance of tax — When a person pays, credits or provides, or is deemed to have paid, credited or provided, an amount on which an income tax is payable under this Part, or would be so payable if this Act were read without reference to subparagraph 94(3)(a)(viii) and to subsection 216.1(1), the person shall, notwithstanding any agreement or law to the contrary, deduct or withhold from it the amount of the tax and forthwith remit that amount to the Receiver General on behalf of the non-resident person on account of the tax and shall submit with the remittance a statement in prescribed form.

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 1 — NRTs and FIEs), s. 38, will amend subsec. 215(1) to read as above, applicable to trust taxation years that begin after 2002, and to trust taxation years that begin

(a) after 2000, if the trust makes a valid election under para. (a) of the Application of the amendment to s. 94; and

(b) after 2001, if the trust makes a valid election under para. (a) or (b) of the Application of the amendment to s. 94.

Technical Notes: Subsection 215(1) provides that, where a resident of Canada pays or is deemed to pay an amount to a non-resident person in respect of which the non-resident person is liable for withholding tax under Part XIII, the payer is required to withhold the tax from the amount and remit it to the Receiver General on behalf of the non-resident.

Subsection 215(1) is amended to ensure that, where an amount is paid or credited (or deemed to be paid or credited) to a trust that is deemed, by paragraph 94(3)(a), to be resident in Canada for the purpose of determining the trust's liability for tax under Part XIII, the payer is required to withhold the tax that would otherwise be payable by the trust and to remit it to the Receiver General.

For more detail on the application of Part XIII to trusts deemed, under paragraph 94(3)(a), to be resident in Canada, and to payers of amounts to such trusts, see the commentary on subsection 94(3) and (4) and subsections 216(4.1).

This amendment applies to trust taxation years that begin after 2002. It also applies to trust taxation years that begin

- after 2000 if the trust makes a valid election under the coming-into-force provision of new section 94, and
- after 2001 if the trust makes a valid election under the coming-into-force provision of new section 94.

Proposed Amendment — 216(1) opening words

216. (1) Alternatives re rents and timber royalties — If an amount has been paid during a taxation year to a non-resident person or to a partnership of which that person was a member as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, rent on real or immovable property in Canada or a timber royalty, that person may, within two years (or, if that person has filed an undertaking described in subsection (4) in respect of the year, within six months) after the end of the year, file a return of income under Part I for that year in prescribed form. On so filing and without affecting the liability of the non-resident person for tax otherwise payable under Part I, the non-resident person is, in lieu of paying tax under this Part on that amount, liable to pay tax under Part I for the year as though

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 2 — technical), subsec. 179(1), will amend the opening words of subsec. 216(1) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Section 216 allows a non-resident person to file a return of income under Part I in respect of rent on real property in Canada or timber royalties and to pay, instead of the non-resident withholding tax under Part XIII, tax under Part I on the basis of the non-resident's income from the rent or royalties.

Subsection 216(1), which provides the basic rule permitting a non-resident to be taxed under Part I of the Act on this income, is amended to improve its structure and language. Most of the changes are stylistic; the amendment also updates the subsection's reference to the form of the non-resident's Part I tax return, to reflect the implementation of a special return for these non-residents.

(a) the non-resident person were a person resident in Canada and not exempt from tax under section 149;

(b) the non-resident person's income from the non-resident person's interest in real property in Canada, timber resource properties and timber limits in Canada and the non-resident person's share of the income of a partnership of which the non-resident person was a member from its interest in real property in Canada, timber resource properties and timber limits in Canada were the non-resident person's only income;

Proposed Amendment — 216(1)(b)

Application: The July 18, 2005 draft legislation (Part 3 — bijuralism), subsec. 268(1), will amend para. 216(1)(b) by substituting "real property, or real right in immovables, in Canada and interest in, or for civil law right in" for "real property in Canada" in two places, to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes: See under 12(4).

(c) the non-resident person were entitled to no deductions from income for the purpose of computing the non-resident person's taxable income; and

(d) the non-resident person were entitled to no deductions under sections 118 to 118.9 in computing the non-resident person's tax payable under Part I for the year.

Possible Future Amendment — Requirement for non-resident to post security

Letter from Dept. of Finance, June 17, 1996:

Mr. Donald H. Watkins, Chair, Taxation Section, The Canadian Bar Association

Mr. Robert Spindler, C.A., Chair, Taxation Committee, Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants

Dear Messrs. Watkins and Spindler:

At our recent meeting we discussed the possibility of revising the Canadian income tax rules governing the taxation of rental income earned by non-resident owners of Canadian real estate. This letter outlines a proposal that would, if implemented, place the risk of a non-resident's non-compliance with the Canadian tax system on the non-resident rather than the non-resident's Canadian property agent.

In general, Part XIII of the Income Tax Act levies a withholding tax of 25% on rental payments made by Canadians to non-resident owners of Canadian real property. Where the non-resident collects the rent through a Canadian agent (who is typically a building or property manager), the agent is responsible for ensuring that 25% of the gross rental payments are remitted to Revenue Canada. An exception to this general rule exists where a non-resident elects, under section 216 of the Act, to file a Canadian income tax return in respect of the rental income and pay tax on the net property income.

To make the election the non-resident and the non-resident's Canadian agent are required to provide an undertaking to Revenue Canada to file an income tax return for the rental income within six months of the end of the relevant year. Where an election is made, the rule requiring the Canadian agent to remit 25% of the gross rental payments to Revenue Canada does not apply; instead, only 25% of the net amount of rent received by the agent need be remitted. However, if the non-resident fails to either file an income tax return or pay his tax liability within the time required under the election, the Canadian agent becomes liable for the amount that the agent would ordinarily have been required to withhold under Part XIII of the Act (ie., 25% of the gross rental payments) less the amount of tax actually remitted. The non-resident's tax liability is placed on the Canadian agent in an attempt to protect the government from the loss of any tax revenue arising from the non-resident's failure to pay the required tax. This mechanism is necessary because, in practice, it would be very difficult to enforce a tax liability on non-resident property owners.

We are considering alternatives to the current system which may reduce the liability of Canadian agents while at the same time protecting Canada's tax base. To achieve these objectives, we are prepared to consider a system which would require non-resident property owners to post security with Revenue Canada in order to take advantage of the election to file an income tax return and avoid having tax withheld on the gross amount of the rental payments. Where the non-resident fails to pay the required amount of tax within the specified time, the government would be able to look to the security; accordingly, the Canadian agent's exposure to tax could be reduced. In this context, acceptable security could be similar to that which is required under section 116 of the Act.

Finance is not, however, committed to this proposal; it remains our view that the current system works reasonably well from the government's viewpoint, and implementation of the alternative proposal would be considered only if it were thought to provide a better system from the taxpayer's perspective. This alternative has been outlined to a number of real estate organizations and other interested parties from whom we hope to gather comments over the course of the coming months.

I would also note that at our recent meeting you raised the possibility of considering changes to the existing time limits for filing a Part I income tax return under subsection 216(4). We would be pleased to receive written comments on your suggestion for modifying those time limits or on the alternative system outlined above.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
Director, Tax Legislation Division
